Taft Has Ohio Lead By 11 Delegates to 6

Home Rule For District Approved by House Group

Vote Is 14 to 8; Bill Must Clear Rules Unit Before Going to Floor

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington home rule legislation was approved 14 to 8 yesterday by the House District Committee.

The action started the Auchincloss home rule bill toward the House floor where powerful leadership backing including the support of Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) is expected.

One hurdle must be cleared before the bill reaches the House floor. District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) announced that the committee authorized him to ask that the bill be cleared first by the House Rules Committee.

Voting Issue Debated

District committee approval for the home rule bill came at the end of nearly three hours' executive discussion, the fifth meeting of its kind on the measure.

By a close 12-11 preliminary vote, the committee decided to preserve unchanged the election system proposed in the measure. Voted down was a proposal to limit voting to persons legally domiciled in the District. The voting issue is slated to be raised anew on the House floor.

As the plan stands now, all District residents of a year who are otherwise qualified can participate in the elections of city council and school board members under home rule.

The intention is to permit a resident to vote here and still retain any voting rights in a State. All qualified residents could also vote in the referendum to approve home rule.

Office Requirements

For holding elected District office, and for voting in delegate elections, there would be the additional requirement of legal domicile in the District, thus excluding participation by those who have voting rights in a State.

Dirksen said that the committee agreed by "substantial" majority votes to these changes:

1. A new Federal-District fiscal formula was left in the bill. It would become effective upon final passage, without being subject in any way to the people's referendum on the home-rule plan.

The referendum would put home rule into effect by majority vote if Congress passes the bill. The fiscal formula would fix the annual Federal payment to the District, now a flat 12 million a year, at 14 per cent of non-Federal city reve-

Virus Concentrate Of Polio, 99.5 Pct. Pure, Produced

Minneapolis, May 4 (AP).—A concentrate of the infantile paralysis virus that is 99.5 per cent pure has been produced at the University of Minnesota.

Dr. H. Orin Halvorson, head of the bacteriology department, said this opens the way to work on vaccine or serum to protect against infantile paralysis. Next step will be finding a blood test to show whether the disease is present in a body. After that, he said, the problem of a vaccine or serum can be attacked directly.

The development was the work of a research team composed of Dr. Cyril S. Stulberg, a bacteriologist, and two graduate students, Mrs. Helen Brumfield and Eben A. Slater.

Into-the-Red Budget Voted

D. C. Tax Boost or Sales Levy Issue Dumped in Lap of House

(246 More D. C. Policemen Provided in Budget. Page B-1)

Will Washington residents pay to run their city next year by a 38-cent boost in the property tax rate or a 2 per cent general retail sales tax?

This was the big issue tossed at Congress yesterday by House Appropriations Committee approval of an into-the-red $101,164,983 District budget for the year beginning July 1.

It is based on estimated need for six million dollars in new revenue, which would, however, leave more than three million in reserve.

Congressional approval of the budget figure—without passage of any other revenue law for the city—would force the Commissioners to increase the property tax rate from the present $2 to as much as $2.38 a $100. Present law gives the Commissioners authority to order such an increase, officials said. Congress last year said the property tax rate for this and next year would be not less than $2 a $100.

Passage of a new 2 per cent general retail sales tax, with exemptions for food, medicine and some other things, is the big hope of the District Commissioners for underwriting the budget next year.

The sales tax would raise an estimated six million dollars next year. Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent said the 38-cent increase in the property tax rate would be needed to produce the same revenue. That would be approximately a 19 per cent boost in the present levy on property owners.

The House is slated to act today on the budget bill. But the revenue issue will move first to the House District legislative subcommittee headed by Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.). His group has held hearings on new revenue, but Bates said it would be a couple of weeks before any decisions are made.

The District budget bill, drafted by the subcommittee headed by Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), showed a sweeping indorsement of the District Commissioners' plan for municipal spending in the next fiscal year. There were a number of ups and downs in detailed figures, but the result was a cut of $732,300, less than 1 per cent, below the Commissioners' proposed budget.

Horan is a strong supporter of the sales tax; Bates believes strongly it is "the tax of last resort."

Against this background, the possibility of a property tax increase was pushed sharply to the fore by members of the full House Appropriations Committee in their executive discussion of the unbalanced proposed budget.

Members said the question was raised whether it would be legal to clear a budget that exceeded available city revenues. Representative Karl Stefan (R., Nebr.) said there appeared to be a general feeling that there should be some revision of the property tax rate here. By that, said Stefan, was meant an increase.

Last year the District property tax rate went up from $1.75 a $100

Enlistment Bonus Urged To Bar Draft

Bill Would Build Up Services by Giving 2-Year Volunteers $1000, 3-Year $1500

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Chairman Leo E. Allen of the House Rules Committee proposed yesterday that Congress substitute incentive bonuses to volunteers for the military draft.

He offered a bill authorizing cash payments of $1000 for each man enlisting for two years and $1500 for those signing up for three. Such a program would build up the armed services to full strength and make revival of Selective Service unnecessary, Allen contended.

The Illinois Republican told reporters he had not discussed his plan with the House leadership, and added that he's "depending on membership reaction to put it over."

To Get "Time to Jell"

Allen said his committee will not take up the Andrews draft bill for another week or 10 days. Although approved by the House Armed Services Committee on Monday by a 28 to 5 vote, it cannot be brought up on the floor until the Rules Committee gives it a place on the calendar.

This delay will give his own proposal "time to jell," Allen said. If it catches on, the House will be allowed to choose between them, he indicated.

"If it is not well received," the Illinois Representative added, "there will be no disposition to hold up the draft bill."

What Allen hopes for, it appeared, is that the plan will catch fire with Congressmen who hate the thought of voting for conscription in an election year.

Martin Knew of Plan

Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.) told reporters that Allen had mentioned but not consulted him on his proposal. "That's on his own," he asserted. He declared that the Rules Committee's plan to put off consideration of the Andrews bill would not actually delay it.

The Armed Services Committee will not be ready to bring it up on the floor for another week, he said. Earlier, Martin had said that he saw no reason why the draft bill will not pass.

Allen was vague about the comparative cost of his plan and the Andrews bill. He estimated that his proposed bonus would cost about 350 million dollars a year. In addition the volunteers would have to be paid, fed, clothed and equipped.

Hershey Disputes Estimate

He said the cost of the draft had been estimated all the way from 2.5 to four billion dollars a year. This, of course, would include the cost of maintaining the troops.

While uncertain about draft machinery costs, Allen contended it would total two to three times the cost of his bonus plan. The latter will not total more than a billion dollars a year, he added.

Maj. Gen. Lewis Hershey, retired, director of Selective Service Records, made it evident that draft

U.S. May Run Railroads as Parleys Fail

Walkout Scheduled May 11; 3 Courses Still Open to Avert Tie-up of Lines

Chicago, May 4 (AP).—Federal seizure of the Nation's railroads became a possibility tonight after the collapse of mediation efforts to avert a strike called for May 11.

Soon after the collapse of the talks, the three unions issued strike instructions and said that union members would continue to operate troop trains, hospital trains, and milk trains when and if the strike takes place.

Attempts of Frank Douglass, chairman of the National (Railway) Mediation Board, to settle the wage dispute between the carriers and three operating brotherhoods broke down today.

Douglass, who said that neither side had budged during five days of conferences here, announced he would go to Washington tonight to report to President Truman.

The President was reported by White House assistants to have been watching the Chicago mediation efforts closely.

General Counsel Francis A. Silver of the Office of Defense Transportation said in Washington that legislation is still on the statute books making it possible for Mr. Truman to order Federal operation of the railroads.

Government's Authority

[According to General Counsel Silver, the Government's seizure power rests in a 1916 law. It relates directly to the taking over of transportation systems.

[A pertinent provision reads, "The President, in time of war, is impowered, through the Secretary of War, to take possession and assume control of any system or systems of transportation . . . and to utilize the same . . . for the transfer or transportation of troops, war material and equipment, or for such other purposes connected with the emergency as may be needful or desirable."

[Silver pointed out that last year the Congress specifically considered this act, and kept it alive, when it wiped out many other Presidential powers relating to seizure that stemmed from other war legislation. Legally, the "war" still exists.—Editor's note.]

Douglass to See Steelman

In Washington it was learned that Douglass will report at 10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow to John R. Steelman, Presidential assistant. When or whether he will see President Truman was not known.

It was taken for granted that one of the main subjects at the Steelman meeting will be whether mediation at the Presidential level would do any good.

There was good evidence that strong Washington efforts will be made to reach a settlement before seizure is seriously considered.

The walkout has been set for next Tuesday by unions representing 190,000 engineers, firemen and switchmen. The strike was called a week ago after breakdown of direct negotiations between union

For Democratic Delegates

1st Alabama Returns Indicate Split on Convention Bolt Issue

Birmingham, May 4 (AP).—Early returns indicated tonight that Alabama's delegation to the Democratic convention will be split between those advocating and those opposing a bolt over the civil rights issue.

With 18 boxes counted in today's primary, Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) and former Gov. Chauncey Sparks held the lead among candidates for delegate to the Democratic National Convention. Both are opposed to the proposed walkout. Hill had 538 and Sparks 524.

Following them were three candidates pledged to walk out. They were Handy Ellis, 520 votes; State Democratic Party Chairman Gessner T. McCorvey, and Eugene (Bull) Connor. Gov. James E. Folsom, himself a candidate for a "favorite son" nomination, was trailing with 269 votes.

President elector candidates pledged not to cast ballots for President Truman were ahead in a tabulation of 13 boxes in that race.

The first five in the tabulation at this point were all candidates opposed to the President. The leaders were Tom Abernathy, 406 votes; McCorvey, 365; John A. Lusk, jr., 335; Robert A. Albritton, 323, and Horace Wilkerson and Edmund Blair, 316 each.

Meantime, in the race for nomination to the United States Senate, Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) was leading four opponents. He had 2478 votes. Phillip J. Hamm, indorsed by Governor Folsom, had 281.

Mounting Returns From Industrial Districts Favor Minnesotan

Columbus, Ohio, May 4 (AP). Candidates backing Senator Robert A. Taft led in 11, and supporters of Harold E. Stassen were ahead in 6, of 23 contested delegate races in early returns tonight from the Ohio GOP presidential primary.

Reports were not available from three districts in which six additional delegates were chosen.

Taft's nine candidates led the field in a 10-man race to pick nine delegates at large. But since Stassen had entered only one candidate in this field, only that single place was among the 23 beeing contested.

Reports from eight districts—each picking two delegates—gave Taft men the lead in 10 contests and Stassen backers in six.

State-Wide Race

In the State-wide race, Carrington T. Marshall, Stassen's lone entry, trailed Ed Schorr, low man among Taft's nine candidates, on returns from 233 polling places (including 50 in the cities) of the State's 9385.

In the district voting, Stassen showed strength in the Third, Seventh, Sixteenth and Eighteenth Congressional Districts.

In the Third District, which in-

Senate Holds Angry Debate On Oleo Bill

Battle Develops Over Committee Reference Issue

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The controversial bill to remove taxes on margarine headed into an angry quarrel in the Senate yesterday, similar to the stormy debate that marked its path to passage in the House last week.

President Pro-tem Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) ruled the bill received from the House should go to the Agriculture Committee. At the same time Vandenberg asked that the Senate vote on his decision.

Supporters of repeal say that the bill would be pigeonholed or loaded with amendments if sent to the Agriculture Committee. Instead they seek to have it referred to the Finance Committee as a tax measure.

Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) attempted to have the bill placed on the Senate docket for consideration without sending it to committee. This motion was defeated 56 to 15.

After an afternoon of debate, the Senate put off action until 2 p. m. today.

Andrews Field Jet Pilot Killed in Va. Crash

An Andrews Field fighter pilot was killed yesterday morning when his P-80 fighter crashed into dense woods eight miles west of Ashland, Va., and one mile off Highway 54.

It was the first jet plane fatality since the speedy fighters have been stationed at Andrews, Air Force officials said.

Virginia State Trooper J. A. Houchins said the aircraft cut a 100-yard swath through the woods before it struck the ground and exploded. It did not burn.

The pilot was identified as Lieut. Robert Covar, 25, of Pittsburgh, Pa., veteran of 15 months' overseas duty with the Air Force.

Barrett Suggests Jurors Call Him, Other Key Officers

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday asked for an opportunity to appear before the special grand jury which will investigate gambling here, to present his department's information on gambling.

Major Barrett also declared in a letter to United States District Attorney George Morris Fay, who announced the unprecedented probe last week:

"May I also suggest that the captains of the various precincts and the personnel of the vice squad be called before the grand jury to give such information as they might have.

"I should also like to detail to you such number of men as you may feel is required to carry this investigation to a successful conclusion. These men can be made available to you on two hours' notice; and you may retain them indefinitely for the purpose of this inquiry."

Wants No Unusual Action

Barrett returned to duty yesterday after a week's absence because of the death of his mother.

When he summoned reporters to release the text of his letter to Fay, Barrett reiterated his view, published in The Washington Post on Tuesday, that there will be no unusual action taken against gambling, beyond current methods.

Barrett said his position is that the grand jury, when impaneled May 17, should find the situation "as is."

Over the weekend, Major Barrett had canceled an order by Acting Superintendent Floyd A. Truscott, which would have placed a con-

Newsmen Printing Secret Data Might Be Jailed Under Bill

The House Rules Committee yesterday approved a bill to force the opening of all Government files for Congressional examination.

The bill, sponsored by Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.), would also punish anyone, including even Congressmen and newspapermen, who disclosed confidential information obtained by the operation of the proposed law.

But Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio), himself a newspaper publisher, told reporters he would offer an amendment when the bill reaches the House floor to exempt reporters. He said he would also propose another change to penalize Government employes and agency heads who took secret files with them when they left their jobs.

As the bill now stands Congressional committees could force Government agencies to supply them with any information they had, including their secret files. The committee requests, however, would first have to be approved by the Speaker of the House or the President of the Senate.

Then, when the information was handed over, the committee would decide how much of the information could be made public. Anyone—a committee member or employe or newsman—who revealed any additional material could be fined up to $1000 and given a year in prison.

The origin of the proposed legislation lies in the House Un-American Activities Committee's attempts, so far futile, to obtain the confidential loyalty file on Dr. E. U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards.

The Commerce Department refused to turn over the file. President Truman, in backing up that refusal, also ordered all Government agencies not to give Congress any loyalty files without his approval.

Accordingly, Mr. Truman can be expected to veto the measure if it is passed by the House and Senate. Its constitutionality may also be subject to challenge.

Meantime, House Democratic Whip McCormack (Mass.) condemned the bill and said it reversed precedents that have applied ever since Congress was created.

Hoffman said that "Congress cannot tolerate such situations as the Condon affair in which it has been denied access to legitimate information."

He defended his bill's application to newspapermen on grounds that "the press has no all-inclusive right and privilege of disclosing information that is detrimental to the country."

Health Assembly Is Acclaimed As Top Success at Its Closing

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The National Health Assembly ended four days of intensive sessions here yesterday with the acclaim of both medical and public delegates as the most successful event of its kind in the history of the United States.

The assembly was called by Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing in response to President Truman's request to outline a 10-year program for the health and welfare of this country.

It was financed, Ewing told a press conference yesterday, through $45,000 in contributions from private medical and charitable foundations.

The 800 delegates comprised a cross-section of American life and interests. Attending were leading authorities in all fields of health and representatives of a vast number of labor, farm, consumer, cooperative, parent-teacher and other organizations.

Representatives of the public and medical authorities evidenced complete unanimity in favoring United States participation in the World Health Organization. Although the conference could not pass resolutions on pending legislation because some Government funds were involved in its operation, delegates left no doubt of their sentiments.

The unanimous support of WHO, it is believed, has helped to bring about the recent decision to get the blocked measure to the House floor.

The National Health Assembly failed to find any agreement on national compulsory health insurance, for which President Truman reit-

'Peace' Called Arabs' Aim

Abdullah Hints Invasion Plan; Strategic City Claimed by Jews

Yehudia, Near Tel Aviv Captured After All Night Battle, Irgun Reports

Tel Aviv, Palestine, May 4 (AP).—Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish warriors, said today they had captured the strategic Arab city of Yehudia, 12 miles east of Tel Aviv after an all-night battle with Arab defenders.

Haganah, the regular Jewish militia, declared Lebanese artillery shelled the northern Jewish settlement of Ramat Naftali less than 4 miles from the Lebanese-Palestine frontier.

Haganah also said that Arab forces were attacking Kfar Etzion, a Jewish strongpoint 10 miles south of Jerusalem.

Irgun reported strong Arab Legion forces at an army camp outside Lydda Airport struck back at Irgun positions in Yehudia this afternoon and heavy fighting developed.

Irgun presumably was trying to open a way to the airport. The picture there was not clear. Jewish forces quit the airport a week ago when the British said they were withdrawing their security troops. They did not leave a camp outside the airport immediately, but whether they were there now was not known in Tel Aviv.

(The Jewish-Arab truce continued in Jerusalem, but Jewish fighters attacked the Arab-held Sixteenth General Hospital Building on Mount Scopus outside Jerusalem last night. The Jews admitted three killed. The Arabs said the Jews were repulsed with "hundreds dead.")

(Associated Press Correspondent Daniel De Luce reported that an Iraq armored brigade halted today at Mafrak, Trans-Jordan, 25 miles from the Palestine frontier, to await an invasion order from King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan. The brigade included 32 armored cars, five batteries of motor-drawn 75-mm guns, more than 100 trucks and jeeps. They had come 600 miles in four days from Baghdad.)

Trans-Jordan Ruler Wires U. N. Strife Calls for Intervention

Lake Success, May 4 (AP).—King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan told the United Nations today the "calamities" in Palestine will reach a "pinnacle of horror" after May 15.

The Trans-Jordan monarch hinted in a telegram to U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie that his British-trained Arab Legion will attempt to seize and pacify Palestine after the British give up their mandate over the Holy Land in mid-May.

Representatives here of other Arab countries quickly backed up King Abdullah with indirect threats of action by their governments and with attacks on what they called Jewish outrages in Palestine.

The Assembly's Political Committee finally approved a Cuban plan to throw all proposals on Palestine to a 12-nation subcommittee. The vote was 33 to 7, with 13 abstentions. The United States and Britain favored it; Russia voted against it.

The subcommittee was ordered to make recommendations on a provisional government for Palestine. Named on the subcommittee are China, Poland, Norway, Argentina, Cuba, Belgium, Canada, France, Guatemala, India, Russia and the United States.

The subcommittee will consider the United States plan for a U. N. trusteeship and Britain's suggestion for a caretaker regime to hold office until a permanent settlement is made.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, blasted once more at those delegates who want to throw out the November 29, 1947, Assembly decision to partition Palestine. He called on the U. N. to expel "uninvited guests" in Palestine who are fighting the Assembly resolution.

Gromyko spoke to the 58-nation political committee of the U. N. Assembly on Palestine. He said

Taylor Arrives In Birmingham For Hearing

Birmingham, Ala., May 4 (AP).—Senator Glen Taylor (D., Idaho) arrived this afternoon to face disorderly conduct charges in police court tonight. The charges stem from his arrest Saturday night when he attempted to use the Negro entrance to a mixed meeting.

Asked if he had a statement to make on Southern justice the Senator answered "I just hope they are not as rough in police court as they are when they arrest you."

Taylor was arrested as he sought to enter a tabernacle where he was to address a meeting of the Southern Negro Youth Congress.

A patrolman, W. W. Casey, said Taylor tried to enter through the entrance reserved for Negroes, and was refused admittance. He then sought to push past, Casey said.

After a brief scuffle, Casey said, Taylor was taken to jail on charges of disorderly conduct. He was released on $100 bond.

Clark Drafting Formal Ruling On Status of Communist Party

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Attorney General Tom C. Clark is drafting a formal opinion on the legal status of the Communist Party.

The President's Loyalty Review Board asked for the ruling last week, putting the problem this way:

Is the Communist Party merely subversive? or

Is the party out to overthrow the Government by force, owing allegiance to a foreign power?

Chairman Seth W. Richardson said the board would be bound by the Attorney General's opinion on these questions, and would apply it in ruling on the appeals of Government workers fired for disloyalty.

If the Justice Department says the party is merely subversive, then the board will take into account the way a Government worker came to join it, or to be linked with it. His motives, and his beliefs about the party and its aims, will be given weight.

But if Clark officially declares that the party is dedicated to putting over a revolution, and that it is under the orders of the Kremlin, then just being a member will be enough to stamp a Government worker as disloyal and deserving of discharge. Such a ruling would leave the board no other course, Richardson said, and no amount of excuse or explanation would be enough to rebut the presumption raised by membership in such a group.

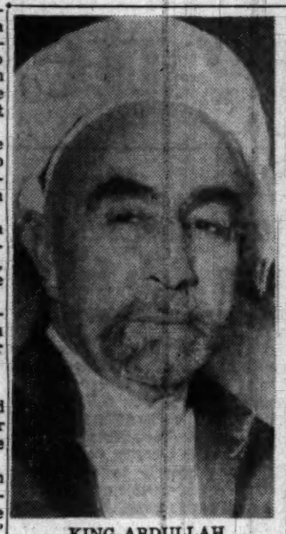
PEOPLE In The NEWS

King Abdullah, Shrewd, Patient Politician, Has Lighter Moments in Palace Routine

In his lighter moments, wily King Abdullah once hung a huge, image-distorting Coney Island mirror in his palace to startle guests into informality.



KING ABDULLAH

Levity, distortion and informality were gone yesterday in a thinly-veiled threat from Trans-Jordan's ambitious monarch to pacify Palestine when the British mandate expires. In a message to the United Nations, he forecast a "pinacle of horror."

Though suave and cultured, the 64-year-old ruler is not averse to putting venerable shieks on bicycles and speeding them down palace halls.

But as a politician he is a shrewd, patient realist. As a monarch he has the British-trained, most efficient Arab fighting force in the Middle East.

He also has aspirations for strategic positions in Palestine and a grudge against the British for what he feels is a double-cross.

British Failed in Promises

The British, he believes, failed in promises made to his father and brother on Arab independence after the World War I.

As early as 1937, King Abdullah declared: "I cannot call the Palestine scheme 'partitioning' because the elements as such do not exist." Despite a cozy subsidy from the British, he has contended that Palestine should be reunited with Trans-Jordan, with which it originally formed a single state.

To brace his current stand, he has asserted that he has rights and claims in Palestine "without which Trans-Jordan cannot live."

The second son of the late King Hussein of the Hejaz, King Abdullah joined his father in exile in Constantinople, where he received his education. He helped arrange meetings with the British which resulted in the outbreak of the Arab Revolt and was offered the rule over Trans-Jordan under general direction of the British High Command for Palestine. He became King May 25, 1946.

A member of the oldest and greatest Arab aristocracy in the Near East, he is one of the greatest Arab poets, an accomplished horseman and chess player.

lives are being lost because the committee will not act.

Gromyko said the Assembly can avert a tragedy only by carrying out the partition plan.

In effect, King Abdullah served notice on the U. N. he will try to reunite the Holy Land with his kingdom after the British drop their Palestine mandate May 15.

Persistent reports from the Near East say Abdullah has been picked by Arab countries to command an army that may enter Palestine as the British retire.

His telegram arrived here as Jerusalem dispatches said the U. N. Truce Commission, made up of French, British and United States consuls general, was believed to have gone to Amman, Trans-Jordan capital, to confer with Abdullah. Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, secretary-general of the seven-nation Arab League, was reported there also.

Says Intervention Needed

"The calamities occurring in Palestine are beyond belief and after May 15 will reach the pinnacle of horror," King Abdullah's telegram said.

He said he deplored useless killing and added he is persuaded that the Jewish people as a whole desire to live in amity with the Arabs.

Then he made the statement which was widely interpreted here among delegates as diplomatic notice that Trans-Jordan's Arab Legion will step in after May 15.

"Everything cries for intervention to halt this butchery," Abdullah said. "We now declare our readiness to give the Jews in Palestine full Arab nationality in a unitary (Arab majority) state sharing all that we share while yet enjoying a special administration in particular areas. Thus will end the slaughter, and the people will live in peace and security forever."

Trans-Jordan is a member of the Arab League. All other members, Egypt, Yemen, Syria, Lebanon, Iraq and Saudi Arabia, are U. N. members also. Trans-Jordan's bid for U. N. membership has been vetoed twice by Russia on the grounds that Abdullah is a puppet of Britain.

Methodists Get Divergent Views on China

Boston, May 4 (AP).—Divergent opinions on the status of the civil war in China were expressed tonight by two world leaders in addresses before thel quadrennia World Conference of the Methodist Church.

John Foster Dulles, United States delegate to the United Nations, said "The Russian nation has already achieved its traditional ambitions in the Far East and West."

The conflicting opinion came from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, president of China. In a transcribed address, Chiang declared:

"One of the deep tragedies of the present world is the fact that, although VE Day and VJ Day have come and gone, the issue of freedom of the individual is not yet settled. It is still under acute challenge."

Chiang's remark was taken to mean that the Communists' efforts to conquer China are not considered successful.

Dulles, speaking in person, said the danger of war exists in the Soviet Communist Party's attacks on free institutions.

Danger Lies In Resentment

"The danger lies," said Dulles, "in the resentment of the American people which creates in them a disposition to strike back at the Communists.

"War is not an appropriate counter-measure to the Communist Party attack. In fact, instead of defending our free institutions, war would weaken them, and in the long run probably inure greatly to the benefit of the Communist Party."

Council to Admit Negroes

The General Conference today voted unanimously to have Negroes serve on the church's important judicial council.

The judicial council is compared by church leaders with the Supreme Court and is made up of five clergymen and four laymen, all lawyers. Their work is in the interpretation of points of church law.

The new action makes it mandatory to have a Negro elected to the judicial council.

The conference vot deto increase the annual world service budget, by one third. The total set for the next four years was $7,903,379.

U. N. Charter Revision Urged at Hearing

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Five Republican Congressmen and one Democrat appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday to demand revision of the U. N. Charter whether Russia likes it or not.

Their testimony launched a public debate on the shortcomings of the U.N., and especially on the repeated Soviet vetoes. Behind them was strong support in both Houses, and a growing public demand from the country to "do something" about the U.N.'s present weakness.

This morning Secretary Marshall will appear before the committee, and is expected to oppose any outright revision of the Charter now. He has already hinted, however, that he would favor a treaty of "collective self-defense" with western Europe under Article 51 of the existing Charter.

A resolution calling for such a treaty is expected to be proposed soon by Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The five Congressmen spoke yesterday in support of two resolutions already introduced in the House by Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.). One would ask the President to call a conference under Article 109, which provides for amending the Charter; the other would recast the Security Council, abolish the veto on enforcement measures, set up a world police force and limit armaments.

The latter resolution was also introduced into the Senate recently, in slightly altered language, by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and 15 others of both parties.

"The Kremlin already has a world-wide organization—the Communist Party," Judd told the committee yesterday. "It intends to win, and in order to do so it must keep any other world organization crippled and ineffective.

"That is an intolerable situation for those who really want peace and freedom.

"The deep desire of the people of this country and of most of the rest of the world is not to abandon the U. N., or to bypass it, but rather to fixt it, to strengthen it.

"I am convinced that if we demonstrate to the Russians quickly that we and the other peoples of the world can if necessary get along without them, then there is a good chance we will soon find it possible to get along with them."

Predicts Soviet Would Sign

Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) said the Soviet vetoes had placed the United States in a "hopelessly impotent and impossible position." He predicted that Russia would sign a revised Charter in the end, in view of the enormous preponderance of power and resources in the hands of the free nations.

Representative Frederick A. Muhlenberg (R., Pa.) declared he was "not willing to see the United States bound forever by a policy which has proven impracticable of accomplishment." He thought it was time to revise the Charter despite the risk that Russia might withdraw.

Representative Robert Hale (R., Me.) felt the proposed amendments to the Charter were "the best hope of reaching a settlement with Russia." Representatives Brooks Hays (D., Ark.) and Raymond H. Burke (R., Ohio) also spoke in favor of revising the Charter without delay.

Greece Lists 152 Executed For '44 Revolt

Athens, May 4 (AP).—The government announced the executions today throughout Greece of 152 persons convicted of murder—most of them in connection with the 1944 leftist revolt.

Premier Themistokles Sophoulis formally declared the government would not be intimidated by the "treacherous Communist crime" against Justice Minister Christos Ladas, assassinated in Athens last Saturday.

Sophoulis said the government had decided to carry out all death sentences upheld by the pardons board. An authoritative source said 830 others have death sentences hanging over them.

The 1944 revolt flared soon after the liberation of Greece by the Allies. Greek and British forces put down the uprising by the Communist-led EAM, a leftist resistance coalition, after weeks of bloodshed.

Efstratos Moutsoyanis, 22, who police say is a Communist, is being held as Ladas's assassin.

Informants said 100 persons have been arrested in connection with the assassination and police indicated information gained from Moutsoyanis might lead to the crushing of the entire Communist organization in Athens and Piraeus, the capital's port.

Marshall 'Shocked' By Assassination

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Marshall yesterday called the assassination of Greece's justice minister in Athens a "cowardly and criminal" act. In a message to Greek Foreign Minister Constantine Tsaldaris, Marshall said he was "deeply shocked" by the assassination.

China Faces Breakdown of Coalition

Nanking, May 4 (AP).—The only two minority parties in China's government threatened a walkout today in a dispute over seats for the first elected Legislature in the nation's history.

The Democratic Socialists and the Young China Party were angry because of the breakdown of a deal by which the Kuomintang was supposed to guarantee them the seats.

Spokesman Yang Chuen-Ming of the Democratic Socialists said his party was considering withdrawing from the government. Some Young China Party leaders already were quitting Nanking.

The Kuomintang undertook to guarantee the two parties 155 seats in the 773-member legislative yuan. But voters elected write-in Kuomintang candidates to all but two of the 155 seats. The Kuomintang tried to induce these "independents" to bow out, but they refused.

Indication of strife within the Kuomintang was seen in the resignation of Chen Li-fu as that party's minister of organization.

Bevin Says Red Settlement Seems Unlikely

London, May 4 (U.P.).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told Parliament today there is little chance for a final settlement with Russia as long as the Soviet government persists in spreading communism throughout the world.

Soviet Ambassador George Zarubin sat in the diplomats' gallery as Bevin began two days of foreign policy debate in the Commons with a realistic review of world affairs.

The crowded House also heard him make these principal points:

1. Britain will surrender the Palestine mandate on schedule at midnight, May 14, but British authorities intend to maintain law and order and prevent aggression until that date.

2. Britain intends to stay in Berlin.

3. The military union of five western European nations will place them on an equal footing with the great powers in future negotiations. Bevin discarded the idea of a "United States of Europe."

Ideology Prevents Settlement

Bevin said he had always believed Britain could reach agreement with Russia if Soviet officials were not obsessed with the question of communist ideology.

"Every proposal submitted to us (by the Russians) has as its objective not the settlement of the problem upon its merits but the question whether it would serve the Communist conception . . ." he added.

"The conception of life of the rest of the world will not permit us to indulge in compromises which will further the objective of communism . . ." Bevin declared. "Until we can get away from this ideology on the part of the Kremlin there is little chance of a real and lasting settlement."

Commenting on the Palestine situation, Bevin said recently reinforced British troops in the Holy Land would be used "to maintain law and order and prevent aggression" until May 15, and "to cover the withdrawal of our remaining forces" after that date.

'In Berlin As Our Right'

On recent conflicts with Russia over the joint occupation of Berlin, Bevin said: "We are in Berlin as our right. It is our intention to stay there."

He shattered hopes for early formation of a single united nation in western Europe, commenting that the Brussels agreement "does not provide for union in the sense of . . . the creation of a European federated state.

Tripartite Parley Hopes to Arrange Truce

Beirut, Lebanon, May 4 (U.P.).—British, Jewis and Arab delegates met at Jericho today in hope of arranging a firm truce for Jerusalem, authoritative sources said tonight.

At the same time Arab leaders conferred in Damascus, Syria, on new United Nations Palestine trusteeship proposals.

2 Generals Face Reds In New Posts

Gen. Frederick Gen. White

Frankfurt, Germany, May 4 (U.P.).—Two young American generals who commanded tough wartime divisions today were on their way to occupation posts which will bring them face to face with the Russians.

New assignments affecting Maj. Gen. Robert T. Frederick and Maj. Gen. Isaac D. White climaxed a week of shifting emphasis from governmental to military affairs in American-occupied Germany and Austria.

Frederick, 41, wartime commander of the battle-scarred Forty-fifth Infantry Division, arrived here Monday and was to fly to Vienna today. He will command United States headquarters and sit on the four-power Allied Council.

White, 47, will take over the motorized constabulary which mans posts on the troublesome United States-Soviet zonal border dividing Germany. The onetime commander of the "Hell on Wheels" Second Armored Division was due here later this week. United States headquarters announced.

Frederick at one time was the Army's youngest general, winning his second star at 37. He was wounded seven times.

Frederick and White replace Brig. Gen. Alexander Gorder and Maj. Gen. Louis Craig, respectively.

Soviet Gun-Toter Detained by U. S.

Vienna, Austria, May 4 (U.P.).—A Soviet army lieutenant was detained in the American zone of Vienna for carrying a concealed weapon in violation of a four-power law, a United States spokesman said today.

He said the officer, Yury Ivanovich, was released after identifying himself as a member of the international police patrol.

Ivanovich and 11 Russian soldiers were investigated by an American Military police patrol when their truck broke down in the United States zone.

Reds Intensify Propaganda, Guerilla Attacks in Korea

Seoul, Korea, May 4 (U.P.).—Communist propaganda and guerilla attacks intensified today as the May 10 date for United Nations-sponsored elections in southern Korea drew near.

The Communist radio at Russian-occupied Pyongyang charged American forces were "no better than the Japanese conquerors" and predicted the Communists would form a "proper" government when the Allied occupation ends.

United States Army headquarters, meanwhile, reported two new guerilla attacks on Cheju Island, 50 miles south of Korea in the United States zone, and announced 154 persons were killed in Communist-fomented distrubances during April in southern Korea.

United States Military Governor, Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge told the Korean people yesterday the accusation that the United States sought to establish bases or colonize Korea was one of the "most fantastic lies" told by the Communists.

Dan McCarty Takes Early Florida Lead

Opposes Smith

Souther Files For Congress In Arlington

Twenty-nine-year-old Arlington businessman Arthur F. Souther last night filed for Congress in the Eighth District Democratic primary to be held August 3.

With the filing deadline set at midnight last night, Eighth District Chairman Gardner L. Boothe announced also that incumbent Representative Howard W. Smith had filed for the primary.

Souther, the man Smith will face for the nomination, is leading a fight against plans for a June 1 Arlington Democratic Convention, in which State convention delegates will be picked. Souther, whose protests will be herd by the State Appeals Committee today, charges the Arlington convention violates party rules and bars Federal workers.

Owner of an exporting firm, Souther lives at 1220 N. Quinn st.

Warren Is Close Behind; English 3d in Field of 9

Miami, Fla., May 4 (U.P.).—Dan McCarty of Fort Pierce, who became a father only 30 minutes before the polls opened, took a lead over two strong-running opponents for the governorship tonight in early Democratic primary returns.

Returns from 115 precincts out of the State's 1535 gave McCarty 16,367 votes; Fuller Warren, 12,544; Colin English, 8589; William Shands, 4396; Tom Watson, 4205; Bernarr MacFadden, 401; Richard Cooper, 304; F. D. Akin, 163; Basil Pollitt, 141.

McCarty, a citrus grower, almost certainly faces a runoff against Warren or English if his lead holds up and none of the other candidates jumps into the picture.

Florida was certain to elect a strongly anti-Truman slate of 28 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

Three major slates of 28 men and women were offered to the voters. Most candidates on two of them had announced a desire to draft Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, but were not pledged. Another slate promised to cast the first Florida votes for Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi, as an anti-Truman gesture. Others of the 112 candidates for delegate were uninstructed, although many had indicated a preference for Eisenhower.

Dade County (Miami), with one fifth of the State's expected total vote, had registered more than 11,000 ballots on the voting machines in the first two hours. At Tallahassee, the votes were rolling in at the rate of 1000 an hour. Duval County, which includes Jacksonville, recorded 25 per cent of its expected total vote before noon. Tampa and St. Petersburg, the two big west coast cities, reported the same early turnout.

Candidates were in general agreement on all issues involved in the election, with the result that the record outpouring of voters was credited to hot county races for sheriff, school board and similar contests.

Taft Leads Ohio Voting

Ohio, one of his delegates led and a Taft man was second.

In Eighteenth District

In the Eighteenth District, including five eastern Ohio counties, where lie part of the Ohio coal fields, a Taft man led, but a Stassen man was second.

Taft's two candidates were leading in the Ninth, Twentieth, Twenty-first and Twenty-second Districts. The latter three embrace the city of Cleveland.

Besides his single at-large entry, Stassen had candidates running for 22 district delegate posts in an effort to take 23 of the State's 53 convention nominating votes away from Taft.

Politicians said Stassen must win 10 or more to keep his primary band wagon going in high gear. By the same token, they said the loss of 10 would seriously damage Taft's chance for the nomination.

Because of a complicated ballot—top-heavy with State Republican and Democratic candidates—counting in the 9385 polling places was expected to be slow in the knock-down presidential battle.

Despite generally murky skies, interest in the national contest reached such a peak that Cleveland election officials said voters followed the unusual course of taking more Republican than Democratic primary ballots.

Taft forces had counted on Cleveland as one of their strongholds, but Stassen followers were just as sure they would break into the line-up in the three congressional districts electing six delegates there.

Voting also was reported heavy in Akron but not up to the expected mark in Youngstown.

The Stassen people claimed strength there in a last-minute check which they said would give them 15 of the 23 delegate races in which they have candidates entered. Stassen publicly has claimed only a majority of 12.

The Taft camp, expecting to salt away 30 delegates without opposition, stuck to its contention that Stassen will get no more than six of the other 23. Taft has refused to concede that any Stassen delegate will win—with the possible exception of Carrington T. Marshall, former Supreme Court justice. He is the sole Stassen candidate for one of the nine delegates to be elected at large.

The Stassen forces were reported to have made a last-minute attempt to break into the previously uncontested list of 30 with a write-in campaign in the Fifteenth Congressional District, in the strip mine coal country of southeastern Ohio.

There the name of Frank Worstall of Zanesville, a Taft delegate who died, still was on the ballot. Under Ohio procedure, the alternate receiving the highest vote—in this case certain to be another Taft man—would take his place.

Try for Write-In

But Stassen headquarters put out last-minute orders for their backers to attempt a write-in for a Stassen candidate. There was doubt whether any such maneuver would be successful.

Taft, after voting in Cincinnati, flew to Washington to go to work on a heavy Senate legislative schedule.

Stassen was to get the returns at his South St. Paul, Minn., home. It was learned that he has called all of his campaign leaders there for a check-up which may reshape his campaign before he flies to Washington May 7.

Democrats participated heavily in the Ohio primary voting, largely because of interest in a race between former Governor Frank L. Lausche and Ray T. Miller, former Cleveland mayor, for the governorship nomination.

President Truman collected Ohio's 50 Democratic convention nominating votes without contest. That left him in commanding position for the nomination, unless he changes his mind about running.

In Republican State races, Governor Thomas J. Herbert apparently won renomination without a serious contest.

Outside Cleveland, Akron and Columbus, the Ohio balloting was somewhat lighter than had been expected. In Cincinnati, Taft's home town, the light vote was marked by a three-to-one turnout of Republicans over Democrats.

The totals in Toledo, where Stassen had hoped to break into the delegate lists, were reported to have been under par.

2 'Anti-Bolt' Men Leading

Electoral College. They also agreed not to vote for any other Democrat who supports the civil rights measures.

Also at issue are party nominations—equivalent to election in Alabama—for a U. S. Senate seat, now held by Senator Sparkman who is running to succeed himself, and nine seats in the House of Representatives.

A runoff primary will be held June 1 in all races where no candidate receives a majority. The number of candidates for elector and delegate-at-large makes a runoff for some of these jobs certain.

The proposal to bolt the Philadelphia convention brought a wide split in Democratic ranks during the heated campaign just closed.

Twenty-eight of the 84 delegate candidates, including Chairman McCorvey of the State committee, are committed to the bolt proposal.

Thirty-five others, including former Governor Sparks, Senator Hill and Gov. James E. Folsom, are pledged against a walkout.

The remaining 21 are not committed.

It was 88 years ago, in 1860, that the Alabama delegation last led a walkout of the Southern States from the Democratic convention. A firm stand on the slavery question was the issue.

The party split, and Abraham Lincoln was elected, with the War Between the States beginning the following year.

Truman Signs Into Law Boost in GI Allowances

President Truman yesterday signed a bill that will mean an income rise of up to $90 a month for many veterans going to school or taking "on-the-job training" under the BI Bill of Rights.

The law, approved by Congress April 22, also permits former servicemen to draw the same monthly payments while learning to farm that they could get if they were enrolled in a formal educational institution.

Incumbent Congressmen Lead On Early Returns in Indiana

Indianapolis, May 4 (AP).—Early returns in today's primary election gave incumbent Hoosier Congressmen commanding leads in their races for renomination.

Representative Madden, First District Democrat, was leading his lone opponent by a 15-to-1 margin. House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck was ahead 4-1 in the Second District.

Representative Robert A. Grant, Third District Republican, apparently had a walkaway. In the Fourth, Representative George A. Gillie had piled up a 4-to-1 margin.

Representative Edward A. Mitchell was ahead in the Eighth, where a relatively tight Republican race had been anticipated. Representative Earl Wilson held a 5-to-1 lead in the Republican Ninth. Representative Ralph Harvey, first-term Republican from the Tenth District, had a fat margin over two opponents.

Former Mayor George L. Denny of Indianapolis apparently had won the GOP nomination in the Eleventh District, while Andrew Jacobs was far ahead in the Democratic race to select a successor to Representative Louis Ludlow (D., Ind.), who did not seek renomination.

Three Republican Congressmen were unopposed. They are Representative Forest A. Harness, Fifth District; Noble J. Johnson, Sixth, and Gerald Landis, Seventh.

The vote over the State generally was lighter than had been forecast because of State-wide rains. The voters had no opportunity to register their preference on presidential candidates. They balloted only for congressional and county candidates and named delegates to major party conventions which will pick State tickets in June.

Philip Willkie Wins 4-1 Victory at Polls

Evansville, Ind., May 4 (AP).—Philip Willkie, son of the late Wendell L. Willkie, won a smashing 4-1 victory today in his first political test.

He was nominated in a primary election as the Republican candidate for the Indiana House of Representatives in the Rush-Henry County district.

Dewey Calls on U. S. to Assume Leadership in Non-Red World

En Route Through Oregon With Dewey, May 4 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today called for a "hard-boiled" foreign aid policy and moral leadership by the United States in establishment of American foreign policy throughout the non-Soviet world.

Carrying his Oregon primary campaign on a crowded schedule through the Willamette Valley of western Oregon, Dewey disclosed briefly what will probably be his major point in a talk on foreign policy Wednesday night at Eugene. He told a Republican breakfast gathering at West Linn that this country must "let the world know we are not going to continue to do business with Soviet Russia as we have in the past."

The United States must become strong, he said. The Nation must have more than what he said were only 2½ divisions of troops in continental United States.

"Let's use our Marshall Plan money like hard-headed Americans instead of like soft-headed saps," he said.

"I would get hard boiled and go further. I would insist that those who are getting our money stand together in economic unity instead of standing divided."

American leadership can be imperiled, he said, "if we lose our moral leadership."

"Only one thing may destroy this. And that is if we follow this loose and demagogic appeal to outlaw communism and destroy the Bill of Rights.

"In America we prosecute people for what they do, not for what they think.

"There never was a more important issue than this for the conscience and competence of the American people."

This attack on the outlawing of communism, which was supported by Harold E. Stassen in a talk at Portland last week, continued the issue Dewey opened in starting his Oregon campaign.

Post Asks Takoma Park Unity

Election differences which split Takoma Park, Md., in town elections Monday should be settled and both factions should now unite, Mayor Elect John C. Post said yesterday.

Post and his seven running mates for town council posts made a clean sweep over a ticket headed by Luke J. Bennett, jr., a final count completed at 7 a. m. yesterday showed.

In calling for unity, Post reaffirmed his position of having no political ties.

"We made no promises to any political faction in the campaign and we are now free to develop plans we feel will be in the best interests of the community," he declared.

Final count of the 1986 ballots running mates elected to the town council were: W. H. McClennon, with 1351 votes; Brooks H. Perring, 1187; H. C. Heffner, 1540; John C. Parkerson, 1213; J. H. Nies, 1484; Ross H. Beville, 1211, and Sherwood Githens, jr., 1224.

Post, head of a Washington collections agency, is an incumbent town councilman and has lived in Takoma Park since 1929. The new town officials will assume office on June 7.

In Gaithersburg, Samuel B. Briggs, incumbent, and Hubert Ramsdell were elected town councilmen. Mayor Henry C. Perry was unopposed.

Irving M. Day was unopposed for his fifth term as mayor of Somerset. Elected to the town council were A. W. Starratt and Mrs. Ned W. Arich.

In Brookeville, "write in" victors for commissioner's posts were Howard T. Craver, C. Willard Harvey, C. R. Hawkins and William P. Jones. Jones said he would not serve.

Taft-Hartley Law Hearings Are Set

The question of amending the Taft-Hartley Act to apply to industry-wide strikes and disputes on the Nation's railways will be considered later this month by a joint congressional committee.

The Senate-House labor "watchdog" committee will open hearings on May 24 on various proposals to amend the law.

One of the subjects, the committee announced, is the question of how to meet strikes such as those in the coal industry and the current rail controversy. The Taft-Hartley Act does not apply to the railroads.

Election Amendment Proposed

Meanwhile, Senator Ives (R., N. Y.) and Representative Landis (R., Ind.) plan to offer a bill to repeal the law's election requirement for union shops.

The act forbids all closed shops—an aspect which the Ives-Landis measure would not change—and requires that a majority vote of the workers is a prerequisite to a union shop.

The proposed amendment would strike the election requirement and permit union shops to be granted through negotiations.

The union shop question is also one to be considered, in even broader terms, in the joint committee's hearings. It announced that witnesses will be asked to testify on the following five points:

1. Should all forms of "compulsory membership" in unions be eliminated or should Congress drop the requirement for National Labor Relations Board elections before a union shop may be granted?

2. How can the labor board's handling of cases be speeded up; should enforcement of the law be shifted to Federal courts or special labor courts?

3. How should industry-wide strikes be met in cases like the current railway strike threat and the coal dispute?

4. What is a "sound, permanent solution" to disputes over union welfare funds?

5. Should Congress outlaw strikes or strike threats aimed at forcing employers to violate the law or evade it?

After 15 Years

Dr. Morgan Resigns Post With TVA

H. A. Morgan Dr. Curtis

Dr. Harcourt A. Morgan announced his retirement yesterday as Tennessee Valley Authority vice chairman.

President Truman nominated Dr. Harry A. Curtis, dean of the college of engineering of the University of Missouri, to succeed him on the TVA board of directors.

Morgan, who will be 81 in August, is quitting on May 18 at the end of his second term.

Curtis is 64 and a native of Sedalia, Colo. He was formerly chemical engineer for TVA, and had the indorsement of Morgan.

Morgan was chairman of the TVA from March 22, 1938, to September 15, 1941, when David E. Lilienthal succeeded him in the top spot. Lilienthal is now head of the Federal Atomic Energy Commission. Gordon R. Clapp is TVA head.

Morgan became chairman as a result of a bitter feud between Arthur E. Morgan, who preceded him as chairman, and Lilienthal over TVA power policies. Harcourt Morgan sided with Lilienthal. So did the late President Roosevelt, who ousted Arthur Morgan and put the other Morgan in his place.

Harcourt Morgan, born in Canada, formerly was president of the University of Tennessee. He was appointed to TVA by Mr. Roosevelt in 1933 and has served there for 15 years continuously.

Volunteer Bonus Urged to Obviate Draft Law

machinery outlays would be much smaller than Allen calculated.

He said that firm estimates of the cost of the proposed new Selective Service have not yet been made, but that it would be less than the peak annual war-time Selective Service expenditures of about 60 million dollars a year.

Some Cool to Proposal

Other House leaders declined comment on the Allen proposal, saying they had not studied it. Privately, one questioned its possible ultimate cost, and said he doubted if the country would ever be able to get rid of such a bonus system, once adopted.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee declared:

"You can't buy security. If you want to break the country, that is one way to do it."

The Allen bill provides that the bonus for volunteering would be paid at the end of a man's enlistment. Those signing up for two-year hitches would get $1000 when discharged and those enlisting for three years $1500 at that time. As an alternative they could accept the educational and other benefits of the GI bill of rights.

Citizen Recruiting Groups

It also provides for the formation of volunteer citizen recruiting committees throughout the Nation. An appropriation of $1,500,000 would be allowed for the expenses of these committees.

Another proviso would direct the services to accept men of lower intelligence. It would require the acceptance of men making a score of 70 on the classification tests given all applicants. Such men now are not accepted.

Meanwhile, the Senate Armed Services Committee worked all day behind closed doors preparing its version of the draft bill. Yesterday it agreed to put restrictions on the call of doctors and dentists in the armed forces to protect the civilian populations.

Chairman Gurney said the special draft of medical men up to 44 years old would be retained since it will be necessary to get doctors for the additional troops. He did not explain how the restrictions would apply, but declared that there would be definite stipulation that all medical men would not be taken from any community.

Meat Packers Strike Spreads

Chicago, May 4 (U.P.).—The eight-week meat strike spread to more packing plants today as the Government renewed its efforts to end the walkout.

The CIO United Packinghouse Workers called strikes at Muncie and Fort Wayne, Ind., at plants of the Kuhner Packing Co.'s Marhoefer division.

The new strikes were part of the union's campaign to extend the Nation-wide walkout to many large independent packing firms. The union has been on strike since March 16 against the Big Four—Armour, Wilson, Swift and Cudahy.

At Washington, Government conciliators entered into renewed discussions with the union and the packers, but admitted that chances for an early settlement appeared slim.

Michigan Ruling Fails to Budge UAW

Detroit, May 4 (AP).—A legal opinion failed today to budge the CIO United Auto Workers in their determination to strike the Chrysler Corp. May 12, if necessary to win their demands.

A ruling by the State attorney general's office had held that Chrysler's Michigan employes would first have to authorize a walkout in a State-conducted vote to make it legal.

Such a vote would be conducted by the State Labor Mediation Board and would require 10 to 20 days to complete.

But Emil Mazey, UAW secretary-treasurer and acting president, said the union believes that strike vote provisions do not apply to industries operating in several States.

U. S. May Run Railroads and railroad representatives.

The three unions have demanded a 30 per cent increase in wages and changes in working rules. They have rejected an offer by the carriers of 15½ cents an hour.

Nineteen other railroad unions have accepted the 15½-cent raise. Those unions which have agreed upon the increase were said by railroad officials to represent 90 per cent of the country's railroad employes.

The 15½-cent figure was recommended by a presidential fact-finding board as a basis for settlement of wage demands by the three brotherhoods.

After the final conference with union negotiators today, Douglass said "neither the railroad brotherhoods nor the carriers will budge from their position of a week ago.

"The railroads' position is that they have done everything they can under the National Railway Act.

"The labor organizations have insisted all the way through the talks with me that the carriers will have to give them more before they will settle. Consequently, we have stopped negotiations and we are going to Washington tonight to report to President Truman."

With Douglass was Francis A. O'Neill, jr., a member of the Government mediation staff.

Other Courses Open

With the threatened stoppage only a week away, there remained two courses open to the Government in addition to Federal operation of the railroads.

The President may call the parties to the White House for a special conference. The two-day rail strike on May, 1946, was settled at a White House conference, but only after the Government had seized the roads.

The second possibility was hasty enactment by Congress of legislation to bring the railroads under the Taft-Hartley Act and its injunction procedure for national emergency strikes. The Taft-Hartley law now specifically excludes railroad workers because they are covered by the Railway Labor Act, passed in 1926.

Although the unions claim 190,000 members, the railroads estimate only 125,000 are employed on the Class 1 lines involved in the dispute. A number of short lines are not affected.

Strike Would Paralyze Lines

However, a strike would bring a virtual halt to passenger and freight movement other than a portion of commuter and local freight services.

Although the unions represent a small minority of railroad employes, a strike would paralyze the lines because membership in the disputing organizations includes all engineers and firemen. Only a portion of the total number of railroad switchmen are involved in the dispute.

The unions which have planned the May 11 strike, and their presidents are: the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Alvanley Johnston; the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginmen, D. W. Robertson, and the Switchmen's Union of North America, Thomas Cashen.

60 Providence Schools Closed by Strike

Providence, R. I., May 4 (AP).—Teachers struck for more salary today and closed 60 of the 67 public schools, sending home 27,000 pupils.

As small units of pickets from the AFL Providence Teachers' Alliance walked the school grounds, school committee officials said seven schools conducted some classes today with a total of about 1100 students in attendance.

The AFL group, numbering 600 of the city's 1200 teachers, called the walkout in their demands for a single salary schedule regardless of the grade taught and an immediate $200 annual pay raise.

In addition, they asked subsequent wage boosts of $150 yearly to a $4800 annual maximum.

The scale now ranges from $2100 to $4800 a year and a higher rate is paid to teachers in certain grades.

Trumbo Contempt Verdict Due Today

Jury Hears About 2 Hours' Testimony, With 6 Days Spent on Legal Red Tape

Dalton Trumbo—a slight, genial, highly paid movie writer—is due to hear today whether he faces a jail term for contempt of Congress.

Trumbo is accused of refusing to tell Congress whether he ever belonged to the Screen Writers Guild or the Communist Party. The record of the House Un-American Activities Committee shows that he was asked both these questions, and that the committee didn't find out the answers from him.

Before Justice David A. Pine in the District Court Trumbo's 11 lawyers have claimed the never refused to answer, that he just did not want to say "yes" or "no," but that he did tell the committee quite a lot of things.

Prosecutor William Hitz claims Trumbo did not mean to answer at all that he was just stalling.

Trumbo himself claims nothing; he did not take the stand in his own defense, and thus the prosecutor missed a new chance to ask him about the Guild and the Communist Party.

The case has dragged through six days of legal red tape, and the jurors have heard testimony for only about two hours. The rest of the time they have been out of court while Trumbo's lawyers piled up a huge record for use on appeal.

The last of this case came yesterday, when Justice Pine quashed 11 summonses the defense had served on the House Committee, calling for vast piles of records. Then Defense Attorney Robert W. Kenny handed the justice 78 requests for instructions to the jurors.

Justice Pine said the issues were simple, and that he doubted the good faith of counsel in loading down his bench with the thick bundle of requests. He said he would look them over, but he thought he would turn them all down and charge the jurors in his own way.

Trumbo is the second to be tried of ten Hollywood notables who did not tell the Un-American Activities Committee—when asked—whether or not they were Communists.

Louis B. Mayer Takes a Job At $2 a Day

"I've run out of clean shirts"

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Staff Writer

Movie Maker Louis B. Mayer, one of the Nation's highest paid people, is on the public payroll—at $2 a day.

The man whose income, according to the latest Treasury report, hits $501,271 annually is toiling away as a witness in a United States District Court trial here.

In addition to his $2 salary, Mayer is entitled to another $3 a day for board and room, plus 5 cents a mile traveling expenses.

The court definitely won't foot one of Mayer's bills.

He took one look at the crowded, dingy witness room, and decided it was not for the likes of Louis B. Mayer.

So he hired a shiny limousine, with shiny chauffeur. He uses the limousine as his private witness room.

Each day the limousine has been parked in front of the courthouse, in a no-parking zone near a fire plug. From time to time Mayer emerges to see how things are going in the world outside.

He came out of his cocoon long enough yesterday to tell a reporter that, despite his fancy furnishings, he isn't fond of his job, or of Washington.

Mayer sighed when he said:

"Well, one thing, this can't go on much longer."

And why not, L. B.?

"I've run out of clean shirts," he said.

Health Session Is Acclaimed

erated his support in an address to the delegates.

Labor and some farm groups favored such a step, but the American Medical Association maintained its determined opposition.

Nevertheless, even in this field, the most controversial before the delegates, there was substantial progress made that pleased both sides.

The Congress of Industrial Organizations and the American Federation of Labor, leaders in the drive for national health insurance, were agreed that the assembly had made great strides forward in securing understanding between the medical profession and the consumers of medical service.

The CIO in a formal statement said yesterday:

"Agreement between representatives of labor, consumer, cooperative and farm groups and the American Medical Association on prepaid health insurance as the basic method of financing medical care for the American people made the National Health Assembly an outstanding success."

The conference opened last Saturday with a luncheon in observance of May 1 as Child Health Day. It closed with a festive luncheon in observance of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the U. S. Public Health Service.

C. E. A. Winslow, editor, American Journal of Public Health, who presided over the luncheon, told delegates the U. S. Public Health Service started off in 1798 as the Marine Hospital Service "to administer a plan for Federal compulsory health insurance." The service was created to care for sick and injured members of the merchant marine.

A little later, Jack Lawrenson, vice president of the National Maritime Union, said that merchant seamen found the U. S. Public Health Service so valuable that they could not see how other citizens could get along with less service than the Merchant Marine receives.

Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele told the group that cooperation of government, private enterprise and charitable organizations is essential to improvement of health of the Nation.

Ewing, who will make his report and recommendations for the 10-year program to President Truman in the next few weeks, said he would certainly recommend national health insurance.

Ewing, who called the assembly for information and guidance, is not bound by its decisions.

The burning issue of voluntary group health plans versus compulsory federally administered plans cropped up even at the celebration of the U. S. Public Health Service.

Ewing told his press conference yesterday that delegates generally were agreed that more Federal tax funds will have to be used in many health fields—for education, research, and extension of some health services.

The same thought was expressed earlier by Quincy Howe of CBS, who summarized the findings of the assembly for the delegates.

Delegates to the maternal care and child health section were delighted at the stress placed on the mental as well as physical health of the child, and upon the necessity for the best of training for persons dealing with small children. No such agreement could have been reached in 1938, one delegate remarked.

Other findings of various sections were:

1. Personnel and facilities in public health schools should be doubled.

2. The research panel called for the greater expenditure of tax moneys in the field of medical research.

3. The Nation needs more dental schools and more dental research, the dental health section decided.

4. Dr. William C. Menninger's mental hygiene section found that at least a third of all patients consulting doctors have emotional disorders that lead to physical disorders and that 62 per cent of all inmates of veterans' hospitals are psychiatric cases. More trained psychiatric workers and better State hospitals are necessary.

5. The nutrition section called for a nutrition expert in every health group.

6. The rural health section found that it is not possible for doctors to practice such good medicine in country districts because of the lack of facilities. More information on rural medical care and hospitalization was demanded.

Home Rule Is Advanced

nue in the preceding year, up to a ceiling of 15 million dollars.

2. Literacy was made a basic requirement for participating in the home-rule elections. Prospective voters would have to fill out the required registration form in their own handwriting and without assistance as the required proof of their literacy.

With these, and previously approved changes that were largely technical, the bill cleared the House District Committee substantially as it was proposed by the subcommittee headed by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.).

The bill charts a limited type of Washington home rule, leaving Congress clearly in command of major policy for the District in line with demands of the Constitution.

There would be three main agencies of representative government for Washington:

1. An elected 12-member city council.

2. An elected eight-member board of education.

3. An elected non-voting District delegate in the House.

The city council would appoint a city manager to take charge of streamlined District government setup of 12 major municipal departments. Washington's governing board of three commissioners would be abolished, and the council would take over their ordinance-making powers.

The school board would run the school system, without basic change in the administrative setup except that board members would be elected instead of, as now, being appointed by the Justices of District Court.

The non-voting District delegate would operate like delegates from the American territories in Congress. He would have full rights to introduce legislation, and make parliamentary motions, both in the House and in the Joint District Committee. But he could not vote.

If Congress passes the bill this session, and a majority of qualified voters approve it in a referendum, the home rule plan would take effect early next year.

11 Years in Jungle, Flier's Body Found

Managua, Nicaragua, May 4 (U.P.). The mysterious disappearance 11 years ago of Willet Earl Kingsley, pioneer Los Angeles aviator, was solved today when his remains were found with a wrecked plane in the heart of the jungle.

Kingsley, seeking new Nicaraguan air routes, creshed January 13, 1937. Big-game hunters came upon the wrecked plane two weeks ago. They found a ring and a .45-caliber pistol, identified as Kingsley's.

Truman Reviews Chance to Extend Social Security

President Truman and top Democratic members of Congress yesterday spent an hour reviewing the prospects for legislation to extend Social Security coverage.

Senator Tom Connally (D., Texas) called the meeting a "general discussion 'which' came to no decisions."

"We probably will have another meeting at a later date," he said.

Oscar Ewing, Federal Security administrator, sat in on the meeting along with ranking Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee of the House and the Finance Committee of the Senate.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

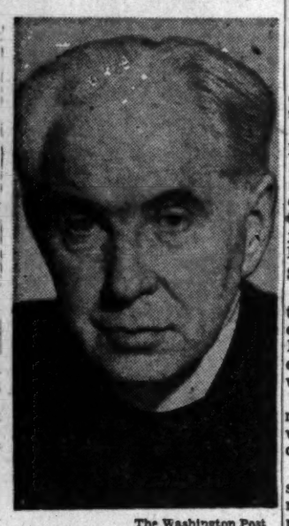
Move Into Germany By Soviet Foreseen

Father Walsh Warns of 'Invasion' By Returning Veterans of Wehrmacht

The United States was warned here yesterday to expect Soviet "invasion" of Germany in the guise of returning Wehrmacht veterans.

When that happens, said the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., Georgetown University vice president, the world may learn what happened to several hundred thousand German troops and 73 Nazi generals who "disappeared" on Germany's surrender.



The Washington Post
FATHER WALSH
"It's now too late to recover . . ."

Father Walsh, world politics trouble shooter for the Catholic Church, returned to Washington last week after a six-month study tour in Japan, eastern Asia, and Italy. In his first interview yesterday, he was optimistic over nothing but the recent Italian election.

Concerning the threat of a Communist grab in Germany, he said many military leaders suspect that Russia "screened and compressed" the German soldiers down to a force of about 125,000, which they trained, in their former units, under their German officers.

"Don't be surprised if we meet them in Germany ourselves—and soon," he declared. "The Russians will tell us they're not invaders, just Germans returning to their homelands.

"And what do we have there to meet them? Just a small group of 18-year-old boys."

Father Walsh said he did not think Russia's immediate aim was war, but said the victory for democracy in Italy's elections of April 18 would have its repercussions "in added (Communist) activities elsewhere," probably in South America.

As to atom warfare, he was perhaps most pessimistic. Russia, he said, would use the atom bomb as fast as the snap of the fingers if its leaders "felt they had more than we, and didn't know we had a better one."

All the world can hope for, he declared, is a prolonged armed truce. He saw no sign of the totalitarian state cracking within Russia, and said the United States must "talk straight, act directly, and meet force with force, if necessary." He termed "amateurs" those who "beg the President for just one more conference with Russia."

Stayed Over Election

Father Walsh, regent of Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service, said he arrived in Italy about two weeks before the election and stayed there till it was decided.

"It was the greatest debate of modern times held in a forum where so much history has been decided," he declared.

Had Italy gone Communist, he said, "not one but three or four new victims of the creeping imperialism of Marxian communism would surely have been involved . . . and communism would have advanced that much nearer to the English Channel and the Atlantic world."

The United States, during the two weeks preceding the Italian election, he said, "came very near to the edge of a slippery precipice."

"History," he warned, "will some day chant a requiem over the Soviet system or ours. It's now too late to recover a great deal of territory, but we can let them know that from now on at least force will be met with force."

School Fund Cut Assailed

The Arlington Civic Federation last night condemned action of the Arlington County Board in cutting the school budget so as to "impair" proper school services and developments.

Meeting in the Lyon Park Community House, the civic federation also requested its member organizations to investigate the educational views of future county board candidates by questionnaires.

It also commended the action of County Board Chairman Daniel Dugan and board member Mrs. Florence Cannon, for voting against the budget cut from a requested $2,444,000 to $2,217,000.

Civic Federation action followed the appearance before the group of School Board Chairman Barnard Joy, who explained the effect of the budget cut.

Joy warned that school problems may increase because a bumper crop of children will reach school age soon.

Announcing the first rough results of a United States census of Arlington school population, Joy said that there are roughly 3500 1-year-olds, as against 2700 4-year-olds and approximately 1700 7-year-olds.

The federation also passed a resolution urging creation of a Greater Washington public utilities regulatory agency to control rates charged by utilities throughout the area.

The federation named Charles M. Smith, delegate, and Lyle Bryant, alternate to the National Capital Parks and Environs committee.

Montgomery School Plans Are Clarified

A legal snag which held-up three million dollars worth of school construction planned for Montgomery County was eliminated yesterday by the county commissioners. The resolution adopted several weeks ago authorizing the construction was reworded to clear up legal objections by school board lawyers.

In their original resolution approving sale of three million dollars in bonds for new classrooms, the commissioners promised to issue the bonds in the future.

After consulting with lawyers, school officials contended the wording of the resolution did not definitely commit the county government in a legal sense.

Halpine Residents Protest

Meeting in Rockville, the commissioners heard complaints of 75 Halpine, Md., residents that owners of a 10-acre tract fronting on the Rockville Pike are indulging in a "speculative property venture."

They pointed out the land was rezoned from residential A to commercial and industrial last year with assurances of the Rockville Pike Co. to a two-million-dollar furniture store and warehouse would be built on the site.

Recently, a "for sale" sign was displayed and the homeowners asked authorities to rezone the land back to its original classification as construction on the project has not been started.

Costs Delay Project

Dermot A. Nee, president of the Rockville Pike Company, said yesterday the "for sale" sign is to attract a buyer for only a portion of the land and the firm intends to proceed with the project. The delay, he said, was caused by high material costs.

The commissioners also agreed to have Board President Brooke Johns, County Supervisor I. G. McNayr and Public Utilities Agent Albert E. Conradis testify at a court hearing in Baltimore May 20 in an effort to bring about 3 instead of 5-cent fares for county school children on Capital Transit busses.

The Washington Post

PRESIDENT'S PIG—Beltsville Belle, as she is now called, a red-haired, 634-pound girl from Iowa, received anything but a warm welcome at the White House yesterday and was shipped off to the Bureau of Animal Industry at Beltsville, Md. She resented vigorously revealing her weight, fought going on the scales for half an hour. Her weight indicated she's eaten probably $160 worth of corn in her lifetime, yet couldn't bring more than $120 on the market. The sow was sent to President Truman by Farmer Lee Harthan of Ventura, Iowa, to call attention to the high price of corn compared with the low cost of a live pig. At Beltsville she may be slaughtered

On the Town

SHE'S not a Russian princess in exile, nor is she a Tibetan lady. She's plain Mila Rossiliano and she's working at the Balalaika. Mila is a dancer who has been in the business all over the world for 19 years now . . . Her career started in Poland in 1929 and since then she has danced in a number of European countries and the United States . . . Before the war Mila did her dances with her husband, but she now has a solo act and hubby is happily established in the export-import business. Mila does a whirling peasant routine which sets a fast tempo for the whole Balalaika revue . . . The gimmick of having the cast pick members of the audience for polka partners seems to have caught on because they're still doing it.

Mila Rassiliano
At Balalaika

A new attraction for both the Balalaika and Washington is Artist Harold Haimovitz's trick of sketching patrons and projecting the sketch on a screen on the wall of the club . . . He has a small machine and a flat table with a lens under it. The subject sits before him while he's being sketched and as the image is formed it is shot on the wall for all to see . . . In off moments Harold does cartoon sketches to keep the people amused . . . It's fun if your profile is anything to see. Of course, for an extra bit of money he might make you resemble Tyrone Power or some such glamorous character.

THE NIGHTINGALE will be opening Bob Seidell and his orchestra tonight . . . They'll be playing there four nights a week. . . . Bob, Songstress Kay Linton and the boys have been doing the dances at the Roosevelt Hotel for a short time and before that they were in the old Club Rayburn and the Washington Aviation Country Club . . . If the band still has the same members, dancers are in for some smooth arrangements since almost everyone in the band was an arranger or composer and had played for some of the biggest name bands in the country.

Here's a tip for women who are looking forward to a few less inches at the waistline

Official Sues County for Office Space

Arlington Treasurer John Locke Green yesterday filed suit in Arlington Circuit Court to force the County to give his office "adequate space" in which to operate.

He asked the court to compel the Arlington County Board, if necessary, to build a complete new wing on the Courthouse.

According to Green's petition, the space shortage "materially" reduces office efficiency, badly inconveniences those waiting in line to pay taxes, and leaves no room for new clerks and equipment.

In his suit, Green pointed out that he had asked the County Board for the past "five or six years" to remedy the situation, but, he added, the board "has failed or refused" to act.

Prince Georges Backs Sewer Bond Issue

A million-dollar bond issue for water and sewer main extensions by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission was approved yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners, meeting in Upper Marlboro.

The commissioners directed William A. Carson, board president, and Linden Briscoe, clerk, to join with similar officials in Montgomery County in signing the bonds.

The water and sewer extensions will be in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties and will be repaid through front foot assessments on the property benefited.

Commissioners Carson and Norman H. Collins will represent the board at a meeting of citizens of Bradbury Heights and Boulevard Heights to discuss possible storm sewer drainage and street paving projects, at 8 p. m., May 19, at Bradbury Heights School.

The commissioners upheld road examiners, C. L. Tucker and Samuel O. Willett, in refusing Horseshoe rd. in Woodland, Surratts district, as a county road, because it deadends and would benefit only residents along the road.

Population of Riverdale as of January 1, 1947, was 5300, the commissioners were informed. The figures are used in allocating race track refunds from the State to county towns.

The commissioners approved carnival permits: For Bladensburg Volunteer Fire Department, June 7 to 19, on Defense Highway at 47th st., Bladensburg; Riverdale Volunteer Fire Department, June 7 to 12, Queensbury rd. and Lafayette st., Riverdale; Huntemann-Huff Post, American Legion, of Mount Rainier, May 24 to 30, Arundel rd. and 30th st., Mount Rainier, and the vestry of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Bladensburg, June 2 to 5, Defense Highway at 53d st., Bladensburg.

Home Rule Discussion

"Home Rule in the District" will be discussed at a meeting of Chapter 1, American Veterans Committee, today at 8 p. m. in the Department of Commerce Auditorium. Principal speakers will be Dr. A. Powell Davies, of All Souls Church, and C. M. Pierce, assistant director of the House subcommittee on District Home Rule.

Study-Work School Plan Is Approved

Fairfax County School Board yesterday approved a study-work program in distinctive education for seniors over 16 years of age at Mount Vernon High School.

Under the system, students will attend classes half the day and work as apprentices in "distributive occupations such as retail, wholesale concerns in town the other half.

The program will be supervised by a teacher who will line up jobs and act as coordinator between school and local merchants. The coordinator will also hold a class in consumer education for juniors.

The program, which will start in the fall, is open only to seniors 16 or over. It is already in effect in Alexandria and some other parts of the State. Mount Vernon was chosen from the county's four high schools because of its location near Alexandria and other business centers.

Bank Theft Jails Janitor 8 Years

Defendant Dismisses Lawyer, Pleads Guilty to Rifling Night Depository

David Briggs, 36, former janitor of the First National Bank of Alexandria, yesterday was sentenced to eight years for the theft of $27,000 from the bank's night depository.

In Alexandria Corporation Court, Briggs dismissed his attorney and changed his plea to guilty. The jury took 20 minutes to convict.

The loot, about $18,000 of it in cash and $9000 in checks, was taken from the vault after closing hours. Briggs admitted tossing the checks and money bag on top of an Alexandria house, but contends he hasn't seen the money since he hid it in a piano at his home. The deposit was made by the J. C. Penney Co.

His attorney, John M. Holzworth, told police that Briggs could be found in Detroit, and later became his lawyer. The attorney is being considered for a reward in the former janitor's apprehension.

Briggs' sister, Mrs. Lula Kennedy, 2238 12th st., informed police her brother told her where the money was hidden.

The sister said she told Mrs. Briggs, who found the money, and then called on Eulalia Meyers of 3944 Benning rd., a spiritualist known as Madame Yvonne, "for advice." Police say Madame Yvonne reported she turned the money over to someone else.

Mrs. Briggs and Madame Yvonne have been charged with grand larceny and are awaiting action of the grand jury.

Mrs. Durant Must Finish Prison Term

Richmond, Va., May 4 (AP).—The United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals today ordered former Wac Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant remanded to a Federal prison to complete five years at hard labor in the $1,500,000 Hesse crown jewel theft case.

In an opinion by Circuit Judge Morris A. Soper, the court reversed a decision of District Judge Ben Moore, who released Mrs. Durant from the Federal Reformatory for Women at Alderson, W. Va., last September on a writ of habeas corpus. Since her release, Mrs. Durant had been free on $5000 bond.

Judge Moore had ruled that the Army court martial which convicted Mrs. Durant in Germany in November, 1945, was without jurisdiction.

The lower court was ordered to dismiss the writ and remand Mrs. Durant to the reformatory.

tinuous police patrol in front of one known numbers writing establishment, and possibly others where regular law enforcement methods have failed to close down operations.

U. S. Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday dismissed numbers charges against a man arrested on April 8, in a raid on a grocery store at 1033 7th st. nw., but held the man's father—who was arrested on April 27 in the same store—on a similar set of charges.

Lide J. Owens, jr., 21, of 1710 First st. ne., was arrested April 8 in the grocery, together with Thad Brown, 65, of the 7th st. address, and Emma Ingraham, 39, of 18 M st. nw. All were charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips.

Turnage released Owens and the woman, but held Brown in $1500 bond for the grand jury. Lide J. Owens, sr., 39, of 1710 First st. ne., arrested April 27, was held in $1500 bond for the grand jury, charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips.

Burnie O. Love, 37, of 1208 Eastern ave. ne., was held in $1500 bond for the grand jury by Turnage on Monday, on the same two charges after Love was arrested in the basement of 611 F st. nw., where police said he is a janitor.

In Municipal Court yesterday, Mack Dalton Bates, 39, of 1330 Riggs st. nw., and Annie Bradshaw, 28, of 1337 R st. nw., pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of lottery slips, with sentencing set for May 21. They were arrested April 21 at the R st. address, and released yesterday in $300 bond each.

Robert Williams, 52, of 508 21st st. ne., and Leslie Hayes, 27, of 2015 15th st. nw., arrested March 19 at 8th and F sts. ne., also appeared before Judge Casey yesterday. Their case was continued to May 11 to permit a further investigation.

Home Rule Approved

Approval of the District home-rule bill by a vote of 14 to 8 in the House District Committee is a great tribute to the careful work of the Auchincloss Subcommittee and the intelligent support given by District groups sponsoring the measure. For the first time in many years the community seems to be united in its approval of a suffrage-restoration measure. And Congress has come face to face with the necessity of divesting itself from the burdens of acting as a city council for Washington. We only hope that the entire House will be alert to the vital factors which have led to the approval of this constructive and well-founded bill in the District Committee.

The bill should be taken to the floor promptly, for the time remaining before adjournment is presumably short and unless the bill is soon sent to the Senate its chances for enactment will be jeopardized. Now that a practical and generally satisfactory bill has been worked out and has the support of the House leadership it would be a tragedy to have it lost in the shuffle for want of expedition in handling it.

Attempts to pick the bill to pieces were fortunately thwarted in the committee. It has defects, of course, and we hope that some of these can be corrected in the Senate. The attacks that were made on the bill in the committee, however, seemed to be less concerned with correcting defects than with making the bill unworkable and obnoxious. One of these attacks was directed at the dual-voting provision. As it stands, the bill sensibly allows District residents who are domiciled in the States to participate in the election of city councilmen here without losing their right to vote "back home" in State and national elections. There is nothing new in this provision. It is used in other communities having large numbers of Federal Government employes. To do otherwise would be to create two classes of citizens in Washington: local voters with no representation in Congress and local residents with representation in Congress through the States. The danger of conflict between the two groups, if dual voting should be forbidden, is obvious. The result might be to wreck the home-rule experiment at an early date.

Another effort was aimed at elimination of the fiscal formula. This was very serious indeed, for without some means of determining what it could expect from year to year from the Federal Government, the District council would operate under a grave handicap. And the necessity of getting a specific appropriation of undetermined amount from Congress each year would tend to throw the whole District budget back into overcrowded calendars on Capitol Hill, and thus defeat a major purpose of the home-rule plan. We hope the House will follow the committee's lead in resisting both the changes if these fights should be renewed on the floor.

The minor amendments attached by the full committee do not change the nature of the bill or weaken it in any particular. The important thing now is to bring it to a vote in the favorable atmosphere created by the Gallup Poll showing that almost 9 out of 10 Americans with opinions on the subject favor its central purpose.

Pulitzer Awards

We doff our hat to the 14 individuals and organizations selected by a group of distinguished judges to receive Pulitzer Prizes for work in American arts and letters during 1947. Several of the awards in journalism are particularly gratifying. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which won the prize for the most disinterested and meritorious public service of any newspaper, has been a bold and constant watchdog of the public interest. Its vigorous coverage of the Centralia coal mine disaster and its demands for reform certainly warranted commendation. The same may be said for the resourceful expose by Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune of the indefensible handling of "security risks" by the State Department—reporting for which Mr. Andrews already had been honored with the Heywood Broun award. It is also pleasing to see the recognition accorded our eminent neighbor, Virginius Dabney of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, for distinguished editorial writing, Paul Ward of the Baltimore Sun for foreign correspondence, and George Goodwin of the energetic Atlanta Journal for uncovering vote frauds.

Public acclaim of Tennessee Williams' play, A Streetcar Named Desire, substantiated in advance the decision of the judges. Mr. Bernard De Voto's exhaustive work in American history, reflected in his newest book, Across the Wide Missouri, likewise is too well known to need additional comment. There will, of course, be the inevitable quibbles that this or that candidate was more deserving than those named by the judges. Their recourse, however, is to try again, for regardless of contentions the Pulitzer Prizes continue to serve both as valuable measures of merit and coveted marks to shoot at.

Marginal Sea

Let us be clear as to what was done by the House of Representatives last Friday when it passed the so-called "tidelands" bill by a vote of 257-29. First, this bill is not, as it purports to be, "a bill to confirm and establish the titles of the States to lands and resources in and beneath navigable waters within State boundaries." It is a bill to surrender to the States—to give away, in other words—lands and resources to which the Supreme Court has declared, at least in respect of California, that they have no title and over which the United States possesses "paramount rights."

Second, it gives away, despite the pretenses of its proponents, much more than the tidelands or the lands under inland waters—to which the Federal Government has never at any time asserted any claim. The term "tidelands," which means the land between the high-tide and low-tide marks, is a misnomer in connection with this bill. What is really at issue here is the marginal sea, the land lying submerged between the low-tide mark and the 3-mile limit over which the Nation's sovereignty extends under international law. It is the marginal sea over which the Supreme Court confirmed the Nation's dominion and over which the House would now give control to the States.

In support of the bill on Friday, Mr. Gossett of Texas argued that under the Supreme Court decision in the California case, "the Federal Government would own the bed of every inland stream and lake." This is the bugbear, presumably, that procured indorsement of the bill by so many Governors and so many representatives of landlocked States. When he first filed suit against California, Attorney General Clark emphasized that "the controversy relates exclusively to the so-called marginal sea, extending beyond low-water mark to the 3-mile limit, and that no claim is made to tidelands or lands beneath bays, harbors, or other inland navigable waters." This was stated and restated many times in briefs and arguments before the Supreme Court. And nothing in the court's decision can rationally be construed to relate to inland waters of any kind.

Yet such was the frenzy induced by an emotional but wholly irrelevant attachment to "States' rights" and by the pressure of interested oil companies that the House chose blindly to ignore the vital interest of the United States. No one can now estimate the mineral riches hidden beneath the marginal sea save to say that there lies submerged there vast stores of the stuff needed to propel the Nation's ships of war and to power other engines for the Nation's defense. It is too intimately affected with the national security to be opened for exploitation for private profit under State control. Let us hope that when the Senate comes to act upon this tremendous asset belonging rightfully to all the people of the United States its members will act not as mere ambassadors of sovereign States but as trustees of the Federal Union.

Scuttling Security

The House of Representatives last week passed an appropriation bill for the Federal Security Agency in which the funds requested by the Bureau of the Budget for operation of the Social Security Administration were cut so drastically as to invite its disintegration. These are strange ways indeed to carry out the 1944 Republican Party platform pledge to support "extension of the existing old-age insurance and unemployment insurance systems to all employes not already covered."

The budget estimate for operation of the office of the Social Security Commissioner was $3,131,165. The amount appropriated by the House was $221,000—a cut of no less than 93 per cent. The effect, of course, is to leave the commissioner impotent. His office is the nerve center of a complex system in which competing demands for protection of children, the aged, the ill and the unemployed must be brought into balance. The regional offices through which his controlling influence was exerted are taken away from him, and the determination of policy is thrown back, in effect, to the level of the four constituent Social Security Bureaus. These, then, instead of being integrated, are all too likely to be working in rivalry and at cross-purposes.

The budget request for informational services was reduced from $109,997—certainly no great sum for a Federal organization serving millions of American citizens—to $79,997. This will mean that people who have rights under the social security program, rights gained through their own contributions, may all too frequently lose them through ignorance. Widows or orphans entitled to insurance benefits may find them forfeited solely because of an information failure. Equally shortsighted is the slash of $100,000 from the $230,000 asked for research and statistics. This will cut the research staff of this great agency from 50 to 20 persons, clerical and administrative personnel included, and will hamper intelligent planning for the future.

Most damaging of all, perhaps, is the cut of nearly 23 million dollars in the funds for the United States Employment Service and the Unemployment Compensation Commission and the combination of the two in a new Bureau of Employment Security entirely outside the jurisdiction of the Social Security Administration. This is, obviously, outright legislation in the guise of an appropriation measure. It tends to segment and disrupt what should be coordinate and complementary. The Social Security Act is too vital and valuable a part of the Nation's economic structure to be subject to this sort of reckless tinkering and demolition. The Senate, it is to be hoped, will show a greater measure of true conservatism when it considers this appropriation bill—conservatism in the sense of a regard for the maintenance of a tested and now indispensable institution.

Flanking Move

Senator Cain's effort to put through a one-year extension of title VI of the National Housing Act can be regarded only as a flanking movement designed to defeat the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill which the Senate recently passed. There is need, to be sure, for enactment of temporary authority to enable the FHA to keep its large-scale housing program in operation while the House is acting on the long-range T-E-W bill. But the measure reported for this purpose was for a one-month period. Should the Senate permit the stretching of that period to a year, it would virtually invite the House to throw the T-E-W bill into the dust bin.

This is the second attempt that has been made to destroy the comprehensive housing bill. Senator McCarthy succeeded, a few days before the bill was passed, in amending it so that public housing projects to be built with Federal aid would be poor-house communities. Fortunately, that amendment was modified and the bill went to the House in workable form. The second attack in the Senate came just as Chairman Wolcott of the House Banking Committee began hearings on the bill and promised that it will be taken to the House floor "as quickly as possible." Only a protest from Senator Taft, who was campaigning in Ohio, halted a vote on this device. When the Cain amendment is again pressed, as it may be today, we hope the entire Senate will be aware of the situation and administer an appropriate rebuke.

If the House should reject the T-E-W bill or fail to act, there will be time enough to put through a one-year extension of the FHA's mortgage guarantee program. That is not the issue now at stake. The T-E-W bill has been worked out with years of effort. It is as superior to the emergency bill as a mansion is to a temporary shack. We do not believe that the House will turn a deaf ear to the Nation-wide cry for better housing if this bill is fairly and adequately presented to it. In any event, its members should have an opportunity to vote the bill up or down without having their attention diverted to an emergency scheme that offers nothing more than hand-to-mouth operations in a small segment of the housing field.

Playing The Numbers

It is no news that gambling in the District of Columbia is a big business—a business extracting 100 million dollars a year, if the estimate of District Attorney Fay is accepted. It is news of a surprising nature, however, when the superintendent of police, who is specifically charged with law enforcement, refuses to close up a false-front gambling establishment that has been operating in open violation of the law. Maj. Robert J. Barrett has given no convincing explanation of his edict overruling the order of Assistant Superintendent Truscott to station a patrolman in front of the Florida ave. numbers parlor of Mr. Sunshine Boldware. Indeed, his remarks had an ominous ring. "I don't see why we should take action against this place," he was quoted as saying. "Let the grand jury or anybody else see what they can find." It is encouraging that Superintendent Barrett has now tempered his stand to the extent of offering his full cooperation to the grand jury that is scheduled to meet May 17.

Superficially there is something to be said for Major Barrett's contention that the situation with respect to gambling should be allowed to remain as it is "for the benefit of the grand jury." This does not mean, however, that police should refrain from doing their duty in apprehending lawbreakers. Actually, the grand jury will have to go largely on evidence gathered by police, since it cannot be expected to act wholly in a vacuum and does not have facilities to start an investigation from scratch.

It is true that the numbers racket is only one facet of gambling operations here, and that the real target of any expose should be the kingpins rather than the minor factotums. Admittedly the numbers racket is a nebulous, shifty affair hard to pin down. But it is useless to pretend that the police do not know of the extent the numbers are played; policemen can hardly step outside the precinct doors without stumbling over numbers writers. What the people will want to know from the grand jury is not only the scope of gambling operations but also whether laxity on the part of the police is contributing to lawlessness of this sort.

MIRAGE

I saw a man with head down-bent.
Dry leaves ran with him as he went.
By Wilson Wood, by Boulder Brook,
I knew the stony path he took.

I knew that rusty coat he wore;
Those weary shoes I'd seen before.
But shoes and coat were near and new
The time that I had worn them too.

I saw him tremble in the cold.
The years, I thought, have made him old;
And I was stricken sad to see
How such a man resembled me;

How with my step, though not the stride,
He plodded Wilson Wood beside;
How in that coat I used to wear
He vanished into leaf-loud air.

U. S. Policy In Germany

Marquis Childs in his column of May 1 calls United States policy in Germany puzzling for the average American. I find it astonishing, desperate and disheartening. It is deprived of any common sense and very dangerous to our security.

Take the typical case cited by Mr. Childs. A former top Nazi, August Schniewind, who specialized in pillaging the countries occupied by the Nazis, is put in as liaison officer for the European Recovery Program between the European countries and the bizonal economic administration.

Every nomination of a German to a high position ought to be screened by the Americans. Otherwise one risks nominating a German Communist. What use can one make of the brains and experience of such top Nazis as August Schniewind when under Hitler he taught only the autocratic Nazi economic system so like Russian communism and so unlike the American system of free enterprise?

There exists an underground Nazi movement in Germany connected with General Paulus, who is still in Russia. With the Communists he dreams of creating a new united Germany against western Europe and America. These Nazis are certainly against ERP and will hinder the realization of this plan everywhere. Do we really need to run the risk of such sabotage by nominating to key posts top Nazis like August Schniewind so that he can communicate top secrets to the Nazi underground?

One can use a rank and file Nazi for subaltern work in a mill or, as machine operators, white collar clerks or accountants, but no responsible position should be granted to a top Nazi regardless of his skill and experience.

We know well that the United States Government is screening the employes of its administration to avoid subversive elements even in the lower brackets. Why then should a part of the same administration run the risk of employing top Nazis in key places in Germany?

Toynbee Review

I feel that Mr. Lalley's April 28 review of Toynbee's book of essays—many of which have appeared separately in past months—is a discredit to The Washington Post.

It is appropriate for Mr. Lalley to point out that historical circumstances may have boosted the interest in a book. But is it useful to give 90 per cent of the review to this to the point that the reviewer suggests that there is no merit at all in Toynbee's writings?

And which of Toynbee's books is this review about? One would think from reading it that it is purely about the original opus. I find two sentences in the last paragraph of a full column which deal directly with the book at hand.

As to facts: much of the explained popularity of Toynbee is based upon the suggestion that he hit it at the right time. Perhaps he did; but many studies of history have come and gone. This one took. He also suggests that Somervell's abridgement "made" it. Which came first, chicken or egg? Toynbee and his work were internationally known and praised before the abridgment came out.

The book has, truly, had a certain "fad" sale. Why does this discredit its merit? Why, in summary, does Mr. Lalley so hate Toynbee? One would profit more by serious criticism than by carping sarcasm.

WARD McCABE.
Cambridge, Mass.

There are two or three points in Mr. McCabe's letter that I think I should notice. One is his question why I hate Professor Toynbee. The answer is easy: I don't hate him, unless it is a case of nec amor sine odio. I once had the pleasure of an evening in his company and found him a most amiable and agreeable person. I have great respect for him as a writer and a profound awe of his learning.

This, I trust, will dispose of Mr. McCabe's assertion that I wished to suggest "that there is no merit at all in Toynbee's writings."

What I did suggest was that their merits, however immense, do not wholly explain his sudden and prodigious popularity. That the abridgment of A Study of History by Mr. Somervell had something to do with this popularity is too obvious to need discussion. It is incredible to me that 130,000 persons would suddenly and spontaneously have read through the six volumes of Professor Toynbee's work already published; even less credible that they would have been able and willing to pay $40.50 for the opportunity to do so.

I read the work myself by borrowing it, a volume at a time, from a public library. I might add that I was obliged to read it backward, because, while the later volumes were always available, the first was in constant reservation and I had to wait months for my turn.

May Day Echo

On a May Day about as long after World War I as this one was after World War II, Washington—under the stimulation of Attorney General Palmer—was having somewhat the same type of jitters that the Un-American Activities Committee is pulmotoring now.

The New York World then (as The Washington Post now) was skeptical of bogies. But the Red hunters foresaw a dire May Day which did not materialize. Next day the World printed at the top of its famous column of short items a strictly factual account of May Day events—viz, "Yesterday was May Day. The wind blew up the river."

Everglades Sanctuary

The Carolina parakeet was the United States' only native parrot. Folks still living remember the last flocks of this golden-headed little green parrot in the Florida Everglades. It is now extinct. It has gone the way of the dodo, the moa, the passenger pigeon, the great auk.

Now that the Everglades have become a national park, wanton slaughter of other rare birds will be prevented. This new national park is crammed with wonderful birds, trees, flowers. It is the only tropical park reachable by automobile from all 48 States. Nature study there, when a staff of Ranger naturalists is set up, will have a priceless educational value for the Nation's children.

High School Standards

The incident of the Brooklyn boys' shooting at a teacher, which was described in The Washington Post of April 30, brings to light a serious condition in our public high schools. In the name of "democracy" all young people are being forced to stay in school, and a large number of them reach high school with a poor foundation and no ability to learn the subjects offered in a regular high school.

Much has been said about the fact that teachers are leaving the teaching profession and new teachers are not entering the field because of low pay. An equally serious reason is the type of pupil personnel that the teachers are being asked to teach.

The policy under which teachers are forced to work is that a pupil must be passed without accomplishment because "he would gain nothing from repeating the course." When a student has reached the place where he cannot gain anything from taking the regular high schol courses, the time has come when he should be withdrawn from school or sent to a school to study some special subject that he can grasp. There are excellent vocational schools in the District of Columbia. We should like to have some preventive action taken that would forestall the possible repetition of the "Brooklyn incident" in our own city.

Civil Defense Program

The need for civil defense now is emphasized by recent happenings in Berlin, Vienna, and other parts of the world. In the last war the British had the protection of a civil defense program started in 1935. The Germans began their civil defense activities seven years before the war, and the Japanese were holding air raid drills even before 1931. Today our country has not put any civil defense measures into operation.

In March the Secretary of Defense established a temporary office of civil defense planning to prepare a plan for a new Federal civil defense agency and to formulate recommendations for legislation to set up the new agency. This work is, of course, necessary; but it will probably require many months for planning, passage of the legislation and establishment of the operating agency on a going basis. Meanwhile nothing is being done to bring to the civil population the security of the defense measures that are now possible.

Many of the means for civil defense could be given to the people immediately without new legislation and through existing Government facilities.

Types of civil security measures that could be taken now are illustrated by the following:

1. Based on information from the armed services and the Atomic Energy Commission, the Public Health Service could summarize the most probable civil medical hazards and supply authoritative information on the best means for dealing with them to local health officers and physicians.

2. Knowledge possessed by the Public Health Service, Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, Bureau of Mines, Division of Labor Standards, and other agencies could be drawn upon to prepare specifications for emergency medical supplies, food rations, and fire-fighting equipment which should be kept in homes, factories, etc. Manufacturers could be informed, and instructive literature could be prepared for distribution to the public.

3. The Federal Communications Commission could supply advice on voluntary emergency communications systems. The American Radio Relay League would doubtless cooperate in the immediate establishment of networks of amateur radio facilities.

4. If the military establishment and the Atomic Energy Commission thought it desirable, standardized methods and instruments for the detection of radioactive contamination of air, water and food could be worked out by the AEC and the Bureau of Standards and made available to science teachers in high schools and colleges and to technically qualified personnel of local governments over the country.

Sick Crisis In Family Life

By Malvina Lindsay

White House Diagnosis

THE DIAGNOSIS of the ailing American family to be made at the White House conference opening tomorrow will reveal many alarming symptoms. It will show family stability threatened by divorce, delinquency, illegitimacy, crowded living, economic fear, materialism, waning church influence, many other ills. When the consultation is ended, many will ask: Is there even a chance the patient will live? And nostalgic devotees of the "good old-fashioned home" will happily be making funeral arrangements.

Nevertheless, the doctors in the case, the 125 organizations sponsoring the conference, are determined the family shall survive. They hope to come up with some prescriptions that will help it through this latest sick crisis. They also have the assurance that their patient already has lived through a lot of change, challenge, sickness and threatened demise.

However, the family now is having to make one of its major historic adjustments to the tide of events. It has long been showing the effects of the national migration from farm to city life. More recently there has developed the flux of workers from city to city.

No longer do merely low-income workers move about in search of greener pastures. During and since the war scientists, engineers, technicians, skilled workers of all kinds have been moving more frequently as their services were needed in various places. The mobility of the population is constantly increasing. Further decentralization of industry will add to this. Families will find it more difficult to settle down and take root.

OTHER influences add to the instability of the family: inadequate housing, lack of privacy, the necessity for women to work outside the home, disappearance of the basic economic security that farm life gave, and now the dislocations and anxieties due to result from the armed state in which the Nation will probably live for a long time to come.

The family is also facing social adjustments within itself. Democracy is invading it just as it has been invading government and education. The old rural patriarchal pattern is passing, and this is being followed in many households with a condition of anarchy. Democratic organization of family life, with children given more cooperative and responsible roles, is needed, say sociologists, to fit in with the new urban-industrial pattern of living.

Also the family, if it is to be made rugged enough to hold its own, needs to be built on more solid ideals than the extreme sentimentalism fostered by romantic fiction and movies that has long played such an important part in American marriage.

SINCE THE Nation cannot go back to a rural economy, the family obviously cannot recapture its old physical stability. However, some of the "doctors" here for the conference believe much can be done by communities to clean up slums and to produce living quarters and services that will encourage families to establish permanent homes. They believe there are economic measures that can be taken to give families more security in employment, in decent income, and in the buying power of their dollars, and thus make it possible for them to plan ahead—which is the material basis at least of stable home life.

What the "sick" family mainly needs, though, is to find a way to keep its inner core of stability even though the outer shell be lacking. The experts gathered here have no simple formula for this. Their chief dependence is on education in social living, human adjustment and nonmaterial values. For the family of the future is likely to continue being small in size, living in a crowd, having its members scattered, being forced to move often, being subjected to the pressure of materialistic standards and social competition, and meeting other complexities of industrial life.

Whatever program is worked out by the conferring experts, who include physicians, psychiatrists, social workers and others, it will probably have as one of its major aims the helping of the mobile family of the future to make a home in the highest sense "wherever it hangs its hat."

Friends' Peace Plan

I have just read the May 1 letter from Mrs. Grace S. Yaukey advacating peace. First, she advises, "Begin peace talks now."

We need go no further. There have always been peace talkers and they are mainly responsible for us being always unprepared for war. They are the great softener-ups and leave us wide open to trouble which could have been averted had we been prepared.

Had America been ready, there would have been no World War I. Most people would agree to that. Most people who know and will admit facts, that is.

Had we been prepared for World War II there would have been no second world war. Believing that these peace preachers were more influential than they turned out to be, Hitler and Mussolini banked on America staying out of the war. If we are ready for war, there will be no World War III.

To me the greatest mystery about persons who preach peace is that they seem to spend their lives trying to stir up minority groups, and this is one of the prime causes of unrest leading to war. They wish us to leave the door of our Nation unlocked and hanging by one hinge.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Eisenhower Changes Clothes

THE SCRIPT of the Eisenhower drama beats anything that Hollywood could possibly dream up. We come now to the place that says, "Transition from military to civilian life."

Childs

Here is the solid red brick house on the edge of the parade ground at Fort Myer, Va. The view is off toward Washington in the misted distance. Here the Eisenhowers have lived during and since his tour of duty as Chief of Staff.

Outside, a line of soldiers stands in military formation. A band is playing. The general comes out briskly, with his wife at his side. They step into a waiting car. Slowly the car drives past the line of soldiers as the general stands at salute.

This is the end and the beginning. Few lives have been so crowded, so full of stress and strain and glory. Yet there is the suggestion that the new phase now beginning may unfold even greater drama.

The latest transition in Eisenhower's life takes place against a background of change and uncertainty on the world stage. That gives to it a symbolic importance above and beyond the human interest.

At the moment that he steps into a civilian role as president of Columbia University, the armed forces are in the middle of a grave crisis. Between the political pulling and hauling of an election year and the lack of any real unification of the armed services, confusion and uncertainty cloud the whole issue of defense and national security.

GENERAL EISENHOWER became Chief of Staff on November 19, 1945. While he was Chief of Staff, the Army dwindled in strength to its present inadequacy.

How much, if any, of the blame for this rests on Eisenhower can be determined only in the longer judgment of history. But it is a fact that, both within the services and among some thoughtful civilians in the country, the question of Eisenhower's responsibility is being raised.

The vital issue of adequate manpower for the services should have been pressed much earlier, go the criticism goes. The Chief of Staff should have taken this issue to the Congress and to the country. If he had made a sufficiently forceful and persistent appeal, the country would at least have been prepared for the crisis when it came. There would have been a backlog of opinion to support the emergency measures now called for.

This criticism seems to me essentially unfair. While Eisenhower might have spoken out more forcefully, he could not have stemmed the tide of American reaction against all things military. It was the inevitable reaction of a peace-loving nation after the fearful impact of the greatest war in history.

EISENHOWER is not a superman, as both his critics and his idolators imply. Aware of his own limitations, the general has been deeply disturbed by the superman aspect of the Eisenhower presidential boom. He saw in it the symptom of a troubled time, with people looking for some magical way out of the harsh dilemma of the present. And no one could know better than General Eisenhower, who has seen so many men tried and tested, that the solution does not lie in any single individual.

But when all this has been said, the situation faced by Eisenhower's successor as Chief of Staff remains a grim reality. Gen. Omar N. Bradley will have to try to make up for the deficiencies of the past two years. He will have to cope with the inadequacies of our present military establishment.

If Congress produces an ineffectual substitute for the draft, as now seems likely, then it is Bradley who will have to try to find a way to piece out what he is given. He inherits the accumulated troubles of the effort to adjust to peace in a world in which peace seems highly uncertain.

There must have been a moment, as he said goodby to his former chief, when Bradley felt a twinge of envy. In recent weeks he has had time to realize the size of his burden.

Yet General Bradley is a strong and resolute soldier. His is a great opportunity as well as a great burden. He is entirely different in temperament from his predecessor. Quiet, persistent, patient, he has none of Ike's flair for the dramatic.

Without Eisenhower in the national scene, Washington will seem a little strange. Actually, of course, he has merely changed settings. And the next page of the script may see the college president in a role as dramatic as any that he has yet assumed. Philadelphia and the political conventions are just over the horizon.

Other Devices Being Studied As Substitutes for Covenants

Realty Men Expect Rule to Have Little Effect on Prices

What is happening to Washington real estate—and what is likely to happen—as a result of Monday's Supreme Court decision rendering racial covenants unenforceable?

One thing was certain: procovenant and anticovenant forces agreed yesterday that racial covenants are all but dead in the District's settled areas.

Other devices—some of them in use for years here—immediately drew the attention of those who want to choose their neighbors. They are:

1. The property "club." Under this kind of arrangement, a group of homeowners forms an organization complete with by-laws, perhaps even a common interest like golf. Then, to own one of the homes in the club, a prospective member must meet the qualifications the club sees fit to adopt. Such a setup is the Manor Country Club, about 6 miles north of Silver Spring on Georgia ave. extended. This device, real estate men point out, is best suited to new development and hardly workable in a settled area.

Burleith Area Covenant

2. A covenant that would automatically release the agreeing parties as soon as one of them breaks it by selling his house to a family considered "undesirable" in the neighborhood. The Burleith neighborhood, roughly from 35th to 39th sts. and north of Reservoir rd., has this clause in a covenant covering houses there. Again, it was suggested, it would be difficult to obtain 100 per cent particiaption in such a scheme in long-settled sectors.

3. A convenant providing that its subscribers put up a bond, to be forfeited by any home owner who sells in violation of the covenant. In this plan financial inability enters to render it unlikely of success.

4. Numerous other convenant-type methods that would minimize the chances of having to go to court to insure that the neighborhood is kept homogeneous in one way or another.

Little Effect on Prices

The Supreme Court, in its 6 to 0 decision, said that while people have the right to make and keep any kind of agreement among themselves, the courts of the land are forbidden to enfore agreements that are unconstitutional.

What effect of the decision on real estate prices?

Very little, it was agreed by men in the business. It was clear that in areas where covenants against Negroes already were broken, the Supreme Court ruling would cause some white families still in the area to sell their homes, feeling they are no longer bound to the covenant.

This is happening already in the 100 block of Bryant st. nw., where about eight white families remain. Those who are selling expressed fear they would get less now than the actual value of their homes.

Little Movement Expected

Particularly because of the lack of housing today, little movement is expected soon.

The decisions had its repercussions in Government, too. Dr. Frank Horne, assistant to the administrator of the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency, said he would hurry back here from a New York conference last night to attend to the administrative changes he thinks will be necessary.

One of the questions the overall Federal Housing Agency must answer, Horne said, is whether it will extend credit now to new construction that is covenanted.

Horne said he hoped that in the long run the court's ruling might open the housing market to Negroes or members of other minority groups who can afford better housing and are suited to the higher intellectual and financial life of their majority-group neighbors.

Democrats Study Bolt On Truman

Columbia, S. C., May 4 (AP). South Carolina Democrats looked today to possibilities of further court action against them and a split with the national party.

Reorganized in biennial county meetings yesterday, they made varying recommendations to the May 19 State convention to which they selected delegates.

United States court action threatened against the party by Chairman John H. McCray of the Progressive (Negro) Democrats after the Dillon convention refused to seat eight Negroes elected as delegates.

State executive committee chairman William P Baskin said at the Lee County convention that the State would vote Republican if the Democratic party nominated President Truman and if the Republican nominee "is a statesman and holds views favorable to the South."

It was on Baskin's order limiting county delegates to enrolled Democrats that the Dillon convention refused to seat the Negroes.

House Backs South's Joint School Plan

The House yesterday voted 236 to 45 to approve the plans of 15 Southern States to set up jointly supported regional schools.

The Senate has not yet voted on the question.

The compact was signed by 15 Southern Governors at Tallahassee, Fla., last February 8.

Representative Sam Hobbs (D., Ala.) told the House the plan will permit the South to establish badly needed graduate professional schools for both whites and Negroes.

"This will permit us to do collectively what none of our Southern States can do individually," he said.

But Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.) opposed the compact on the ground that a favorable vote "places the congressional stamp of approval on segregation in education."

Representative Kenneth B. Keating (R., N. Y.) offered an amendment to say specifically that Congress did not intend to condone segregation. The resolution was defeated after backers said it was unnecessary.

Court Voiding of Racial Bans Held Also to Cover Creeds

By The Associated Press

The Justice Department said yesterday that the Supreme Court ruling against agreements which bar Negroes from white neighborhoods also throws out such agreements directed against religious groups.

The court referred specifically to that when private individuals make that kind of private agreement, they may not ask either a State or Federal court to help in their enforcement. The court ruled that such restrictive agreements are not illegal in themselves, provided they are carried out by voluntary means alone.

The court referred specifically to such agreements or restrictive covenants based on race and color. This raised a question whether the action also extended to groups, such as Jews, who might be excluded from an area because of their creed.

In response to questions on this point, Justice Department lawyers said yesterday:

"It is the opinion of the Department of Justice that the rulings of the Supreme Court in the racial restrictive covenant cases, although the issues immediately before the court affected restrictions based on race and color, are applicable with equal force to similar agreements based on creed."

Department attorneys called attention to a footnote in the Supreme Court opinion which said "restrictive agreements of the sort involved in these cases have been used to exclude other than Negroes from the ownership or occupancy of real property. We are informed that such agreements have been directed against Indians, Jews, Chinese, Japanese, Mexicans, Hawaiians, Puerto Ricans and Filipinos, among others."

The Supreme Court opinion was criticized sharply yesterday by two Mississippi Democratic Congressmen in speeches to the House.

Representative Williams declared the ruling "did more to bring about a revival of the Ku Klux Klan in the United States than anything done in the last 40 years." Representative Rankin called it a victory for the Communists.

Baffling Baltimore Bruces Identified in Easy Lesson

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Second only in complexity to American foreign policy and the ERP, is the problem of the Bruces, who are mixed up in them.

To aid in a solution, The Washington Post offers herewith the BRP, Bruse Reidentificaton Pointers.

The Bruce

The difficulties lies in the fact that there are three Bruces, all from Baltimore or thereabouts, all Democrats, all political figures and none exactly starving to death. They all belong to the Elkridge Club in Baltimore and get each others' bar checks.

First, there is James Bruce, Ambassador to Argentina. He was born in Baltimore in 1892, the son of the late Senator William Cabell Bruce. He had some diplomatic experience in Italy and the Balkans in 1919, was vice president of the Chase National Bank and the National Dairy Products Co. and director of many industrial corporations. He was confirmed as Ambassador on July 11, 1947.

Second, there is David Kirkpatrick Este Bruce, brother of James. He is Assistant Secretary o Commerce, but it is no secret that he will soon resign to becom an assistant to W. Averell Harriman, the roving ERP Ambassador He was born in 1898, served in two wars, was in the diplomatic ervice, and in both the Maryland and Virginia Legislatures. He was once a son-in-law of the late Andrew Mellon.

Third, there is Howard Brue, first cousin to the preceding Bruces, who is deputy to Paul G. Hoffman, economic cooperation administrator. He was born n Richmond in 1879, but lives near Baltimore. He was a banker, chairman of the board of the Worthington Pump Co. and director of s many industrial corporations as his cousin James.

Fourth, there was Rober the Bruce, King of Scotland, from whom all other Bruces clain to be descended. Robert, in turn, was descended from seven peceding Roberts, the first having come to England with William te Conquerer. Robert the Bruce ate haggis and died. He wa a supporter of William Wallace, who may have been an ancestor of Henry A. Wallace. Henry A. Wallace has almost nothing to do wit American foreign policy and the ERP.

This makes everything clear.

Realism Etches French Whodunit

By Richard L. Coe

IN "JENNY LAMOUR," the Dupont has a fine, engrossing French crime film.

It is not so concerned with whodunit, as with who might have done it. Its background is the lively, racy world of second-rate Paris music halls. Its people are immensely real, all of them individuals, not types.

A theatrical producer is murdered. Jealous of the dead man's apparent hold over his wife, a young man hopelessly implicates himself in the eyes of the police. The wife thinks she herself killed the man. A pretty blond photographer implicates herself in an effort to protect one of them.

Director Henri-George Clouzot unravels the web which enmeshes them with a brilliant eye for detail. His people are the tawdry lesser folk of the Parisian entertainment world and the inspectors of the Quai des Orfevres—the Paris equivalent of London's Scotland Yard. By the purposeful indirectness he builds up to a finale that may seem contrived to the unthinking. But all along the way he is dropping clues as to the actual facts, emphasizing the terror of those who seem guilty but are innocent.

The film opens with a lilting song which carries Jenny up a few rungs on her ambitious climb. The director's handling of this introductory detail is almost refreshingly inventive compared with the same sort of number one finds in the Hollywood musical epics. His scenes of theater life—backstage and out front—are varied and true, recalling Emil Janning's old "Variety" and Edmund Golding's recent "A Double Life."

In the characters the film is at its best. The husband is no pretty boy, just an ordinary, balding, youngish man who would hardly tempt any of our West Coast pretties to the point of marriage. Jenny herself is a volatile, ambitious creature. Too anxious to get along to consider hurting her husband much of a cost, she gets herself into the situation which leads her, she thinks, to murder. The inner torture of the lady photographer is subtly expressed, both through her willingness to implicate herself and through the camera's suggestions.

A Beautiful Suzy

The detective, admirably played by Louis Jouvet, is decisively limned as a veteran of the Foreign Legion, whose adventures there gave him a dark-skinned son who is the joy of his life. His impassioned plea to his various suspects to come clean about their doings for the general good, is tautly delivered and would please any follower of the "Crime Does Not Pay" series.

The time is Paris of the present, the Paris of rationing, of cold rooms and the black market. These are not dramatized; they are simply part of the situation. Through all the jarring inconveniences, people live and do their work, struggling along even with a murder in their midst. Both people and setting have a worn but engrossingly real appearance. And through it all—particularly with the memory of its charming beginning—Jenny Lamour continues her singing. Suzy Delair is a real charmer in this part.

Instead of running over to Paris yourself for the weekend, you'll get a slice of today's boulevard life by the far simpler means of dropping in on "Jenny Lamour" at the Dupont.

SIBYL BOWAN, the liveliest of the lady mimics, will be back headlining the Capitol stage beginning Thursday after a long, long absence . . . Since the merry Bowan was here last she's been playing in Europe, the South Pacific, the Philippines, Japan and Australia, the first trips for USO, the last heading her own revue . . . Like many visitors, Sib's running into trouble . . . Can't get herself a room at any hotel and needs a place to lay her head tonight for that early Thursday rehearsal on F st.

JOHN MASON BROWN may not have seen two or three of the latest Broadway exhibits, but he's bound to have some titivating things to say about this season in the theater when he makes his annual talk this afternoon at 4 at the Mayflower for the Frontier Nursing Service . . . All the ladies in town, including Mrs. Truman, seem to have reserved for this session with Kentucky's gift to the theater and the comic-strip haters.

Insurance Company Accused of Fraud

Chicago, May 4 (U.P.).—An insurance company and two agencies were indicted today on charges of using the mails to defraud in the Nation-wide sale of hospitalization and accident policies.

A special Federal grand jury returned a 30-count indictment against the Northern Trust Life Insurance Co., Aurora, Ill., the All-America Insurance Agency and the Nation-Wide Insurance Service.

Two officers of Northern Trust Life, President Vaughn V. Moore and Secretary Eberhard A. Wilmsen, also were indicted.

The indictment charged that from 1945 to 1946, the company rejected 87 per cent of all claims.

Benefits paid averaged only $34, the indictment charged, despite the fact that policyholders were led to believe through literature and advertising that they would get "substantial" protection.

During the period, the indictment said, the company took in $200,000 in collections.

Case Dismissed Against Steele, Realty Broker

Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy yesterday dismissed four charges of real estate law violations against Larry O. Steele, real estate broker.

Steele, who has offices at 927 15th st. nw., was charged with making "simulated" sales, intended to "mislead and defraud" persons in two transactions, and with "knowingly" paying an unlicensed broker, identified as Jerome Clarke, a commission in the deal.

Judge Raedy ruled that since the sellers had received the full price agreed on, there was no fraud or simulation. Steele told the court he had placed Jerome Clarke's name on the sales contract by mistake instead of the name of Clarke's brother, Morris, a licensed broker. Both have offices next door to each other at 909 and 911 st. nw., he said.

Another charge that Steele did business with Clarke in the sale of another piece of property was taken under advisement Monday by the District Real Estate Commission.

Former Client Sues Lawyer Over $6450

Mrs. Anna Keleher, 38, through Attorney James Laughlin, yesterday asked District Court to order Charles E. Ford, her former lawyer, to return $6450 of her money, which she alleges he converted to his own use.

The brief declared Ford took the cash on February 25, 1946, but gives no details of the alleged conversion.

Mrs. Keleher is in New York and was unavailable for comment. Ford said he could not comment until she released him from a lawyer's privilege. He said only that he had been her attorney for several years.

Mrs. Keleher, who lives at the Woodley Park Towers, has two other suits pending in District Court. In 1947 she asked District Court to grant her a limited divorce from her husband, John B. Keleher, 68, of the Hotel 2400.

Baby Issue In Wiley Case

Camille Nowicki, 34-year-old former congressional secretary, testified in District Court yesterday that the family of Harvey W. Wiley, jr., tried to arrange "some sort of compromise" settlement out of court.

She told a jury of 10 men and 2 women, in the final day of testimony in her $150,000 breach-of-promise action against the son of the late pure food champion, that it was also suggested her child be placed for adoption.

"Not my baby," Miss Nowicki declared she told Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews, lawyer for the Wileys. "I said that my baby had a father and mother and we were going to take care of it."

Miss Nowicki, on the stand as a rebuttal witness, "emphatically" denied having had relations with a Hollywood writer, about which Wiley had testified she told him, and insisted that Wiley was the father of her child.

Robert Kreisinger of 2324 41st st. nw., an "office employe" at the Soviet Embassy, testified Wiley appeared "sober" and "rather happy" in Miss Nowicki's company following an embassy party November 7, 1945. That's the night Miss Nowicki claims her child was conceived, but Wiley testified he'd drunk so many vodkas and bourbons it was difficult for him to recall just what happened.

In closing arguments to the jury, Defense Counsel Arthur Hilland described Miss Nowicki as a girl with "vast experience." He said she is "smart and resourceful" and that Wiley, now a real estate salesman, was no match for her in intellectual attainment.

The issue, Hilland declared, is whether Wiley promised to marry Miss Nowicki, not whether she was seduced by him.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive

Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduces the red-blood strength—and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

The election was held at the Berwyn Heights Firehouse.

House Votes To Pay Sailors' Spree Damage

By the United Press

The House agreed yesterday that a sailor has to relax when he gets ashore.

In that tolerant spirit, the lawmakers voted to pay a $1000 damage bill run up by the boys of the USS PCS 1378 while they were relaxing in Tampa, Fla., one night back in October, 1946.

It was a good party, too, according to the official Navy version presented to the House. Some of the sailors got so high they thought they were steeplejacks.

They tried to climb a big marble statue of a Confederate soldier that the Daughters of the Confederacy had raised in Tampa. The statue toppled over and shattered.

The Daughters figured it would cost them $1000 to replace the statue and they filed a claim against the Navy. The Navy passed the claim on to Congress.

It will be paid if the Senate feels the same way about sailors as the House does.

Circus Elephane Trainer Must Be More Gentle

New York, May 4 (NYHT)—Hugo Schmidt, who is in charge of the elephant herd of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, was advised today by Magistrate William E. Ringel to be "more gentle" in handling elephants.

The magistrate made the suggestion when he dismissed a complaint brought by Raymond J. Mulligan, local agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Mulligan charged Schmidt had beaten an elephant at a rehearsal in the Madison Square Garden arena.

Nazi Sentenced to Die

The Hague, May 4 (U.P.).—Former Nazi Gen. Hans Albin Rauter, police chief of the Netherlands during the occupation, was sentenced to death today for crimes including murder and kidnaping.

Scrap Reciprocal Trade Law, Grange Head Tells Congress

The National Grange yesterday opposed renewal of the reciprocal trade law, saying it "has worked to the disadvantage of the farmer."

Albert S. Goss, grange master, laid the farm organization's views before a House Ways and Means Subcommittee considering legislation to continue the reciprocal trade policies.

Instead of the present law, he proposed creation of a tariff commission to recommend changes in rates. These would become effective unless Congress vetoed them.

Goss appeared at a closed session. Copies of his statement were distributed later.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall will testify today. He is expected to back up President Truman's request for renewal of the trade act. The law permits the State Department to lower tariffs for other nations which agree to bring down trade barriers against United States goods.

London Acclaims Movie of 'Hamlet' With Olivier

London, May 4 (AP).—London critics today acclaimed Laurence Olivier's movie version of "Hamlet" as a great film.

But they agreed that Olivier's liberties with the text—he omits entire speeches, transposes others and alters the order of action—will stir a controversy.

Sing Like Bing, Ride Like Arcaro and You're a Celebrity

With Shirley Povich

SO YOU WANNA be a Celebrity and get yourself invited to play in The Washington Post's National Celebrities Golf Tournament May 16, at the Columbia Country Club? That's easy. Hist! Just sing the Nation's songs better than anybody else, like Bing Crosby does, and you'll be a celebrity and get invited. Of if you can't carry a note but weigh under 115, find yourself a career riding four Derby winners like Eddie Arcaro, and they can't keep you out of the tournament. He's in.

POVICH

If you have no talent for music or horseback, don't be dismayed. Just get yourself a job as Chief of Staff of the United States Army and graduate to Secretary of State, and devise a plan to revitalize Europe with 5½ billion bucks, like Mr. George C. Marshall, and you can tee off at Columbia on May 16.

In fact, you don't even have to be the Secretary of State. If you merely make Chief of Staff of the Army, like Gen. Omar Bradley did, you're a celebrity, but it helps if you've driven the German armies out of France and then licked 'em on their home grounds like the general did as a warm-up for his current job.

A CABINET JOB IS a nice way to qualify, though. Attorney General Tom Clark is in, after getting two contempt convictions against John L. Lewis. And if you don't have a law degree, get a job as a mail carrier and work yourself up to Postmaster General like Jesse Donaldson did recently, and they'll invite you.

It's easier to be a celebrity now, since the merger of the armed forces that opened up separate jobs for the Army, Navy and Air Departments. Kenneth Royall has made it as Secretary of the Army; Stewart Symington, as Secretary of Air is in, and Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan, naturally. Get yourself a nice Navy education and the job of Chief of Naval Operations like Admiral Lewis Denfeld, and you're a cinch.

Or make friends with President Truman and get him to appoint you Chief of National Defense, and avoid trouble with the Senate confirmation people, and you're in like James Forrestal. Your invitation will be in the next mail, if you can get yourself elected Commissioner of Baseball on a 7-year contract at $50,000 per annum, like Albert B. Chandler. He's a celebrity.

There's another way. Get your father elected Vice President of the United States and wait for him to inherit the Presidency, and you're in like Margaret Truman. In fact the tournament is wide open for the distaff side. Do everything better than every other babe, like Babe Didrikson has done, and like Didrikson you'll be there. Or merely play nice golf like Betty Jameson, and they'll let you tee off with Didrikson.

THERE'S EVEN A simpler approach for the girls. Merely go out and get yourself selected as Miss America like Barbara Jo Walker did last summer, and we'll be seeing you in the 1949 Celebrities Tournament next season. Or get to be a top band leader like Fred Waring, or go draw yourself a Joe Palooka strip like Ham Fisher, and they can't keep you out.

Go author yourself a Taft-Hartley labor bill and run for President on the Republican ticket, and they'll announce you at the first tee like they will announce Senator Robert Taft on May 16. In fact, you don't even have to draft a labor bill or get elected to the Senate to get in. Just make a strong fight for the Republican nomination and win some delegates in Taft's home State, and you're in like Harold Stassen is.

If your taste doesn't run to politics, get yourself appointed President of Columbia University and the title of retired General of the Army, and say you don't want to run for the Presidency of the United States, and like Ike Eisenhower you can't be overlooked. As a celebrity on three counts he is entitled to three balls off the first tee.

THERE ARE A HUNDRED ways to make it. Build the Nation's biggest hotels and buy the New York Yankees, and you're a celebrity like Del Webb. Or write a top newspaper column and do some hit movies and you're up there, like Bob Considine. Or get to be a handsome fellow like Harry Parr, who is president of the Maryland Jockey Club and plays golf with the Duke of Windsor, and you're equally in.

Or win everything in sight on the golf tours like Byron Nelson and you'll be invited. Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen got in that way, too. You don't have to be a golfer. Being a Congressional big shot like Senators Scott Lucas and J. William Fulbright, and Congressmen Leslie Arends and George Smathers helps.

Go out and steal more bases than any other man in history, or win the batting championship for umpteen years in a row, or play center field like nobody else could, or be a character of the pitching mound. You'll be a celebrity like Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Dizzy Dean. They made it. Or if your name is Harry Stuhldreher, Jim Crowley, Elmer Layden or Don Miller, and you were one of Notre Dame's immortal Four Horsemen, we'll be seeing you on the first tee, 'cause they'll be there.

Joost's Homer in 10th Beats Indians, 8-6

Philadelphia, May 4 (AP).—The hustling Philadelphia Athletics moved closer to the first place Cleveland Indians in the American League today thanks to Eddie Joost.

Joost banged a two-run tenth inning homer to give the A's a 8-6 victory over the Indians in Philadelphia. The Indians, who started the campaign with six straight wins, now have lost three in a row and lead the Athletics by only 52 percentage points.

Charley Wensloff, fifth Cleveland pitcher, was the victim of Joost's game-winning blow, his first hit of the game. Workhorse Lou Brissie, fifth Philadelphia pitcher, received credit for the win.

Brissie stopped the Indians without a hit in the last three innings after the Tribe had collected 12 off his four predecessors including Ed Robinson's fourth homer of the year in the second.

The Athletics piled up a 6-3 lead going into the sixth when the Indians rallied and tied the score after two were out at the expense of relief pitchers Charley Harris and Bob Savage.

With one down in the tenth, Pete Suder singled to start the winning rally. Wensloff struck out Brissie for the second out and then Joost parked a pitch into the upper deck in left for the game.

The victory enabled the A's to remain a half game ahead of the third-place New York Yankees who tripped the St. Louis Browns, 6-1, at the Yankee Stadium.

Shea Beats Browns, 6-1, For Yankees

New York, May 4 (AP).—With Frank (Spec) Shea going the distance for the first time this year, the New York Yankees opened their home stand against Western teams in fine style today by defeating the St. Louis Browns, 6-1.

Shea, in registering his first victory of the year, allowed only four hits but continued to be plagued by wildness, walking seven.

Slaughter's Homer in 8th Beats Bums

St. Louis, May 4 (AP).—Enos Slaughter broke up his batting slump with an eighth inning home run—the margin of victory in the St. Louis Cardinals' 5-to-4 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers before 27,768 fans tonight.

The Brooklyn club rallied briefly in the top of the ninth but Al Brazle pitched himself out of danger after just one run came in.

Hoya Hurdler Breaks Mark

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

Maryland Dominates AAU Track as 7 Records Fall

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Seven meet records were set last night as the University of Maryland won the District of Columbia A.A.U. Track and Field championships at College Park.

Except for the relays, all track events were run off at the same metric distances used in the Olympic games. The meet served as a warmup for the A.A.U. qualifying games which will take place in Chicago sometime next month. Proceeds taken in yesterday go toward covering expenses of the United States Olympic Team.

Howard University, competing in the annual meet for the first time, set three of the new records, and took second place with 35¾ points. Georgetown, Quantico and Cardozo High trailed with 35, 16 and 10¼ points.

Maryland dominated the 15-event meet by taking six firsts and six seconds. However, the Terps were party to only one record-breaking performance. That was turned in by Southern Conference 440-yard champion, Ed Matthews.

Put On Speed

Matthews was pocketed in the first turn, but gained in the back stretch to come home in 0:48.8, bettering by a full second the mark set by Gayle McGuigan of Catholic University in 1942.

Marcellus Boston, national scholastic sprint champion from Cardozo, won the 100-meter sprint over Bruce Anderson of Howard in 0:10.8, tying the 14-year-old record of Maryland's Earl Widemeyer. Boston pulled a leg muscle as he crossed the finish line and couldn't compete in the 200 meter.

Billy Mitchell, Georgetown's giant 6-foot 3-inch, 215-pounder, set a meet standard when he galloped over the 110-meter high hurdles in 0:14.6, a full second faster than the 15-year-old record of Grover Everett of Virginia.

Helped to 2 Marks

Jim Bruce, District's 2-mile indoor champion from Howard, had a hand in the breaking of two records. The German-majoring sophomore scooted past Maryland's Bob Palmer on the third lap to win the grueling 1500-meter race in 4:02.5. The old record was 4:14.0, first set by Vincent McDonald of Catholic U. in 1942.

Bruce ran the 880-yard anchor on Howard's 1-mile sprint medley team. With John Lassiter, Booker Anderson and Cliff Lee preceding him, Bruce brought the baton across the line in 3:39.6. Maryland held the former mark of 3:44.2, set last year.

Earl Sande Is Suspended For 60 Days

New York, May 4 (AP). — Earl Sande, facing Federal grand jury action on a charge of illegally possessing narcotics, was handed a 60-day suspension today by the Jockey Club.

Under the suspension, the famous one-time jockey, now an owner and trainer of horses, is denied admission to the grounds of any track under the jurisdiction of the turf's ruling body. This includes all the major racing plants in the country.

Sande was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edward E. Fay yesterday after U. S. Attorney J. Vincent Keogh said one of his horses was found to have been drugged when it won a race at Jamaica April 21.

The Jockey Club's stewards, meeting today to study the case, suspended Sande's foreman, Eugene Donaldson, and a groom, Francis Booth, for 30 days.

The Jockey Club made one concession in Sande's case. A statement said if, as a result of the setdown, Sande finds it necessary to dispose of any of his horses, he will be allowed on the track to make the sale.

The stewards also disqualified the win scored by Sande's horse, Big Stage, in the third race at Jamaica April 21. The $4000 purse was ordered forfeited and redistributed.

The specific Federal charge against Sande is that he failed to register the fact he possessed morphine and failed to pay a tax on it. Conviction calls for a penalty of two to five years in prison.

Bill Veeck Goes Under Knife Again

Cleveland, May 4 (AP).—Surgeons took another inch off the right leg of President Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians today and described the operation as "satisfactory."

That was the third amputation of the leg.

Nats, Chisox Tie, 3-3; Rain Halts Game

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

After losing five in a row, the Nats were fit to be tied last night and they were, 3-3, by the White Sox.

Rain stopped it after five innings, making it official as far as the front office and record books were concerned, but leaving 5086 Griffith Stadium dues payers undecided as to which of the two second division teams was weaker.

The Chicagoans got two runs just in time—in the top of the fifth, to avoid defeat. With two strikes on him and two away, Tony Lupien fouled off Sid Hudson's next pitch, but stroked the following delivery into centerfield for a single to drive in the tying run.

Hudson and the Nats had a 3-1 lead going into the fifth, but they came out of it wet and tied. Just before Lupien brought Don Kolloway home, Kolloway had reached Hudson for a single to score Cass Michaels, who had walked.

Some Consolation

Even though they didn't win, the Nats shouldn't feel too bad about what happened last night. At least they didn't lose to the White Sox, who beat them the first nine times the teams met last year.

With a bit better luck, the Nats would have won. They got 10 hits off Joe Haynes, while Hudson yielded only four. Hudson walked three, however, and it cost him two runs.

Mickey Vernon and Tom McBride constituted 60 per cent of the Nat offensive, sharing six hits between them. Vernon's collection included a double, which chased Gil Coan home with the first Nat run in the opening inning.

Coan reached first when Haynes dropped Lupien's throw of his drag bunt. But Gil didn't linger there long as Vernon pickled the first pitch down the right field line and Coan did a "Citation" around the base paths to beat the throw to the plate with plenty to spare.

Whiff Stops It

McBride followed with the first of his three singles and Vernon became run No. 2. Leon Culbertson, who interrupted two enterprising Nat sprees, halted that one by striking out.

The Chisox were hitless for 2 2/3 innings, but they put together their first hit—a single by Haynes, Al Kozar's error on Kolloway's side-retiring grounder and two walks to get their first run in the third.

A single by Johnny Sullivan, who sparkled afield, Evans' fielder's choice and a safe bunt by Hudson in the fourth set the stage for the third and last Nat run. Eddie Yost moved it across by driving into a double play.

After Coan had grounded out, Vernon and McBride singled in succession, but once again Culberson quelled the uprising by smacking into a Luke Appling-to-Lupien double play.

Bosox Win Third in Row, Beat Tigers

Boston, May 4 (AP).—Boston's Red Sox today made it three victories in a row for the first time this season by defeating the Detroit Tigers, 6-3, before 17,316 fans.

The victory, first of the season for Dave Ferriss who worked the first six innings, boosted the Sox ahead of the Tigers into the American League's fifth place.

A four-run blast in the sixth inning, sparked by Wally Moses' pinch single and capped by Vern Stephen's lusty two-run triple to right center, practically assured the Sox triumph.

Al Weill Sued By N. Y. Club

New York, May 4 (U.P.).—Al Weill, fight manager, was sued for $4000 allegedly owed the Twentieth Century Club today.

Weill claimed he never borrowed money from the club but the debt had been incurred from an advance of $9000 which Promoter Mike Jacobs had made him in 1946.

The manager said that part of the debt had since been repaid and that he owned Twentieth Century only $3000 and not $4000.

Dr. Almac Loses Place To Bovard

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., May 4.—Three-year-olds, the majority scared out of the Kentucky Derby by Citation, battled it out today in the Ral Parr Stakes, a $7500 added test that was formerly known as the Rennert Handicap.

Bomar Stable's Piet proved best of the never-saw-Louisville group when he carried top weight of 124 pounds to a convincing victory. Two lengths behind the Detroit-owned colt came S. W. Labrot, jr.'s, Bovard to be second, a head in advance of Mrs. J. V. Stewart's Dr. Almac.

Piet was making his 1948 debut and the majority of bettors in a crowd of 11,000 were not sure of his condition and installed the more seasoned Dr. Almac as the favorite. Piet returned a $8.80 mutuel.

Time Far Off

Although the sun shone intermittently and there was a strong wind, the track was slow and Piet's time of 1:14 3/5 was the worst since the race was first conducted at six furlongs in 1923. Piet, carrying 124 pounds and giving weight to all his 3-year-old rivals, jumped to the front soon after the break and stayed there. Dr. Almac weakened from trying to run with him and Bovard, off slowly, rallied to take the place money in the stretch run.

The victory was worth $6445 to Piet, winner of $93,360 last year. His 1947 successes included a triumph in Laurel's Spalding Lowe Jenkins, which brought a memorable three-nose photo finish. Piet edged out Big If which was a snoot ahead of Big Dial.

Mrs. J. M. Sturgeon 3rd's Silver Run went to the front at the break, withstood a variety of challenges and won the day's steeplechase by two and a half lengths. Mrs. E. L. Holton's Abidale was second and a length in front of Mrs. C. E. Adams' Gift of Gold.

$13.20 Mutuel

Silver Run paid $13.20 and went the two miles over 15 fences in 4:06 3/5. Isador Bieber's Ahmisk was installed the favorite and finished a weary fourth.

Paper Cutter forced Silver Run's pace early while Abidable gave the front-runner chief competition in the closing stages. Some excitement was lent to the race by Jockey R. S. McDonald, who lost his stirrups while riding bridle spur at the third fence. The plucky youngster, however, kept trying and finally bounced off at the 12th.

Bogley Wins Two Matches

Gil Bogley of Landon School won two matches yesterday to advance to the semifinals of the Sidwell Friends Invitation Tennis Tournament on the Friends' School courts.

JUNIOR DIVISION

Bogley (Landon) defeated Miles (St. Alban's), 6—0, 6—2. Quarterfinals—Bogley defeated Stover (Landon), 6—3, 6—2.

BOYS' DIVISION

Quarterfinals—Rogers (Landon) defeated Lane (Georgetown Prep) 6—2, 6—0. Bradford (Alice Deal) defeated Olmsted (Landon), 6—1, 6—1. Coes (Friends) defeated Pearson, 6—1, 6—2.

Da Preem Leader Against 'Panzers'

Primo Carnera's gang will spot the faltering Panzer Division one human tank in the wrestling feature at Turner's Arena tonight. Six Panzers are pitted against Carnera, Jesse James of Washington, Benito Gardini of Brooklyn, George Flynn of Boston and Marvin Mercer of Chicago.

Three Tie for Blind Bogey Prize at Manor

Mrs. Flora Nooter, Mrs. Karl Veley and Mrs. Warren Beck tied for the first prize in the Ladies Day nine-hole blind bogey tournament yesterday at Manor.

Mrs. Nooter shot 52-11—41; Mrs. Veley had 54-13—41, and Mrs. Beck a 57-16—41. Guest prize was won by Mrs. Harry Kipp of Indian Spring, who scored 54-14—40.

Catholic Pulls Upset, Beats Hoyas, 5 to 3

Even Georgetown's top pitcher couldn't stop a determined three-run outburst by Catholic U. in the eighth, and the Cardinals surprised the heavily-favored visitors, 5-3, yesterday at Brookland.

Georgetown called on Tommy Flynn after C. U. loaded the bases with none out. The Hoyas' ace right-hander walked Billy Connelly to force in the tying run and Ned Cousey singled to score Joe Hallissey and Jack Walsh came in when Right Fielder Frank Alagia booted the ball around.

Catholic U., leading the Mason-Dixon Conference, now has a record of 7-2. The loss was only Georgetown's fourth against 13 victories and a tie.

G. W. Beats Ft. Belvoir in Ninth, 7 to 6

Fort Belvoir's Jeff Jeffries fanned 13 George Washington batsmen yesterday, but was a victim of poor support with the Colonials winning out in the ninth, 7-6, and snapping the soldiers' nine-game winning streak at Fort Belvoir.

The losers made seven errors and the winning run came home on a passed ball charged to Catcher Cap Mikelonis. With two out in the ninth, two runs came across when Rennie threw wildly after fielding Pitcher Pete King's grounder. Then Mikelonis permitted King to score with the deciding run.

5 Congressmen Renominated In Maryland; Meade Defeated

Conclusive but not quite complete Maryland election returns last night showed that Maryland voters renominated five of the State's six Congressmen.

Sole incumbent turned aside by by his own party was Second District Representative Hugh A. Meade of Baltimore. He lost to State Senator William P. Bolton of Towson. Unofficial returns with but two of 419 precincts unported gave Bolton 24,814 votes to Mead's 23,288 for the Democratic nomination.

Democratic incumbents, Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer of Upper Marlboro, dean of the Maryland delegation in Congress, and Representative George H. Fallon of Baltimore won easily.

Sasscer, with nine years of House service behind him, polled 16,104 votes to 4946 for his sole opponent, George Sachse, Glen Burnie lawyer and tobacco grower.

Republican incumbents, Representatives J. Glenn Beall of Frostburg, seeking his fourth term in Congress, and Edward T. Miller, Easton attorney, were unopposed for renomination. Representative Edward Garmatz, of Baltimore, Democratic incumbent from the Third District defeated Baltimore City Councilman Anthony F. Di Domenico by a two-to-one vote.

In the State's closest race, F. Byrne Austin, Takoma Park wholesaler and faithful party worker, used up most of his 934 majority given him by Montgomery County Democrats to win out in the Sixth District over Washington Newspaperman Will Allen of Bethesda by a scant 297 votes. Austin, who has been promised Allen's support in the November general elections, will oppose Representative Beall.

Weidemeyer received 2453 votes.

From 12 candidates Montgomery County Democratic voters chose the following seven State convention delegates: Charles W. Pettyman, Jerry T. Williams, Blair Lee, 3d, Robert W. Beall, Mrs. Camilla A. Bowman, Mrs. Anna H. Roach, and William E. Hewitt.

Defeated were: Mrs. Elizabeth Asay, Mrs. Irene Brungart, John H. Pratt, Albert E. Arent, and Lee B. Lilbart.

Montgomery County Republicans chose the following to represent the county at the party's coming State convention: J. Douglas Bradshaw, Adolph E. Gude, jr., George W. Johnson, Paul M. Coughlan, Wesley I. Sauter, Mrs. Emily B. Elkins. Mrs. Ruth Bliss was leading Mrs. Lillian W. Smith by 17 votes with one precinct missing.

Trailing these candidates with insufficient votes to win the delegateships were: Mrs. Ruth N. Bliss, Frank H. Long, Romeo W. Horad, and Herbert J. Schlee.

Republican delegates to represent Prince Georges County, with a few scattered precincts unreported, include: Paul Johnson, Mrs. Marvin S. Gallimore, J. Bryant Morrison, Sidney Moore, W. Leroy Armstrong, Mrs. Annette Fisher, and James P. Sutton.

The victims were Raleigh Blume, 55, and his attractive daughter, Elsie.

"I am going to end it all. I cannot stand it," said a note addressed to Sheriff Mason Reddick by Blume.

Army Ordnance Due To Hire 20,000-50,000 In Defense Expansion

ARMY ORDNANCE is slated for a major expansion, far greater than any other Army agency. Estimates vary from 20,000 to 50,000 of the number of new defense employes it will need to grind out weapons of war under the new defense program.

Ordnance has less than 1000 of its 53,000 people in this city. Only a handful of new jobs would be created here. The vast majority will be in its arsenals, warehouses, etc.

Actually, no one knows how many new people Ordnance or any other Army agency will have under the defense program. Congress must first vote the funds and then the Army budget chiefs must divide them up. Nevertheless, just about every Army office is planning on a big expansion.

JUSTICE: The next top-drawer official who is slated to resign is T. Vincent Quinn, chief of the Criminal Division. Insiders say Quinn plans to quit by midsummer. Quinn has spent much of his time during the past six months on an inquiry of an alleged Communist spy ring. He presented what evidence the department had been able to collect to a "blue-ribbon" New York grand jury.

RETIREMENT: Representative Harold Hagen (R., Minn.) today will introduce a bill to permit the retirement at 50 after 20 years of service of all Federal workers who investigate and apprehend criminals. In other words, the present law which covers only the FBI's G-men would be enlarged to include other Federal workers in similar work.

Hagen will have the support of his House Civil Service Subcommittee, which okayed the bill yesterday. The full committee will debate it tomorrow. Hagen said it would cover investigative personnel in Customs, Narcotics, Immigration and Naturalization, Alcohol Tax, Internal Revenue and Secret Service among others.

GPO: Officials of the Government Printing office have told their employes to forget all about those reports of a pending big lay-off. They insist that no firings were even in the works. Incidentally, John J. Deviny will be sworn in at 3 p. m. tomorrow as the public printer. He has been the deputy for the past seven years.

NOTES John J. Forbes has been promoted to chief of the health and safety division of Interior's Bureau of Mines. He has been assistant chief since 1945. He succeeds Daniel Harrington, who won national prominence in the job . . . Several hundred clerical employes here filed for the CAF-1 through 4 general clerical exam that was announced recently by the Philadelphia office of the Civil Service Commission. No more applications are being accepted for the test . . . Civil Service here has announced an exam for social workers with starting salaries from $2644 to $4149. Also, for medical technical assistants, $2394 to $3021, and for librarians, $2644.

CENSUS is preparing to take the 1950 census of population. Upward of 60,000 people will be needed for this job, part and full-time. The first batch of employes will be hired around July 1.

The Civil Service Commission yesterday gave Census the full authority to hire temporary employes for the terrific job. Civil Service won't even check those being hired.

POST OFFICE has installed a new robot, an automatic machine that sells stamps at face value. One of the machines is in the lobby of the main post office here. Others will go in the Benjamin Franklin and Alexandria offices.

The machine sells five 1-cent stamps for a nickel; two 5-cent air mails for a dime, and five 3-cent stamps for a dime and a nickel. It will cut down on the time spent standing in line to buy stamps. Further, stamps can be had from the machine at any hour.

SOCIAL SECURITY is one Federal agency Congress has squeezed like a dishrag. In fact, Representative Henry Jackson (D., Wash.) and other members believe a recent action of the House "is a stab in the back of Social Security.

In 1938, there were 2130 employes in SS's administrative staff. Today, with a bigger job to do, there are 361 and this number would be trimmed to below 100 under its 1949 budget as approved by the House.

The research and statistics division would be cut from 50 to 20 employes; the information service would be slashed 70 per cent, and the SS commissioner would have about 6 per cent of the money he controls today. The agency wouldn't be able to even get out its monthly bulletin. Unions and industrial concerns would not be able to get information on health and welfare funds—if the House cut stands.

Furthermore, the SS program would no longer be a complete unit. It would be splintered; its field offices would be taken over by Federal Security, and its Bureau of Employment Security would be merged with the Employment Service under FSA direction. The breaking up of SS could lead to competition for funds between the SS agencies and an unbalanced program.

The House action must be upsetting to Arthur J. Altmeyer, the "Mr. Social Security." There are reports he will resign in protest if the House bill becomes law. Altmeyer refuse: to comment. His friends say, however, that he doesn't consider his personal future

Legion Asks House Group Lowdown on Viers Mills

Wants Air Cleared On Whether $8700 Homes for Veterans Are Overpriced

The District American Legion yesterday urged a House investigating subcommittee to clear the air on the Viers Mill Village Veterans' housing project.

Sylvan King, chairman of the local legion's housing committee, urged the committee to determine whether the charges that the veterans homes are overpriced at $8700 are "true, false or political."

King read a District legion resolution which stated that most veterans can afford to buy homes only in the $6500 to $8700 range; pay rents from $50 to $60 a month; and that such housing, if okayed by the Veterans' Administration and Federal Housing Administration, should be encouraged in this area.

The Viers Mill project on Viers Mill rd. between Wheaton and Rockville, Md., plans to put up 1400 houses for veterans, currently selling at $8700. There are only a few houses in the Washington area selling for less, King said. Both VA and FHA have indorsed the $8700 price, but Montgomery County officials have attacked the sales price as $1000 too high.

A spokesman for the Harris Construction Co. of New York, project builders, presented figures yesterday to the subcommittee, headed by Representative Melvin Snyder (R., W. Va.) to show precisely how much each house cost. The figures set overhead costs at 4 per cent; profit at 6 per cent of cost and less than 5 per cent of sales price, and that no profit was made on sale of the site to the veteran.

Max Greenberg, counsel for the builders, charged that the investigation of the Viers Mill project was instigated by county officials who feel the site is worthy of development "with more pretentious individual private homes which would tend to increase realty values." He added:

"We are actually filling a need. We are actually producing a result long talked about and seldom accomplished. We are furnishing a home within the means and ability of the veteran to pay and to carry."

Idle Bed Use Ordered for Tuberculars

The District government yesterday was ordered by the House Appropriations Committee to make available for tuberculosis patients some 200 idle beds in local public hospitals.

To help unfreeze the vacant beds, the committee added $84,000 to the fiscal '49 budget of Glenn Dale Sanatorium to provide additional personnel for approximately 50 beds, unused because of lack of hospital manpower.

As for the remaining 150 unused beds—chiefly in Gallinger and Upshur Street Hospitals—the Commissioners must find the funds in the health budget.

Insistence that the beds be put to use with funds out of the regular appropriations blocks the Health Department plan to seek additional funds through a supplementary appropriation.

During hearings on the current tuberculosis X-ray campaign, members of the committee expressed approval of the program.

"The result of the mass X-ray program now in progress make this (utilization of vacant bers) a mandatory operation," the committee reported yesterday.

Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, director of the D. C. Tuberculosis Control Bureau, has estimated that 5000 cases of past or present tuberculosis are expected by the end of the X-ray survey this summer.

Twenty cases have been sent to Glenn Dale already and others are awaiting bed space.

City Milk Cost Is Declared Highest in U. S.

By The Associated Press

Representative Noah M. Mason (R., Ill.) told the House yesterday that "legalized monopoly" has boosted milk prices in the District to the highest figure in the Nation.

He offered a bill that he said was designed to "correct such situations" as a District Court dismissal last week of a restraint of trade indictment against the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association and seven Washington milk distributing companies.

The bill would amend the Capper-Volstead Act by transferring from the Secretary of Agriculture to the Attorney General the power to step in when cooperative association's activities reach the monopoly point.

In winning a dismissal of the indictments here last week, the defense contended successfully that cooperatives could continue agreements in question even if some trade restraint resulted.

Boy's Adventure Ends at Home

The Washington Post

CHARLES E. BOOHER, 13, who spent Monday night sleeping on a table in the guard room of the Senate Office Building, was back home last night with his mother, Mrs. Anne Booher of 2900 First st. se. Capitol police said Charles reported himself "missing" from his family on a Washington visit, but later confessed that he ran away from his mother. Mrs. Booher said she thought the lad was spending the night with his father, Wesley Booher of 500 F st. ne., from whom she is separated to the present of $2, on top of an increase in assessments of 20 per cent for residential property and varying amounts for commercial property.

In-Red Budget Is Approved

House Appropriations Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) said there was no thought of an amendment for a property tax increase to finance the budget, declaring that under present law the Commissioners would have to make the boost if the budget passed as it is and no other revenue law were passed.

Horan's subcommittee reported that with six million dollars in new revenue for the city, the proposed budget could be financed and leave one million dollars for future deficiency appropriations, a balance of $1,827,962 in the war-accumulated public works investment fund, and a year-end surplus of $502,464.

85 Million General Funds

Of the proposed total budget, $85,495,783 is for general funds expenses; $9,282,200 comes from the highway funds, and $6,387,000 from the water funds. The separate highway and water funds are in balance with a surplus for each—$2417 for the highway fund, and $597,680 in water fund securities to be left at the end of the next year.

The bill is based on continuation of the 12-million-dolla Federal payment to the District approved by Congress for the first time for use in the current fiscal year. The total includes 11 million for general fund expenses, and one million for the water fund.

Of the total budget, $17,909,583 is for public construction, with a big slice of it, $5,023,283, going for schools, largely to continue the drive launched last year for elimination of double-shift classes.

Horan's group indicated its concern about the effect on the budget of applying to the District any Federal pay increases that Congress may pass. The budget contains no provision for a pay boost, and Horan's group reported that District pay boosts since 1945 today represent an annual city expense of $20,272,905.

Employe Requests Cut

Appropriations Committee aides estimated that some 600 additional employes are provided in the new appropriation bill, as compared with more than 900 requested by the Commissioners. Biggest reduction in proposed new personnel was in the Gallinger Hospital budget. Horan's group reported that the hospital was allowed 1276 jobs this year, and had 221 vacancies. Because of the vacancies, Horan's group turned down the request for $259,300 for 366 new positions at Gallinger.

Virginia Police Take Man on D. C. Murder Charge

William Henry "Wild Bill" Granberry, 25, of 724 3d st. ne., a laborer, was arrested yesterday by Falls Church, Va., police in connection with death yesterday of a 25-year-old Washington man.

Washington police have charged Granberry with murder for the fatal knifing of James Phenions, of 408 K st. nw., climaxing a running fight along several blocks near 4th and K sts. nw. A coroner's inquest has been scheduled for today.

House Group Heeds Pleas For Schools

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Pleas made directly to Congress for elementary schools in two fast-developing areas in southeast Washington were heeded in the District budget reported yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee.

A half million dollars was added to budget requests submitted by the Commissioners to start construction of a replacement for the Stanton Elementary School and a new school in the vicinity of Oxon Run.

After the Commissioners overlooked the two areas in drawing up their recommendations, residents banded together and took their requests directly to the committee.

Budget Increases $1,160,633

The school budget reported by the committee carried a total appropriation of $25,194,282, an increase of $1,160,633 above the current budget.

Attached to the bill was a rider that no part of the funds may be used to finance education in District schools of nonresident students. This would end free schooling for 4000 students living outside the District now attending District schools.

The over-all budget for operating the District in 1948-49 carried an appropriation of $1,373,000 for the Recreation Department and $1,221,000 for the public libraries.

The total expenditures for schools voted by the committee was $125,900 more than recommended by the Commissioners.

Operating Funds Cut

Cuts were made in operating fund estimates to make additional money available for capital outlays.

The committee authorized the Board of Education to enter into contracts of $825,000 each for the two new 24-room elementary schools. Three hundred thousand dollars was appropriated to begin construction on the Stanton replacement and $200,000 for the Oxon Run School.

A $20,000 request for the purchase of land for the Oxon Run School was raised to $50,000 by the committee after it was pointed out in hearings that property values in the area have more than doubled since the school was first contemplated.

Forty-three new teaching positions, 40 of them in Negro schools, were allowed by the committee. Six of the jobs, three in Negro schools and three in white, are for handicapped children.

After testimony brought out that there are 20 physically handicapped children not now attending schools because of lack of transportation, the committee appropriated $8400 to buy and maintain two station wagons to carry the children.

Under capital outlays funds were approved for beginning or completing construction of 11 projects recommended by the Commissioners.

They are: Beers and Kimball Elementary Schools, Miller Junior High, Montgomery and Nalle Elementary, Sousa Junior High, Taft Junior High addition, Cranch-Tyler, Walker-Jones, Young and Birney Elementary Schools.

Expenditure Boost Nearly Half-Million Over '48 Is Approved By House Committee

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday approved funds to increase the personnel of the Metropolitan Police Department by 246.

The manpower expansion was approved, the committee reported, in order to get more foot patrolmen on the streets, and to build the local force into a model for the rest of the Nation.

The committee approved an expenditure of $6,404,100 for fiscal 1949—which begins July 1, 1948—a sum nearly half a million more than the police got to fight crime during the current fiscal year.

Not only were the police given virtually everything asked, but the committee also added $25,000 to the budget for the purchase of arms, ammunition and equipment to deal with barricaded criminals, and for equipment for the new riot squad.

The appropriation bill, as reported out yesterday, provided money for the following additional posts in the department: One inspector, three captains, 19 lieutenants, three sergeants, three corporals, 178 privates, and a number of clerical-custodial employes. Many of the new clerks will free policemen now on clerical duty for street beats.

Budget Highlights

During hearings on the budget, made public yesterday, it was disclosed by Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, that sick leave, annual leave, clerical duties, and special assignments had so cut the force of available foot men that "there would be days when we would have only two men on foot beats in a precinct during a trick of duty."

The police chief offered statistics at the hearings to demonstrate that the city's crime rate went up as the number of foot men on duty went down.

97 Vacancy Average

It was testified at the hearings that while the department had an authorized force of 1795 men, during fiscal 1947 there was an average of 97 job vacancies and a daily loss of 446 men due to sick leave and annual leave.

"This is a loss of over 25 per cent," the committee commented, "and in the opinion of the committee is excessive. The committee commends the action of the District officials in checking more closely on the abuses of sick leave."

The committee also called for "a unification of the multitudinous policing forces" in the District. Testimony brought out the conflicting jurisdictions in metropolitan Washington of the Metropolitan, U. S. Park, White House, Capitol, Zoo and special police of various sorts, and Federal building guards.

Post Is Criticized

During the hearings, it was disclosed yesterday, Representative Lowell Stockman, a member of the District Appropriations subcommittee, commented to Barrett:

"As a matter of fact, I think you (the Police Department) need 200 additional men to offset the damaging effects of The Washington Post, if for no other reason. I think they have perpetrated one of the most dastardly crimes upon the District of Columbia in their unwarranted and unsubstantiated drive to discredit the Washington Police Department.

"It looks to me like you may need 400 new men, of which 200 would be necessary to offset the slander of the Post. With the Communist clique they have on the staff, they do a lot of high-minded talking about Communistic Russia being a menace to this country, but I think the Post is a bigger menace to the District of Columbia than Moscow is to the United States."

$1,173,100 Welfare Increase Approved; 'Abuses' Criticized

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

The District Public Welfare Department will get $1,173,100 more for its operation in 1949 than during the current fiscal year if Congress adopts the report of the House Appropriations Committee, made yesterday.

But despite this increase, the committee wants to cut back $198,215 in funds that had been asked for the Public Assistance Division.

Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), in making the committee's report, declared that testimony at hearings "indicated that abuses still exist in granting aid to public assistance applicants which, if corrected, would substantially reduce the cost of this expensive municiple function. Also, the estimate anticipates increases in requests for aid which the general economic conditions of the country do not appear to justify."

While the committee declared it "is not yet convinced that the best results possible are being obtained with the money expended in this (welfare) field," it recommended $406,600 for capital outlay for welfare institutions, and shaved only $559,800 from the department's budget as submitted by the District Commissioners.

Of the money asked of Congress, $250,000 would go for a residence hall for employes at the District Training School, $115,000 for a medical staff residence, and $5000 for preliminary plans for construction at the Children's Center. An additional $36,600, not included in the budget submitted to Congress by the Commissioners, was put in at the request of the Board of Public Welfare to finance completion of the District Receiving Home for Children.

Dr. James Lewald, superintendent of the training school, had pointed out that as long as there are no facilities for housing of personnel, "security, training and effective supervision are difficult problems."

In testimony on public assistance grants, Donald Gray, divisional superintendent, declared the requested increase would bring the average grant from 1942 living cost figures—basic items—of $24 to $44 for single persons, still $6 less than July, 1947, living costs.

Raymond F. Clapp, acting welfare director, had testified that virtually the "entire amount of increase" was an increase in the amount of the average grant, rather than an increase in number of grants. He said vacancies in the PAD staff had to be "forced" this year in order to make up fund deficits.

The committee, in its report to the full House, paid special attention to the mounting cost in care of mental patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital, which had increased from $3,259,450 in 1945 to an estimated $7,082,000 in 1949. Also noted was the District's rate of 564.3 mental patients per 100,000 population during 1946, largest in the country.

Total welfare appropriation as recommended by the committee is $12,940,000, of which the St. Elizabeths budget is $6,682,000.

The committee upped by $40,200 the amount asked for operating expenses in welfare protective institutions. Of this total, $36,000 goes for a sprinkler system to eliminate "as far as possible" the fire hazard at the Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains. An additional $5500 was allocated for repairs at the Industrial Home School. Horan, at hearings on the bill, had promised that "unless I am overruled by the subcommittee, I think you are going to get" the needed repairs.

In the long standing feud between welfare officials and the District auditor on appropriation expenditures, the House Appropriations Committee again sided with Auditor A. R. Pilkerton, directing that appropriations must be audited before payment.

Group Urges Hospital Aid For Indigent

Revision of the District health program to provide care for indigent patients both in municipal and private hospitals was urged yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee.

In a report on the District's 1949 budget, made to the House of Representatives, the committee, headed by Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), declared many hospitals must obtain additional funds or close wards and other facilities now used by the indigent, unless they get payment from the District for their services.

The District has contractual arrangements with only three hospitals, Emergency, Casualty and Children's. The committee recommends that to these be added six more — Columbia, Episcopal, Georgetown, George Washington, Providence and Garfield.

"In many instances," the committee report said, "emergency cases presenting themselves at these hospitals could not be turned away for humane reasons, and could not be transferred to Gallinger Hospital or hospitals under contract with the District. Therefore patients that were indigent were treated without charge and for many years the hospitals absorbed the loss."

The committee doubled the amount recommended for medical charities for the 1949 fiscal year, an increase from $380,000 to $735,000, and directed the Commissioners to make agreements with the hospitals at rates not to exceed $9 per day for in-patients and $2 per visit for out-patients.

Appropriation Cut

The committee cut the total health department budget request by $274,300, to $9,075,500.

It reduced by $260,000 the capital outlay requested at Gallinger. Allowed was $300,000 toward construction of a new pediatrics building. The committee also increased contract authorization for the structure to $1,610,000. An additional $15,000 was allowed for an incinerator.

At Glenn Dale Sanitorium, the committee looked with favor on the request for $65,000 for construction of an apartment house for medical officers.

Episcopal's Costs

In testimony supporting the committee's stand on hospitals, Henry P. Blair, vice president of Episcopal, had said: "We spent last year about $48,000 between allowances for tax eligibles and pay patients and what we contributed from our own funds."

John A. Reilly, chairman of the advisory board of Providence Hospital, had testified the institution cares for about 10 per cent of the tax-eligible indigent. "It is a question of meeting the pay rolls because of the charity situation."

Arkell B. Cook, representing Garfield, said that for 1947, "we came out with a net loss of $206,000, and that so far as the tax eligible group is concerned, about $93,000 of the loss can be attributed to that particular group."

Budget Highlights

Hearing Transcript Like Report on City

Chairman Walt Horan (R., Wash.) of the subcommittee handling the big 101-million-dollar District money bill regards yesterday's published transcript of the House budget hearings a report to the people of Washington on their city's operation.

Following are some of the items of information the 1240-page volume and the money bill turned up:

2d Twin May Be Late

Washington may be a long time getting its second new highway bridge across the Potomac at 14th st. sw. Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of District highways, reported the first of the twin spans now under construction will likely take all the money Congress authorized for the two parallel spans. He gave the reminder that it took Congress two years to clear the 7-million-dollar authorization bill for the twin-bridge project. He indicated the first span may be finished about the end of next year.

Liquor Dried Up

When District officers went after "short" liquor bottles recently they were really chasing the wind—much of the trouble was caused by evaporation of contents. Weights and Measures Superintendent Thomas Kennedy reported that in two weeks "we chased off over 20,000 bottles" from one to two ounces short in weight.

Speaking of liquor, Chairman Horan told ABC Chairman Alan W. Payne that fortified wines are "the curse of the West Coast."

"They make you drunker than whisky," said Commissioner Guy Mason.

35% Paroled

There's no fooling around with Washington's Parole Board, Hugh F. Rivers, a board member, indicated. Last year the board considered 459 applications for parole, granted 35 per cent of them, then returned 51 persons, 34 of them for parole violations, the rest to face new charges.

Guard in Doghouse

The District National Guard is still having tough sledding with Congress. Their appropriation was cut back $20,000 leaving a total of $95,200. Horan's group, after sharply questioning Guard officials in hearings, recommended that when new personnel is hired the Guard take care of "the apparent need for someone with a working knowledge of the Budget and Accounting Act, Government fiscal procedures, and legal requirements in the expenditure of funds." Earlier this year the House and Senate appropriations committee accused the Guard of disregarding the laws by running up a deficiency. Beside the Guard money, $204,257 was granted to run the armory.

All Permits at Bureau

Horan's group granted money to set up a centralized building permit bureau. Officials testified applicants now have to make numerous visits and face long waits. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District Engineer Commissioner, cited the recent Empire Building collapse as showing defects in the inspections setup. He said some papers could not be found at all in the "antiquated" filing system. The office will be able to fill 30 new jobs with the budget approved by the appropriations committee. It totals $611,600, a boost of $121,740 over last year.

Fire Personnel Criticized

Horan's group approved in full Commissioners' estimate of $3,703,000 for the Fire Department. But, said the group's report, "the committee has noted for some time the public press reports of the conduct of personnel in the Fire Department.

"Since both the Fire and Police Departments of the Nation's Capital are quasi-military establishments, the committee feels that a stricter observance of the conduct of the personnel should be maintained in keeping with the authority invested by statute and public acceptance of both of these departments." Fire Chief Clement Murphy was acquitted earlier this year of charges based on a protest by Fire Capt. Joseph Conroy that the chief was demoralizing the department.

$5000 for Bears' Dens

The budget carries $5000 for remodeling swimming tanks and other improvements for the dens of the bears in the Zoo. The District Recreation Department got the $1,373,000 cleared by the Commissioners, but not the $300,000 for new people's swimming pools asked by recreation officials.

Stray Dogs Considered

There is also money in the budget bill for Washington's stray dogs, including $400 to cover the high cost of dog food, and $240 to replace uniforms of the men who handle the dogs.

Library Funds Boosted

The public library appropriation is $66,400 above the current budget. Provision was made for nine new jobs including a collector of overdue books. This was allowed after testimony that the number of lost books averages 4825 a year.

The budget also includes funds for a "bookmobile" to carry library facilities to outlying areas.

The committee made no changes in the Recreation Department budget submitted by the Commissioners. Operating expenses account for $1,077,000 and capital outlay $296,000. The money was earmarked for two field houses, four shelter buildings and ground improvements.

Vacant Homes Checked

The police department offers a special checkup service for vacationists, particularly in the Eighth Precinct, which includes Chevy Chase and Spring Valley, it was disclosed in the District budget hearings.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police chief, reported that the department assigned a police car each year "to do nothing but double check on those vacant homes." The service holds good for winter as well as summer, according to Barrett. In the Eighth Precinct, the special service covers as many as 800 homes.

Increase Finally Blocked

A comedy of errors in processing the District budget for fiscal '49 proved to be no joke for Capt. Rhoda J. Milliken, head of the women's bureau.

She was recommended for promotion to inspector, with a $1200-a-year increase in pay. The recommendation was officially approved by the District Commissioners, U. S. Budget Bureau, and White House and sent up before the House District Appropriations Subcommittee.

At this point, during hearings on the police budget, Commissioner John Russell Young demanded to know how the item got into the budget since he had personally disapproved it.

After some heated give and take between District officials, Police Chief Robert J. Barrett ended further argument on the recommendation with a curt: "Cut it out."

Rent Increases Recommended For 273 Units

Rent increases averaging 7.4 per cent were recommended for 273 units of two large Northwest area apartment houses yesterday by Rent Control Administration examiners.

Examiner Denis K. Lane recommended increases of approximately 6.98 per cent for 188 units at the Park Lane, 2025 I st. nw.

Rents would go up from $32.50 to $34.75 a month for one-room-and-bath apartments, from $67.50 to 72.25 for four-room-bath units, he said.

Boosts averaging 7.87 per cent were recommended for 85 apartments at the Park Terrace, 1660 Lanier pl. nw., by Examiner James G. Tyson.

The hike would raise monthly rents on two-room-and-bath apartments from $42.50 to $46, on four-room-and-bath units from $85 to $90.50.

The Rent Control Administration also announced yesterday that owners had filed increase petitions for 176 units at the Miramar Apartments, 1301 15th st. nw. They asked these monthly rent increases: for one-room-and-bath apartments, from $37.50 to $41; for two-room-kitchen-and-bath units, from $62.50 to $68.50.

Board Orders Fire Watch At Gallinger

The Commissioners yesterday ordered an around-the-clock fire watch at the crippled children's building of Gallinger Hospital, with three District firemen detailed for eight-hour daily shifts.

They also ordered Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler to check Gallinger appropriations to see if unused balances could be used immediately to enclose the building's stairway and fireproof door and transom frames with metal.

Director of Construction Archie Hutson estimated the alterations would cost between $5000 and $10,000.

The action followed recommendations in a report from Fire Marshal R. C. Roberts and Director of Inspection Robert H. Davis, released Monday, which recommended an 11-point plan to make the building safer.

Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho), chairman of the Senate District Appropriations Subcommittee, urged the Commissioners in a letter Monday to take immediate action to improve conditions at the building.

The Commissioners also received a report of Fire Marshal Roberts' Friday survey of fire safety conditions at the Receiving Home for Children.

They forwarded the report to the Board of Public Welfare, noting that most problems, including insufficient night watchmen service and the removal of padlocks from fire exit doors, were "administrative features" for the board to consider.

Hogan Elected Yard President At Georgetown

Robert Hogan, 23, of Chicago, yesterday was elected president of the Yard of Georgetown University. He polled 531 of 1031 votes cast for president. This total was the greatest in Hoya history.

Runners-up were Kevin Kennedy, 23, of New York, with 286 votes and Joseph Gartlan, 23, of Long Island, N. Y., with 214.

John O'Connor was elected Yard secretary by a 523-500 margin over Charles Palms of Detroit. Thomas Graham, Philadelphia, won the treasurer's post. Runners-up were Paul F. Gavaghan of Boston and Robert Rowe of New York City.

Vaulting Cab Does a Somersault . . .

The Washington Post

DRIVER LIVES TO TELL—Hurtling a retaining wall after colliding with a loaded brick truck, this cab rolled over an embankment on U. S. Route 1 to the northbound highway 40 feet below. The locale is south of the Highway Bridge. The driver, Roy S. Greenwald, 35, of 706 H st. sw., escaped without serious injury. Police said Greenwald's cab was hit by a truck driven by Vincent C. Morse of Upper Marlboro, forcing the cab into another taxi and then over the embankment

Crippled Child Aide Cleared in Staff 'Revolt'

The District Society for Crippled Children has given a "vote of confidence" to Mrs. Jewell Gaffney, executive secretary, who was the target of a recent "revolt" by staff workers.

This was announced yesterday by James C. Dulin, jr., vice president of the society and a board member, who was authorized at a meeting Monday night to serve as spokesman for the board.

Dulin said he found, in an investigation following the resignation of four employes and the firing of a fifth, that "certain employes had apparently joined in an effort to force the resignation of Mrs. Gaffney."

He claimed they refused to "abide by Mrs. Gaffney's instructions" and also held secret meetings.

The information was made public at a press conference in Hotel Statler, called by officials of the National Society for Crippled Children, who had come to Washington to investigate the local dispute on invitation from officers here.

Present, in addition to Dulin, were Philip G. Rettig, director of research and legislative services for the national organization, who conducted a 10-day "survey;" Luther G. Hester, director of extension services for the national society, who assisted in the study; Thomas G. Groom, a newly elected member of the board of the local society and president of the Bank of Commerce and Savings here; and Rick LaFalce, public relations representative for the national organization.

Rettig would not divulge the contents of his report, but attributed the local "problem" to "personality differences.' He said he was in "no position" to affirm or disapprove the action of the board.

The society, which serves children crippled by brain injuries, has a board of directors composed of 23 members. Fifteen were present at Monday night's meeting.

UAW Suit to Test Taft-Hartley Law Is Dismissed

A three-judge court yesterday dismissed a suit in which Walter Reuther and the United Auto Workers (CIO) sought to have part of the Taft-Hartley Act declared unconstitutional. They ruled it was not in their jurisdiction.

The suit, filed against Attorney General Tom Clark, referred specifically to that section of the labor law which prevents any labor organization from making contributions or expenditures in connection with elections.

After declaring in the suit that unions and their officials did publish views on candidates and issues in the union's publications, supported by union dues, the plaintiffs asked that Clark be restrained from penalizing them for violating the act.

The three judges declared that, since Reuther and the union had not yet been penalized, the suit was out of jurisdiction of a civil court, and that they therefore could not give an opinion on the constitutionality of the labor law section. The court was composed of Associate Justice James M. Proctor of the United States Court of Appeals and Associate Justices Jennings Bailey and F. Dickinson Letts of District Court.

In Lavatory

Gas Station Manager Kills Himself

W. Clyde Cullam, manager of a service station at 29th and M sts. nw., shot and killed himself about 2:30 p. m. yesterday in the lavatory at the station.

A bullet from a small revolver, "apparently a .32," police said, entered his left temple and came out the right side of his head. He was pronounced dead by Dr. William Horn of Emergency Hospital.

Cullam, 57, was found by his employer, Earl Baker, partner in the firm of Williams & Baker, Inc., an automobile agency next door to the service station. Baker said he opened the lavatory door and Cullam's body fell out.

According to Earl Shoub, of 2820 Olive ave. nw., a part-time worker, Cullam was in the station alone. Shoub said he heard a noise "like a door slamming," and shouted to Baker, who was standing nearby, "I think Shorty has shot himself!"

Baker said a shortage of $350 in cash had been reported to police yesterday, and that Cullam had told him it had been stolen.

Cullam, who lived with his wife at 2800 G st. nw., had been in poor health recently, Baker said. A one-time prizefighter, he had been employed by Williams and Baker for about two years.

A certificate of suicide was issued by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Court Hears About Alleged Union Liquor

Two Government agents testified yesterday that conflicting statements were made to them in 1943 by an official of the Hod Carriers and Building Laborers Union about $22,073 worth of liquor, bought with union funds.

Agent Frank H. Nolte declared in District Court that George Morgan denied knowledge of 150 cases of liquor stored in the basement of union headquarters, 523 New Jersey ave. nw., when he talked to him January 13, 1943.

Then Agent Francis J. Sweeney took the stand and identified a statement from Morgan, made February 3, 1943, in which Morgan admitted he knew the liquor had been bought by Larry Kelly, but had denied the union's connection with it because he feared publicity.

Morgan, George Plummer, Evans Hamilton, Faust Moreschi and Joseph Speed, all union officials, and Isaac Weiner, a building contractor, are charged with conspiracy to embezzle $100,000 in union funds. Kelly, also a union official, allegedly is the central figure in the conspiracy case, but has been reported dead.

Morgan declared in his statement to Sweeney that members of the union's building committee had decided informally that Kelly should buy the liquor for a union affair. Kelly did not have to account to the building committee for the money he spent, according to the statement.

Special Prosecutor Leo Rover read a petition signed by Morgan, Hamilton and other members of Local 74, April 22, 1943, and sent to the Attorney General. The petition said the liquor had been acquired by the building committee with the knowledge of the union's 17,000 members.

Europe Seen Receptive to Gospel Work

There is no better time than now to spread the word of Christianity to Europe's suffering millions.

This was the message last night of Rev. Robbins W. Barstow, executive of Church World Service, to the Middle Atlantic Conference of Congregational Christian Churches at the First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw.

Dr. Barstow, who returned recently from a tour of Europe, told the approximately 200 clerical and lay delegates from Washington and New Jersey:

"The doors of opportunity are wide open there to let in the gospel."

Urging the admission of refugees to this country, Dr. Barstow reminded his audience that "refugees are of the same stuff that built America."

"Despite the uncertainty of the times in Czechoslovakia, for example, there is hope and promise in the churches. If we provide the resources so that they may bring greater vigor to their work, there will be a new day of hope and happiness for the lost youth of Europe," he declared.

Along the same line, speakers during afternoon business sessions urged greater contributions this year to the Postwar Emergency Program, an intrachurch aid and mission program feeding into Church World Service.

This morning at 9:30, the delegates are to vote on a plan to merge their church with the Evangelical and Reformed Church. The proposal, already adopted by most units of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, requires a two-thirds vote of the churches, associations, conferences and general council of the Congregational Christian Churches for adoption.

$120,600 Raised At Jewish Appeal Campaign Dinners

A total of $120,600 was raised last night at dinners given in separate hotels by the Government and doctors divisions of the United Jewish Appeal's current campaign.

United States Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman and Robert Nathan, economist, spoke at the Government division dinner at the Mayflower Hotel, where $35,600 was raised by 250 guests attending.

David Hacohen, a Palestine industrialist, spoke at a dinner at the Statler that was attended by about 190 doctors, dentists and optometrists, who raised $85,000.

Last night's contributions, it was announced, brought appeal funds to a total of $1,395,000. The local goal is $2,500,000.

New Conference Sought to Avert Bakers' Strike

Efforts to arrange a new conference between management negotiators and AFL bakers, whose threatened strike would cut off about 60 per cent of the District's bread production, were launched yesterday following a collapse of negotiations Monday night.

Charles B. McClosky, business agent for the Bakers Union Local 118, said no progress was made at Monday's session, but the bakers agreed to hold off their strike threat pending further efforts by Federal Conciliator James A. Holden to arrange a new negotiations meeting.

According to McClosky, management refused to increase its original offer of a 10-cent-per-hour increase for about 1200 bakers affiliated with the union. The bakers have asked a 50-cent-an-hour raise.

Adm. Newton Dead; Hero of War in Pacific

Vice Admiral John Henry Newton, (U.S.N. retired) who made his home in San Francisco, died at the Station Hospital, Fort Ord., Calif., on Sunday, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

A native of Pittston, Pa., Admiral Newton was a veteran of both world wars, and in the last war served as deputy commander and then commander of the South Pacific area and the South Pacific force. For his service in the Pacific, he won the Distinguished Service Medal.

He served here in 1942 and 1943, when he was sub-chief of naval operations of the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

Lone Man Attends

White House Reception Honors Women Officials

By Elizabeth Maguire

THERE were 2000 women and one lone man at the White House yesterday. The occasion was Mrs. Truman's annual garden party for women holding executive positions in the Government, and the man was Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

The Secretary appeared long after the party had gotten started. He made his way through the crowded corridor to find Mrs. Marshall, who was receiving in the Blue Room with Mrs. Truman and other Cabinet ladies. Mrs. Marshall could not leave, however, as over 500 guests were still in the ballroom waiting to go down the line.

The Secretary decided to wait, drew up a chair in a far corner of the room, and waited for the remainder of the reception.

Mrs. Truman in Black

Mrs. Truman received her guests dressed in black crepe cut on very simple lines with v-neck. The Cabinet ladies were in dark colors for the most part, and all wore spring bonnets. Mrs. Marshall topped her smart black satin frock with white hat trimmed with beige feathers and sheer beige veil. After Mrs. Marshall, in the receiving line, came Mrs. Thomas Clark, then Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, Mrs. Julius Krug, Mrs. Clinton Anderson, Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, Mrs. A. Lee M. Wiggins, Mrs. William C. Foster and Mrs. David A. Morse.

For the first time this year, a wide assortment of cakes was served at a White House reception. A White House aide suggested that it was probably because a strictly feminine gathering has to be served cakes. Whatever the reason, there was an array of fudge covered cakes, lemon cakes, butter balls and mocha cakes, served with orange sherbet punch.

Marine Band Plays

The United States Marine Orchestra furnished the music, and different colored flowers were arranged in the various rooms. There were lemon yellow snap dragons in the green room, pink flowers in the blue room, white flowers in the red room, and red roses and gypsophila, throughout the red-carpeted corridor.

Miss Frances Perkins was one of the first to go down the line, and Mrs. Robert Elliott Freer was there in pale blue felt hat and yellow beige coat.

The uncertainty of the weather drove the garden party indoors. As no rain came, however, guests wandered out onto the terrace and the south lawn.

Capital Branch Entertains for Lord Wakehurst

Lord Wakehurst, chairman of the Council of the English Speaking Union in Great Britain, and Lady Wakehurst were honored at a luncheon yesterday by the Washington branch of the English Speaking Union. The luncheon was held at the United Nations Club.

Seated at the speakers' table with the guests of honor were the Ambassador of Australia and Mrs. Makin, former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph C. Grew, the British Minister, F. R. Hoyer Millar, Mme. Rene de Marees van Swinderen, Charles Dewey, president of the Washington branch, Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman and Mrs. Edward Meigs.

Others at the luncheon included Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaw Rembski, Mrs. Luther Evans, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Webb Ellis, Mrs. Edith Tyler, Miss Anne Carter Greene, Mrs. Paul Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris, Mrs. B. P. Du Bois, Mrs. George Howe, Mrs. Charles C. Glover and Miss Bertha Noyes.

Later in the afternoon Lord and Lady Wakehurst were honored at a cocktail party by Mr. and Mrs. Lyttleton Fox, who entertained at their home in Georgetown.

Club Members To Visit Gardens

The Garden Club of Chevy Chase, Md., will meet today at the home of Mrs. Robert Burks on Newlands st., Chevy Chase.

Upon completion of business, members will visit a selected number of small gardens belonging to club members who live in the neighborhood.

Authorities Chosen to Judge Flower Mart

Competent judges, each an authority in her particular field, will decide on awards for the garden clubs in the District, Maryland and Virginia, when their booths are set up for the flower mart on the Pilgrim Steps at the Washington Cathedral Friday, May 7.

Mrs. William L. Ritchie, mart chairman, announces that Mme. van Kleffens, wife of the Ambassador of the Netherlands, who knows and loves flowers, especially the great tulips for which her country is famous; Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, whose gardens at Dumbarton Oaks, her former home, were world famous; Miss Rose Greely, landscape expert; Mrs. Herbert Greger, authority and teacher of flower arrangements; Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney and Mrs. Ethel Pilson Warren will make their decisions.

First and second prizes will be awarded clubs exhibiting flowers, plants and boutonnieres; first and second prizes to those selling garden accessories and food, or sponsoring entertainment for children. Mrs. Truman, who opens the mart at 11 a. m., will make the awards.

Should the weather man be unkind on Friday, the mart will be held the following day, Saturday, May 8—and then, if it rains, in the cathedral crypt.

Hostess at Tea

Miss Genevieve Hendricks entertained at tea yesterday for the Society of Arts and Letters. The tea was held at Snyder Home, an historical Georgetown house which Miss Hendricks and her mother, the late Mrs. Luta Poyneer Hendricks, remodeled together.

At the tea Miss Hendricks spoke on "High Spots in a Decorator's Washington Career."

In Case of Homesickness—

Army Pals Call 'Mamie' And Columbia Operator Learns She's Not a Co-Ed

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

GENERAL AND MRS. EISENHOWER had scarcely left Fort Myer for their new "quarters" in Columbia University when some of their Army pals, thinking they might be homesick, decided to give them a ring. Not knowing the new president's number, they called the university switchboard, asked informally (it was quite late at night) for Mamie Eisenhower. There was a long pause, then the operator replied, "What dormitory is she in?" When Mrs. "Ike" was properly identified, the telephone girl was no end embarrassed. (Barnard College, a female institution, is part and parcel of Columbia.)

Pre-Riot Orchids Arrive

NOW THAT ALL conference delegates have left Bogota, the pacts, agreements and such diplomatic memoranda are signed, this department is pleased to report all is normal in Colombia. The reason we are sure is that Kay Halle, the platinum haired former OSS star who hails from Cleveland, last weekend received no less than 16 orchids flown directly to Georgetown from Colombian jungles. Giants, mauve and white, they arrived in good condition—though they were ordered by an admirer just before the Bogota riots!

Off to France

THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE, so masterfully rejuvenated by the combined skills of Averell Harriman, Undersecretary Bill Foster and Assistant Secretary David Bruce, is about to lose all three. Come June, all three will take off from Washington and set up shop in Paris. Averell, of course, as roving ambassador; Foster as his deputy and David Bruce as ECA administrator in France. Their wives will go with them, thereby leaving a gap in Capital circles.

Going to Paris on a job sounds glamorous to many, but it is a real sacrifice to both Fosters and Bruces. Bill Foster, who is rated an able administrator, has abandoned his once flourishing private business, made sizable inroads on capital to piece out his Government salary.

Mrs. Bruce, who has a 4-month-old son, a 2-year-old daughter, must leave them behind until she is settled in France. Both Mrs. F. and Mrs. B. have to close up houses, place servants, dogs, heaven knows how many varieties of lares and penates before setting out for Europe. Let's hope what some of our top-notch Government officials do for their country is just a bit appreciated.

The Watch Dog at Work

COME YESTERDAY, cheery Charlie Dewey, just appointed staff director of the joint Congressional "Watch Dog" Committee on foreign spending, has ceased "hello-ing" to his pals' telephone calls. Instead, he snaps out a brisk "Bow-wow"! He has acquired a new nickname around the office and is now known as "The Growler." The Dewey watchdogging is a unique job. He is to know how ECA money is spent, see that it is kept from slipping down local and foreign drains, doubtless make a few pertinent suggestions. As a vice president of the Chase National Bank and a former Illinois Representative, Mr. Dewey is particularly well equipped for a glorified form of monetary policing, by liaisoning between ECA, Congress and the country's financial institutions. Mr. Dewey, who spent much time abroad, is a reformed isolationist, heads up the English Speaking Union here and has a chest full of foreign decorations. Mrs. Dewey, whose greatest interest is charitable work for France, wears the ribbon of the Legion of Honor. Peter, their only son, was killed in Indo-China during a mission. His widow, Nancy Dewey, is one of the most decorative of Washington's younger hostesses.

OFFICERS of the D. C. Chapter, National Home for Jewish Children, get first hand information on current conditions at the institution from Judge Louis Goldstein (center), chairman of the New York Committee, NHJC. Mrs. Morton Rosen (left), program chairman of the local groups twelfth annual donor luncheon, held yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel, smiles approval of the good tidings as does Mrs. Paul Kerman, chapter president. Judge Goldstein was the principal speaker at the benefit affair

Judge Goldstein Tells Group Of Jewish Children's Home

Approximately 300 members of the D. C. Chapter, National Home for Jewish Children at Denver heard Judge Louis Goldstein of New York describe the origin and operations of the home and its 150-bed hospital. Occasion was the local group's twelfth annual donor luncheon held yesterday in the Shoreham Hotel.

Judge Goldstein, chairman, New York Committee of NJJC, told how the hospital specializes in the cure and treatment of asthmatic and allergic diseases. Not only does the hospital have the finest experts in these diseases, he said, but it also has attending dentists, X-ray and laboratory technicians, a psychiatrist, psychiatric social workers, and nurses.

He said that originally the home started out about 40 years ago for orphan Jewish children. But today 90 per cent of the children, who come from 22 States are more ill than homeless. Fifty-six per cent of the children in the home now are from the greater New York area.

Children Admitted Free

The speaker pointed out that only children 5 to 15 years of age, who were unable to pay in other institutions and hospitals, are admitted. "A child doesn't pay one dollar," he explained. "Average stay is from 18 to 30 months. None are discharged until cured."

Incidentally, Judge Goldstein said that the only way he could keep his speaking engagement here Tuesday was to arrange with the New York Fire Department to rush him to the airport from the funeral home after the funeral services of an associate. "We made the trip in 11 minutes," he declared. "Ordinarily it takes 45."

Special entertainment was furnished by Matt Windsor, owner of the Windsor Room. He started with group singing of "The Sidewalks of New York" in honor of the visiting jurist, then launched into one of his original piano compositions. Mrs. Abraham Baroff, soloist, led the national anthem, with Mrs. Joseph Lienson as accompanist. The invocatoin was pronounced by Rabbi Ephraim S. Greenberg of Beth Israel Synagogue.

Mrs. Kerman Presides

Mrs. Paul Kerman, current president of the D. C. chapter, NHJC, gave a brief message and presided. The welcoming address was given by Mrs. Morton Rosen, president-elect, was was general chairman of the donor luncheon.

Among the committee chairmen were Mrs. Jack Zoltrow, tickets; Mrs. Reuben G. Samakow, arrangements; Mrs. Bernie Bernstein, hostesses, and Mrs. Bernard Adler, editor of Year Book.

Members of the projects committee were Mrs. Albert Swerdloff, Mrs. Gustav Askin, Mrs. Harry Sirkis, Mrs. Harry S. Beckman, Mrs. Benjamin Keyser, Mrs. George Kimelblatt, Mrs. Barney H. Kraft, Mrs. Saul Zinnamon, Mrs. A. W. Bookhoff, Mrs. Louis A. Malinsky and Mrs. Adler.

Salaries for District teachers "as high as those in the highest bracket in the country" were urged yesterday by the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

In a resolution adopted at the final business session of the two-day meeting at the Departmental Auditorium, the congress went on record that teachers' salaries here should be "on a level with those of other professional workers," and that "conditions of teaching" should be made "so attractive that competent men and women will seek this profession."

Last night after installing eight new officers, delegates closed the annual convention with a fellowship dinner at the Shoreham Hotel.

Dr. Harold Benjamin, dean of the University of Maryland's College of Education, speaking at last night's fellowship dinner, said the way to world understanding is through education and that the United States is "missing the boat" because it does not rank educational services high enough.

Taking notice of shifting school population and the need of expanding educational facilities, the congress recommended additional remedial teachers because of overlarge classes. The 646 delegates representing the 71 local P-TA units in the city commended school authorities for progress in reducing the number of children on part-time instruction and repeated a request for smaller classes.

Ask New Buildings

On the day the House Appropriations Committee was reporting the District budget, the Congress of Parents and Teachers urged that funds for new buildings and sites, deleted from the Board of Education requests by the Commissioners, be restored.

On the subject of sex education, the delegates said the "responsibility is threefold," saying: "We believe that the home should be the logical place for dealing with the more intimate aspects; that the church should help in the ethical and moral aspects; that the school should help by laying scientific foundation through courses in elementary science, health and physical education, biology and home economics."

The group also recommended that the Board of Education retain its power to regulate the curriculum as to time and content and heard Dr. Robert Eaves, president of the Horace Mann P-TA and member of the committee which drew up the resolutions, describe the dangers of permitting Congressmen to legislate the curriculum.

In another resolution, the P-TA congress asked for more adequate service of mental hygiene clinics for parents and children, but voted against having the clinics become part of the school system.

The congress also went on record as favoring a military force in the United States capable of going into action in defense of the Nation, but made no mention of universal military training. Four resolutions were passed applauding the aims of world citizenship.

New officers elected were Mrs. James Cox, Parkview P-TA, second vice president; Miss Nell Hiscox, principal of the Janney School, fourth vice president; Mrs. Marjorie West, Stanton P-TA, sixth vice president; Mrs. A. W. Bean, Keene-Rudolph P-TA, recording secretary; Mrs. Leonard Thomas, P-TA fifth division representative, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Crawford Shanks, Langdon P-TA, treasurer; Mrs. Edward Gray, Eaton P-TA, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. James Stewart, Blair P-TA, historian.

Terms of other officers expire next year.

Orange Blossom Parade

Miss Catherine Cornelia Walter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Walter of Germantown, Md., became the bride of James Daniel Dorsey, jr., on April 24. The ceremony took place in St. Martin's rectory, Gaithersburg, Md., at 7:30 p. m. Mr. Dorsey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Daniel Dorsey, also of Germantown.

The bride wore a gray suit with navy and white accessories and a corsage of red roses. Miss Lorraine Walter, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, costumed in an aqua suit with pink accessories. Charles Dorsey, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Buchman—Kloman

Miss Mary Louise Kloman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Kloman of Washington and Lake Worth, Fla., became the bride of Eldon Michael Buchman on April 28, in a ceremony which took place at 10 o'clock in the Sacred Heart Church, Lake Worth.

The Rev. Robert F. Brush officiated, and a breakfast followed for members of the wedding party and the two families. A reception was also held later at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. Kloman gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a white lace gown with white net yoke and long pointed sleeves. Her full length veil of illusion was held by a tiara of lace flowers embroidered with seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and gardenias.

Mrs. W. J. Rogers, jr., matron of honor for her sister, wore a yellow taffeta gown and carried spring flowers. Miss Patricia Buchman, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Brasseit were bridesmaids dressed in pink eyelet embroidery. Two other bridesmaids, Mrs. Sol De Lise and Miss Terese Joyce, wore aqua eyelet. All carried spring flowers.

Alfred Buchman was best man for his brother, and Jerry Wildman, Jack Hackley, Michael Falco and Robert Stevens acted as ushers.

Nancy Stephens, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl, dressed in pale blue eyelet. The ring bearer was John Daniel, nephew of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Buchman attended the Immaculata Seminary and was graduated from the Marjorie Webster College. Mr. Buchman attended Lake Worth schools and served with the United States Navy in the Atlantic and Pacific theaters.

Matron Fears Embarrassment in New Locality As Divorced Friend, Mother of Two Children Plans Sojourn There and Calls Herself 'Miss'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Until six months ago my husband, daughter and I lived in a small town; then we moved to this very pleasant suburb of a large city, where we have no friends as yet, only a few casual acquaintances so far.

Now a friend of mine, a resident of the same small town, is talking of spending the summer in this attractive suburb, which sounds very agreeable to us and I am sure we all would find it so, except that since her divorce she insists on calling herself "Miss," despite the fact that she has two children.

I have suggested to her that this is incorrect; that she should call herself "Mrs." as she is entitled to do; but she feels I am wrong and insists the "Miss" is legal for a divorced woman.

Will the 'Miss' Incite Scandal?

I AM wondering, firstly, if I should introduce her around in this community where I am not well known, and where I shall be a permanent resident, whereas she will be only a transient; and, secondly, whether there will be stigma attached to her calling herself "Miss" when there are two fine children in the picture?

Am I being squeamish? I am older than she and perhaps old fashioned. In the town from which we hail, the community knows her entire history and accepts her preference for the title "Miss," but this is a suburb of a big city. L. L.

Friend's Maiden Pretense Is Comic

DEAR L. L.: According to my knowledge of correct social usage and legal precedent, there is no foundation for your friend's assumption or insistence that she is entitled to call herself "Miss" since getting divorced.

To illustrate her error, let's say her maiden name was Annie Alden and that she married Jessup Smithers. After divorce, her formal name in impersonal exchange is Mrs. Alden Smithers; and among friends, or as a business or social signature, her name is Annie Alden Smithers, prefixed by "Mrs." in certain instances.

Of course Annie may say, "Stuff and nonsense; when I divorced Jessup Smithers, I petitioned the court to restore my maiden name and my lawyer tells me this plea was granted; therefore I'm entitled to call myself 'Miss.'"

If so, she's wrong again, for according to legal precedent a girl who has been married and the union consummated cannot be reconstituted a maiden or "miss,"—except perhaps in the case of eloping minors whose nuptials are speedily abrogated by annulment proceedings, on the basis of evidence that they weren't of age to establish a binding contract or that consummation hadn't transpired.

Introduce Her Firmly as 'Mrs.'

THUS though Annie (the mother of two) might have obtained legal clearance to relinquish the name Smithers and revive divorcee-title to use of her family surname Alden, her correct prefix thereafter would still be "Mrs."—as Mrs. Alden or Mrs. Annie Alden.

It's definitely not "Miss" Alden or "Miss" Smithers, yet I gather the latter arrangement is the one your friend has fixed on, due to ignorance or eccentricity; and perhaps she thinks she's being "modern," basing her notion on the big-town journalist trend of referring to famous professional women as "Miss" in disregard of their matron's status—incidental tribute to personal eminence usually achieved prior to marriage.

So much for your friend's groundless insistence, a gauche violation of good form, to say the least, which isn't binding on you, however; hence my advice is to stick to your colors and introduce her firmly as "Mrs." Smithers if it falls on you to sponsor her in the new community. Then if she wants to bill herself as "Miss," it's up to her to explain the whys and wherefores; and none will identify you with her nonsense. M. H.

Economist Predicts Higher Meat Prices

Meat prices will continue to rise throughout 1948 with the sharpest increases coming this summer and fall. This was predicted yesterday by Frederick Waugh, member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

In his address to the luncheon meeting of Washington League of Women Shoppers at the YWCA, Mr. Waugh outlined principal causes of inflation. He said the recent income tax cut, on the eve of impending military and defense expenditures, was a decided incentive to still greater price boosts.

The economist stressed the need to relieve food prices. It is his opinion that some form of rationing should have been established long ago.

Grandmother's Ring

Ingrid Bergman's ring finger sparkles with a betrothal ring two generations older than her modern wedding band. A traditional half-loop of fine diamonds set in silver prongs, the ring came from Stockholm and was her grandmother's. Her husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom, had a silver wedding band made to match it.

How to Remove Ink Stain on Rug

How can I remove a rather large ink stain from a fiber summer rug? B. O.

It will not be easy, if it is possible at all, to remove an ink stain from a fiber rug. Because of the softness of the fiber, the ink will have become completely absorbed in it. However, one of these following treatments might lighten the spot, at least, so that the entire rug can be gone over with paint.

Make a paste of one part water, one part alcohol and cornmeal, salt or corn starch. Rub this paste into the stain and, when dry, brush away the powder. If this removes some ink but not all, repeat as often as the paste becomes stained with ink. If the stain has penetrated to the reverse side of the rug, apply the paste to that side also.

If this doesn't remove the stain or at least lighten it so that the rug is usable as is, or can be painted, bleaching it is the only solution. To bleach, sponge the stain with household bleach one cup bleach diluted with one cup water. Be sure to rinse away all bleach when stain is lightened. This will no doubt take all of the rug color out of the spot, so when thoroughly dry, the rug should then be painted all over, using a good quality house paint diluted with turpentine in the proportion of four parts paint and one part turpentine.

This month we are moving our household effects to the West by truck. They will be stored in a barn or like structure (in a dry climate) with either dirt or concrete floor until the first of August. Is it necessary to take any special precautions with upholstered furniture or books for this storage period? I have wondered about the possibility of moths or insects getting into the things. Clothing and blankets will be packed with moth flakes, of course. U. S. G.

If the storage space does not have a floor in it, I would surely suggest you arrange some sort of platform upon which to place your belongings. When allowed to stand directly for any length of time on even a dry dirt floor, some chance would be taken. Before packing, clean the upholstered furniture well and then spray it thoroughly with a good insecticide spray. In addition, place moth crystals in the folds of the upholstery. Now, completely cover the pieces with heavy wrapping paper, sealing it with tape. This should protect it from moths for this period of time. The books should be placed in boxes which can be tightly closed against dust and insects. Sprinkle a generous amount of fresh pyrethrum powder or insect powder which will protect against silver fish. This insect feeds on the starch in book sizing and should be guarded against. Fine books should be wrapped individually in tissue paper before placing into the box.

Sharp Upturn Shown in Sales Of Appliances

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington retail sales of electric appliances showed sharp increases in the first three months as compared with the same period last year.

Of 10 principal categories, 8 displayed gains during the period.

Figures released yesterday by William G. Hills, managing director of the Electric Institute of Washington tend to disprove reports of a recession in the appliance field. Demand apparently is still heavy, although supplies are more adequate.

For the first three months, 26,194 radio sets were sold in Washington and the two nearby Maryland counties of Prince Georges and Montgomery. This compared with 19,786 in the same period of 1947. Retailers sold 3622 television sets in the same period, against 218 last year. Sales of combination radio sets numbered 4693, against 5008 last year. Total radio sales amounted to 34,509, against 25,012 in the first quarter last year, according to the Institute.

Comparative figures for the first three months this year and same 1947 period in other major categories were:

Washer sales, 5824 against 3548; vacuum cleaners, 3960 against 2072; refrigerators, 4712 against 2988; oil burners, 424 against 1041; ironers, 440 against 306; water heaters, 508 against 1222; roasters, 647 against 254; dryers, 224 with no comparable figures available for last year; electric ranges, 1419 against 810.

IMPROVEMENT: Capital Airlines, Inc., reported passenger revenues of $2,739,164 for the first quarter this year, an increase of $509,000 over same 1947 period. Cargo and express revenues rose to $372,520 from $315,833 last year. Revenue ton miles handled by the Washington based airline totaled 1,460,718 during the 1948 period, against 923,803 in the like 1947 period.

SALES RALLY: More than 900 are expected to attend the "Rally for Salesmen" on Thursday night in the Statler. The conference is sponsored by the Sales Executive Club of Washington. Among the scheduled speakers are Zenn Kaufman, merchandising director of Philip Morris & Co., Ltd.; J. S. Bartlett, president of the Sales Executive Club; P. Y. K. Howatt, and Norman H. Barnes.

SURPLUS: The State of Maryland showed a general fund surplus of $12,883,011 on March 31, 1948, the end of the first nine months of its fiscal year. Chief source of revenue during the period was the newly levied sales tax. Collections from this source totaled $16,925,901. The gasoline tax was second with $13,658,593. The State's bonded indebtedness as of March 31 stood at $23,506,000, up from $16,895,000 on June 30, 1947.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: F. Glenn Burns, assembly division manager of the International Business Machines Corp. plant in Endicott, has been promoted to manager of I. B. M. plant No. 3 in Washington . . . J. Delafield DuBois, secretary of J. P. Morgan & Co., Inc., has been elected a board member of Seaboard Surety Co. . . . Jack Pry has been named Washington dealer for Crosley passenger cars and trucks . . . David Marshall has been appointed director of information for the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc.

SLUMP: The food industry was one that felt a profit slump in the first quarter—23 companies reporting $37,690,000 this year against $49,975,000 a year ago. Food and beverage sales in hotels this March were 4 per cent below a year ago. The trade says it was the biggest break since 1939.

ODD LOTS: Building of private homes accounted for nearly 40 per cent of all new construction in April. Housing last month gained 5 per cent over March and 61 per cent over April, last year, Commerce Department reported . . . Business failures in week ended April 29 numbered 106, highest level in six weeks, Dun & Bradstreet said . . . A new issue of 100 million dollar Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. 3½ per cent debentures was quickly oversubscribed when offered by Morgan Stanley & Co. at 102½ . . . Maytag Co. has chosen Newton, Iowa, as site of its new 5 million dollar automatic washer plant . . . Kennecott Copper Corp. will oppose any move to increase the price of copper from its present 21½ cents a pound, President E. T. Stannard told stockholders.

EARNINGS: National Steel Corp. reported first quarter net income of $8,661,760, equal to $3.88 a common share, compared with $7,325,058 or $3.28 a share in same 1947 period. Other income reports follow:

New York Cotton

New York, May 4 (AP).—Cotton futures closed strong today at gains of $2.00 to $2.80 a bale. Aggressive short covering and replacement commission house demand for new-crop deliveries met only limited offerings following the sharp break in the market on Monday. Traders attributed the rise partly to this technical situation. Indications that the House will press for early action on the 150-million-dollar revolving fund bill, covering cotton and other commodity purchases for Japan, also had a strengthening effect.

Bill Checks 1940 Prices; Sobs Gently to Himself

My entire day has been ruined by a note from Mrs. Wilker of 911 C st. ne., who suggested that I check the grocery prices in the January 5, 1940, edition of The Washington Post.

Like the sucker that I am, I checked them. Now I won't be happy until I get a chance to vote against somebody—anybody—for what's happened to prices in eight short years. Here's what I found:

Porterhouse steak was 33 cents a pound. Sirloin (guaranteed tender) was 27 cents a pound, round steak 25.

Jumbo shrimp at 19 cents, bacon at 17, and boneless hams at 27 cents a pound are enough to make me drool.

Butter at 34 cents a pound, eggs at 33 cents a dozen (economy eggs: 21 per dozen), chickens at 23 cents a pound and pork loins at 12 start me sobbing gently to myself.

A pound can of Argo salmon was 19 cents, leg of lamb went for 17, lamb shoulder 10, rib roast 21 and a large box of Rinso set you back 17 whole cents.

And when I recall that Maxwell House coffee was 25 cents a pound, and margarine was priced at 2 pounds for 19 cents, my market basket becomes flooded with nostalgic tears.

This was a mere 8 years ago, mind you—when a woman who flashed a $10 bill in a grocery store was just trying to show off.

And look at prices now! There's nothing left but to drown our sorrows in a brimming glass of tomato juice (20-ounce economy size: 5 cents).

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three well-bred kittens, named Wynken, Blynken and Butch; their mother is cultured and well-traveled." (Emerson 7889.)

A story goes with that one. I couldn't resist calling the donor, Fern Schimmel of 4832 Alton pl. nw., to ask how "Nod" wound up as "Butch." Fern explained:

"I got the idea from a radio program about some characters known as Eeny, Meeny, Miney and Pierre."

HOW TRUE, HOW TRUE.

The other day I used an item about the radio announcer who got mixed up while giving his listeners the "correct Arlington Sun time." In rebuttal, the Sun observed:

"There's an old saying that a doctor buries his mistakes, a lawyer's mistakes go to prison, but a newspaperman prints his mistakes for all the world to see."

Generally speaking, the Sun's point is well taken. But when mistakes appear in the District Line, I'm always greatly consoled by the knowledge that at least my own family won't rib me about them.

Somehow they manage to keep abreast of the happenings in Mary Worth and Steve Canyon without ever finding out what goes on in this space.

THE ETERNAL FEMININE

A. I. Kreger of 1228 Raum st. ne. tells me that he is currently studying child psychology under a master of the subject — his 4-year-old daughter, Carole Ann.

Carole Ann waits until daddy starts to shave. Then she parks herself nearby, and craftily opens her campaign. Like this:

"You know, daddy — you're very kind to me. Yesterday you got me some bubble gum. The day before you brought home a painless paint book.

Before that, I got some bubble blow. In fact, daddy, you've been so good to me that I'm not going to ask you to bring home anything for me tonight."

This technique, sighs District Liner Kreger, never fails to produce the desired results.

PERSONAL NOTES

Joseph N. Switkes, .6420 7th st. nw.: You must have missed the edition in which I explained that we wouldn't use the D. A. V. puzzle scores to avoid any possibility of interfering with the project.

Matt McLaughlin, 1825 New Hampshire ave. nw.: The public relations office at Walter Reed will send somebody out to pick up those books you've been saving for the boys, and they say "thanks."

POLITICS A LA MODE

The talk at our luncheon table turned to politics, and one of the group mentioned the possibility that President Truman might withdraw from the race.

"Nonsense," replied another. "The Democratic machine would disintegrate if the President withdrew his candidacy. Why, he's the only cohesive force holding together the machine's various nuts and bolts."

"Yes," mused the first, sadly, "and one of the nuts has already thrown a monkey wrench into the works, and bolted."

NOW HE TELLS ME!

The boss said, unexpectedly,
"The afternoon is yours."
But he
Bestowed his gift belatedly
And found me unprepared to be
So blessed with time. So probably
Instead of choosing carefully
Some worthwhile thing to do or see
I'll spend it on some aimless spree.

NEW YORK.—The bouquet which was tossed perfectly across the orchestra seats and landed at the feet of Faye Emerson at the premiere of "The Play's the Thing," was hurled by Maj. Harry Hooker. He was with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt . . . "Mr. Bottle," the fiction piece by Corey Ford, will be a thin disguise of the career of William C. Fields. The artist illustrating the story is using Fields' photos as models . . . Joe DiMaggio will do a radio transcription series aimed at combating juvenile delinquency.

Howard Emmett Rogers announced that he will produce "Chicago Episode," a movie adaptation of the Carl Wanderer murder story. Ben Hecht and Charlie MacArthur, who then were Chicago newspapermen, covered the Wanderer execution. They won his confidence and he agreed to recite, as his last words, a speech they'd write for him. In this speech, the first collaboration of Hecht and MacArthur, the doomed man was to denounce reporters and editors Hecht and MacArthur disliked, but Wanderer couldn't read the speech. Hecht and MacArthur had forgotten that when a man is about to be hanged, his hands are strapped to his sides. Wanderer, instead, sang "Pal o' Mine."

Collier Young, the film executive who will marry Ida Lupino this summer, has been an actor, agent, writer, collar-ad model and once won first prize in an All-America Boy Contest. When Young first came to New York he had no money, but owned a fulldress suit. He ate well, because the suit enabled him to attend the best debuts and supper dances at the Ritz, where Ludwig Bemelmans, then a headwaiter, always would invite him in . . . Young was the most efficient office boy ever employed at Young & Rubicam, the ad agency. He fulfilled his errands quickly by obtaining immediate entree—for he always correctly presented himself as "Mr. Young, of Young & Rubicam."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Taft Advised to Become 'Liberal'

By Drew Pearson

Senator Robert Taft, worried about his poor showing in the presidential polls, has been consulting with professional opinion researchers. Their advice has been that he become known as a "liberal."

Dr. Robinson

One of Taft's advisers is Dr. Claude E. Robinson of Princeton, N. J., president of Opinion Research Corporation, who has collected opinions on Taft from all over the country.

"You are so busy with the practical side of Government," he told the Senator, "that you have lost sight of the fact that people think in terms of goals. You should start letting people know that you are on the side of the Lord."

He suggested that Taft reveal himself in his "true role" as a liberal and stress his stand for the public good, that he start by examining the question of what is a liberal and defining it as one who believes in liberty and higher living standards. The strategy then is to show that Taft possesses the practical sense to achieve these goals.

Dr. Robinson warned that the public is still fearful that the Republican Party represents "reaction and the vested interests." He quoted a typical opinion from his surveys—that "no poor man should be a Republican." The best way to combat this, he recommended, is to set up goals and catch the eye of the common man. Taft could bid for the leadership on the true "revolutionary" movement—the revolution which started July 4, 1776, advised Dr. Robinson.

He also tried to console Taft over the results of the Gallup Poll which registers his political strength at an alarming low. Taft's standing against President Truman was just one Republican contender against the undisputed Democratic candidate, Dr. Robinson pointed out. If Taft were the sole Republican nominee, the results would be different.

Note—Dr. Robinson works for one division of the Gallup Poll—that which handles private research. Dr. George Gallup, head of the poll, is a close friend of Governor Dewey's and frequently advises him on public reaction.

Battle Over Syrup

A small-scale battle similar to the oleomargarine feud is in the offing—this time over maple syrup.

Vermont conscientious Senator George Aiken, who can detect pure Vermont maple syrup from all the synthetic substitutes, will crack down on restaurants that offer maple syrup on the menu, then serve corn syrup instead.

Aiken has already consulted the Food and Drug Administration and the Federal Trade Commission. He argues that if restaurants can get away with passing off corn syrup as maple syrup, they will start substituting margarine for butter as soon as the taxes on yellow margarine are lifted.

Incidentally, Aiken is a powerful member of the Senate Agriculture Committee which must pass on the repeal of margarine taxes. That battle has only passed the House—is only half won.

Air Force Waits for Taft

While Senator Robert Taft was fighting for his political life in Ohio, he still tried to run the Senate by long-distance telephone.

He kept Acting Senate Leader Kenneth Wherry constantly on the end of the wire, and insisted upon holding up all controversial measures until he could get back and pass on them. As a result, the Senate was forced to recess intermittently—despite the fact that the spring log jam of bills was worse than ever.

At least one Republican, however, Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, refused to stop the legislative wheels merely because Taft was busy campaigning. Ignoring the red light from Ohio, Bridges hurried through with his vital appropriation bill, granting funds to expand the Air Force to 70 groups.

But Taft got on the phone again, and demanded that Wherry keep the bill off the floor until the Ohio primaries were over.

"It's a policy matter and must be decided by the Policy Committee," insisted Taft, who is Policy chairman.

Obediently, "Taft's office boy from Nebraska" herded Bridges into a corner and asked him to hold off a few days. The Senator from New Hampshire objected, but Wherry threatened to block the bill on the floor.

So the United States Air Force, which is lagging behind Russia in building new planes, was forced to wait for Taft.

The Far-Flung Oil Lobby

To understand the ramifications of the oil lobby, you have to realize that it has two great goals—Arabian oil and Tidelands oil. These comprise the two greatest untapped oil resources in the world.

It isn't fair to put every American oil company in the lobby, because a lot of them only suffer as a result of the bad publicity stirred up by their competitors. Actually, Standard Oil of California and the Texas Oil Co. are the prime movers in the lobby, with the Guaranty Trust Co. and some of the big bankers putting up considerable amounts of dough.

To understand one phase of how the lobby works, you need only call the roll of Government officials who worked for the Arab-American oil combine. Oilmen were able to put their own officials inside the Government, then draw them out again, almost at will.
